A STORY OF FORREST.

How the Peppery Actor Squared Accounts With One Critic.

Many years ago Edwin Forrest, the celebrated actor, when in New York, was in the habit of dining at Windust's, a noted restaurant on Park row that was a favorite resort of actors and literary men. It usually happened that Forrest would be joined by friends and that the little group would sit together at one table. On one occasion it chanced that an Englishman with a reputation for conceit and impertinence, who had scraped acquaintance with the tragedian, was one of the group.

Early in the course of the dinner the Englishman began to make criticisms which he considered pleasantries about Forrest's conception of certain roles. Encouraged by his own appreciation he gave full play to his humor and concluded each of his impertinences with, "Pardon my freedom, sir; it's my way."

To the astonishment of all who knew Forrest's irascible disposition he bore the Briton's offensive remarks patiently and seemingly ignored them as far as possible. When, however, the nuts were brought in by the waiter, he took several cracked walnuts in his hand and, walking over to the Briton's place, jocularly snapped them successively in the face of that individual, lightly saying after each shot, "Pardon my freedom, sir; it's my way," and snapped him out of the restaurant.

Gruesome Football Legend.

Where did football originate? Some people give ancient Chester, in England, credit for bringing the great winter pastime into existence. There is a record of football playing in that city in the year 1540, but Chestrians believe in a legend of much earlier

Called to Winnipeg.

M. McAskill was notified by telegram yesterday of the death of his brother, a restaurant keeper of Winnipeg, and he left this morning for that city to attend the funeral. Deceased was fifty-seven years of age and a bachelor.

LOVELORN BILKED

MATRIMONIAL AGENT ARRESTED BY THE POSTAL AUTHORITIES.

GAVE NOTHING FOR MONEY TAKEN

PERSONS CRAVING WEDDED BLISS ARE SEPARATED FROM THEIR MONEY.

TRUSTING ONES ARE DECEIVED

DEPOSIT REQUIRED FROM EACH CLIENT AS A GUARANTEE OF GOOD FAITH.

Chicago, Feb. 17.—On the charge of defrauding lovelorn men and women in many parts of the country, N. C. Clark, proprietor of the Erie Advertising agency and Introduction bureau, was arrested yesterday by the postal authorities and bound over to the federal grand jury. It is said that the man demanded $5 from each prospective client as a "guarantee of good faith," and that the correspondent got nothing in return.

The complaints in the hands of Inspector Ketcham indicate that scores of trusting men and women were deceived by the promises of the defendant and readily gave up $5 each in the hope of securing life partners. The story of one of these is said to be a sample of the rest.

H. H. Britt of Raynham, N. C., was attracted by the advertisement of Clark's agency and immediately sent a letter in which he expressed a desire to enter the state of matrimony. He inclosed the required deposit of $5.

By return mail he received the photograph of a maiden whose beauty could not be disputed. The accompanying letter informed Mr. Britt that the woman was Mrs. Ella McCasiney of Asheville, N. C., "a young widow without children, worth in cash and city property at least $75,000.

"Her reason for marrying," he was told, "is that she wants a husband that will be good and kind to her, to take charge of her affairs and relieve her of the many worries incident to business cares."

The young woman was surprised on receiving a letter from a stranger who showed that he was contemplating marriage with her, and in reply to his questions she wrote that she knew nothing about the matrimonial bureau and that when she was ready to marry she would seek for a husband in her own way. She also is said to have informed the astonished Mr. Britt that she had none of the wealth which her correspondent had suggested she owned.

COASTING ACCIDENT.

Sled Gets Beyond Control and Several Are Injured.

Cleveland, Ohio, Feb. 17.—A party of seven men and women coasting down Main street hill last night lost control of their sled and dashed into a stone abutment of the Erie railroad bridge at the bottom of the hill. The others hurt are Patrick McGinty, nose broken; Robert Gall, leg broken and side hurt; Thomas Chambers, internal injuries; Della Sweeney, arms sprained and head hurt; D. McGreever, Erie, Pa., face cut; Miss Campbell, internal injuries.

Two Men Supposed to Have Lost Their Lives in a Factory Fire.

New York, Feb. 17.—Fire destroyed the ornamental sign works of Frank Meyer, Castoria, L. I., last night. William Brown, Theodore Jacobson, William Hildebrand and James Stoval were sitting in one of the rooms of the factory when the fire broke out in the power room beneath them. Brown jumped out of the window after the flames had burned him severely; Hildebrand got out through a door, but Jacobson and Stoval have not been found. It is feared they are in the ruins of the factory. The monetary loss is about $25,000.

WOMAN MAKES BRAVE STAND

NEGROES TEAR WEAPON FROM HER AND OPEN FIRE ON THE CROWD.

ARMED CITIZENS TO THE SCENE

ONE MAN KILLED AND IN EXCITEMENT THE DESPERADOES ESCAPE.

Sumterville, Fla., Feb. 17. — Henry Wilson and Julius Goodwin, notorious negro outlaws, made a savage attack on Deputy Sheriff Lane yesterday as he was leading them into their cells from the corridor. The officer was knocked to the floor and seriously wounded. The men then ran through the jailer's residence and were attacked by Mrs. Lane, who was rushing to the assistance of the officer with a Winchester rifle in her hands. The negroes attacked her and wrenched the weapon from her. The woman's screams attracted a great crowd and negroes barricaded themselves behind their victim and began using their weapons on all who entered the house. George Stafford, a young white man, was dangerously wounded in the head with a club, and William Porter, another white man, was badly wounded in a clinch fight. In a few minutes news of the battle at the sheriff's house spread through the town and places of business were closed and scores of people with all kinds of weapons ran to the scene. The negroes had rushed upstairs and barricaded themselves from the throng below. Lee Graham, one of the most prominent young men in the town, with gun in hand, attempted to reach the second floor, and was shot dead. In the excitement following the murder the men escaped through the back, and though several shots were fired at them in the pursuit, managed to get away. Both of them are believed to be seriously wounded.

Binghamton, N. Y., Feb. 17. — The sound of vigorous cheering from members of the Grand Army at the names of Stonewall Jackson and Robert E. Lee caused a sensation here last evening when Gen. John B. Gordon spoke on the last days of the Confederacy. Gen. Gordon, who is the only living Confederate brigadier general, was escorted by the Grand Army posts to the lecture hall, and grizzled veterans of the G. A. R. filled the platform. At the mention of the names of Lee and Jackson they were cheered as loudly as were those of Grant and Barber, though a large number of those who applauded had lost limbs at Antietam.

BRITISH CAUGHT IN TRAP.

Boers Open Fire on Them From Three Sides and Overpower Them.

Pretoria, Feb. 17.—One hundred and fifty mounted infantrymen, while patrolling the Klip river south of Johannesburg Feb. 12, surrounded a farmhouse where they suspected Boers were in hiding. A single Boer broke away from the house and the British started to pursue him. The Boer climbed a kopje, the British following. Immediately a heavy fire was opened up on them from three sides. The British found themselves in a trap and in a position where they were unable to make any defense. Eight of the British officers made a gallant effort to defend the ridge with carbines and revolvers until they were overpowered. The British had two officers and ten men killed, and several officers and forty men wounded, before the force was able to fall back under cover of a blockhouse.

BELL MAKES CLEAN SWEEP.

Insurrection in Batangas Practically Cleaned Up.

Manila, Feb. 17. — Gen. J. Franklin Bell has practically cleaned up the insurrection in Batangas province, the troops under his command having made a clean sweep of the district. It is not believed that all the insurgent arms have been captured or surrendered, but that a number of them have been taken by the insurgents to other provinces or safely hidden. The increase of robber bands in the provinces of Tayabas and Cavite show the effects of the drastic measures adopted in Batangas and Laguna provinces. Gen. Bell says the people of these latter provinces never realized the terrors of war until they personally experienced its hardships, owing to the closing of the ports and the concentration of the natives in the towns. He believes that the insurgent leader Malvar is becoming exceedingly unpopular with the Filipinos, and that when the natives cease to fear his vengeance many will be found willing to betray him. What has been said of Batangas province applies almost equally to Laguna.

DEATH IN A COLLISION.

Freight Train Collides With Rear End of a Fast Passenger Train.

Litchfield, Ill., Feb. 17.—Two persons met death and five were injured yesterday in a rear-end collision between the "Diamond Special" of the Illinois Central and a freight train at a point five miles north of Litchfield. The collision was remarkable in that the fast passenger was ahead of the freight and both trains were moving. The "Diamond Special" was moving at a rate of twelve miles an hour when the freight crashed into the rear sleeper. It is said the passenger would have been traveling faster had there not been some trouble with the locomotive mechanism. The engineer of the freight engine declared that the fog was so thick he could not see one hundred feet ahead. Two Pullman coaches were badly wrecked and the freight engine is almost a total loss, while several freight cars loaded with baled hay were ditched.

MINNESOTA LEGISLATURE.

Bill for Relief of Bobleter Is Recalled by the Senate.

St. Paul, Feb. 17. — Senator H. J. Miller of Rock county Saturday demanded the reconsideration of the bill relieving Former State Treasurer Bobleter from liability for state deposits in banks that suspended while he was in office. Senator J. D. Jones of Todd presented a resolution for the recall of the bill, which had passed both houses.

Senator McGowan introduced a bill to abolish the present railroad and warehouse commission, and providing that the governor appoint a new commission of three members by the first Monday in March. The first appointments are to be for one, two and three years, and thereafter for three years each.

Senator McGowan introduced another important measure, which calls for a constitutional amendment, providing that all household furniture and personal clothing shall be exempt from taxation.

In the House.

The house Saturday declined to tie the hands of the committee on taxes in the way of limiting the time for it to discuss the tax code.

The resolution of Mr. Haugland calling for a report Monday was sought to be amended by Mr. Anderson to permit a report Wednesday.

It was intimated that this would be satisfactory to the committee, but some of them did not see it that way, and when Mr. Dobbyn of Hennepin moved to lay all the resolutions on the table, the motion carried.

Representative Nyquist's bill repealing the dog tax law passed last winter was taken from the house calendar and placed on general orders after a good deal of discussion.

TRAGEDY AT HELENA.

Prominent Man Mortally Wounds His Wife and Commits Suicide.

Helena, Mont., Feb. 17. — Harold M. Cole, assistant superintendent at the East Helena smelter is dead in an undertaker's establishment, and Olive Mayne Cole, his wife, is at her home mortally wounded as the result of shots fired by the husband. The tragedy occurred last evening shortly after 8 o'clock at the residence of the couple. There were no witnesses to the tragedy and the wife is so seriously injured that she is not able to make any statement. One story of the affair is given by Mrs. Mayne, the mother of Mrs. Cole. Mr. Cole came in from East Helena about 7 o'clock. Shortly after his arrival Mrs. Mayne went out and returned in a little while. As she went up the steps she heard a shot, quickly followed by another. She was accompanied by her husband, and on entering the house saw Cole falling to the floor, while his wife was lying on the lounge with the blood streaming from two wounds, one in the head, back of the ear, and the other in the left breast. Lying at the foot of the woman were a number of letters. An examination showed that Cole was mortally wounded and he died before a physician could be summoned. He had shot himself through the head. Mrs. Cole is a young and handsome woman. The theory is that the husband found some correspondence belonging to his wife and that there was a quarrel and then the tragedy.

He Clinched It.

Erie, Kans., Feb. 17th.—In July of 1900, W. H. Ketchum of this place was suddenly seized with a violent pain in the back. He says he supposed it was a "stitch," and would soon pass away, but it lasted five months and caused him great soreness, so that he was barely able to get out of bed. He became alarmed and consulted a doctor, which only increased his anxiety and did him no good.

A friend who had some experience advised him to use Dodd's Kidney Pills. Mr. Ketchum began with six pills a day, and in a week was well and the soreness all gone. However, this did not satisfy him, for he says:

"I thought I would clinch the cure with another box, and I did. I have had no recurrence of the trouble since, and as this is over a year ago, I am thoroughly convinced that Dodd's Kidney Pills have completely cured me."

LOVELORN BILKED

MATRIMONIAL AGENT ARRESTED BY THE POSTAL AUTHORITIES.

GAVE NOTHING FOR MONEY TAKEN

PERSONS CRAVING WEDDED BLISS ARE SEPARATED FROM THEIR MONEY.

TRUSTING ONES ARE DECEIVED

DEPOSIT REQUIRED FROM EACH CLIENT AS A GUARANTEE OF GOOD FAITH.

Chicago, Feb. 17.—On the charge of defrauding lovelorn men and women in many parts of the country, N. C. Clark, proprietor of the Erie Advertising agency and Introduction bureau, was arrested yesterday by the postal authorities and bound over to the federal grand jury. It is said that the men demanded $5 from each prospective client as a "guarantee of good faith," and that the correspondent got nothing in return.

The complaints in the hands of Inspector Ketcham indicate that scores of trusting men and women were deceived by the promises of the defendant and readily gave up $5 each in the hope of securing life partners. The story of one of these is said to be a sample of the rest.

F. H. Britt of Raynhan, N. C., was attracted by the advertisement of Clark's agency and immediately sent a letter in which he expressed a desire to enter the state of matrimony. He enclosed the required deposit of $5.

By return mail he received the photograph of a maiden whose beauty could not be disputed. The accompanying letter informed Mr. Britt that the woman was Mrs. Ella McCastney of Asheville, N. C., "a young widow without children, worth in cash and city property at least $75,000.

"Her reason for marrying," he was told, "is that she wants a husband that will be good and kind to her, to take charge of her affairs and relieve her of the many worries incident to business cares."

The young woman was surprised on receiving a letter from a stranger who showed that he was contemplating marriage with her, and in reply to his questions she wrote that she knew nothing about the matrimonial bureau and that when she was ready to marry she would seek for a husband in her own way. She also is said to have informed the astonished Mr. Britt that she had none of the wealth which her correspondent had suggested she owned.

ARMED CITIZENS TO THE SCENE

ONE MAN KILLED AND IN EXCITEMENT THE DESPERADOES ESCAPE.

Sumterville, Fla., Feb. 17. — Henry Wilson and Julius Goodwin, notorious negro outlaws, made a savage attack on Deputy Sheriff Lane yesterday as he was leading them into their cells from the corridor. The officer was knocked to the floor and seriously wounded. The men then ran through the jailer's residence and were attacked by Mrs. Lane, who was rushing to the assistance of the officer with a Winchester rifle in her hands. The negroes attacked her and wrenched the weapon from her. The woman's screams attracted a great crowd and negroes barricaded themselves behind their victim and began using their weapons on all who entered the house. George Stafford, a young white man, was dangerously wounded in the head with a club, and William Porter, another white man, was badly wounded in a clinch fight. In a few minutes news of the battle at the sheriff's house spread through the town and places of business were closed and scores of people with all kinds of weapons ran to the scene. The negroes had rushed upstairs and barricaded themselves from the throng below. Lee Graham, one of the most prominent young men in the town, with gun in hand, attempted to reach the second floor, and was shot dead. In the excitement following the murder the men escaped through the back, and though several shots were fired at them in the pursuit, managed to get away. Both of them are believed to be seriously wounded.

UNION MEN CHEER CONFEDERATES

Applause by Grand Army Veterans Greets the Names of Stonewall Jackson and Robert E. Lee.

Binghamton, N. Y., Feb. 17. — The sound of vigorous cheering from members of the Grand Army at the names of Stonewall Jackson and Robert E. Lee caused a sensation here last evening when Gen. John B. Gordon spoke on the last days of the Confederacy. Gen. Gordon, who is the only living Confederate brigadier general, was escorted by the Grand Army posts to the lecture hall, and grizzled veterans of the G. A. R. filled the platform. At the mention of the names of Lee and Jackson they were cheered as loudly as were those of Grant and Barber, though a large number of those who applauded had lost limbs at Antietam.

YOUTHFUL COUNTERFEITER.

With Ten Companions He Is Alleged to Have Been Making Bogus Quarters.

Birmingham, Ala., Feb. 17. — On a charge of counterfeiting the police have arrested Ernest Matthews, a ten-year-old boy. He and ten companions are alleged to have received instructions from an old man, and established a miniature mint near the North Birmingham iron furnace, where they manufactured spurious silver quarters from crude molds. Several of the coins were successfully passed on merchants of the city. Secret service men are working on the case, and more arrests are expected. The coins were made of lead and pewter.

DOG PREVENTS FIRE AT PAOLI.

Animal Discovers Blaze in House and Pounds Piano With Paws to Arouse Family.

Paoli, Ind., Feb. 17.—A dog prevented what might have been a disastrous fire at the home of John R. Patton. The family had retired for the night and left the dog in a room where a lamp was turned low. The household was awakened several hours later by discordant notes from the piano, and the room in which the dog was confined was discovered in flames. The dog, aware of impending danger, had stood on his hind legs and pounded the keys with his forepaws. The fire was extinguished with slight loss.

BRITISH CAUGHT IN TRAP.

Boers Open Fire on Them From Three Sides and Overpower Them.

Pretoria, Feb. 17.—One hundred and fifty mounted infantrymen, while patrolling the Klip river south of Johannesburg Feb. 12, surrounded a farmhouse where they suspected Boers were in hiding. A single Boer broke away from the house and the British started to pursue him. The Boer climbed a kopje, the British following. Immediately a heavy fire was opened up on them from three sides. The British found themselves in a trap and in a position where they were unable to make any defense. Eight of the British officers made a gallant effort to defend the ridge with carbines and revolvers until they were overpowered. The British had two officers and ten men killed, and several officers and forty men wounded before the force was able to fall back, under cover of a blockhouse.

BELL MAKES CLEAN SWEEP.

Insurrection in Batangas Practically Cleared Up.

Manila, Feb. 17. — Gen. J. Franklin Bell has practically cleaned up the insurrection in Batangas province, the troops under his command having made a clean sweep of the district. It is not believed that all the insurgent arms have been captured or surrendered, but that a number of them have been taken by the insurgents to other provinces or safely hidden. The increase of robber bands in the provinces of Tayabas and Cavite show the effects of the drastic measures adopted in Batangas and Laguna provinces. Gen. Bell says the people of these latter provinces never realized the terrors of war until they personally experienced its hardships, owing to the closing of the ports and the concentration of the natives in the towns. He believes that the insurgent leader Malvar is becoming exceedingly unpopular with the Filipinos, and that when the natives cease to fear his vengeance many will be found willing to betray him. What has been said of Batangas province applies almost equally to Laguna.

DEATH IN A COLLISION.

Freight Train Collides With Rear End of a Fast Passenger Train.

Litchfield, Ill., Feb. 17.—Two persons met death and five were injured yesterday in a rear-end collision between the "Diamond Special" of the Illinois Central and a freight train at a point five miles north of Litchfield. The collision was remarkable in that the fast passenger was ahead of the freight and both trains were moving. The "Diamond Special" was moving at a rate of twelve miles an hour when the freight crashed into the rear sleeper. It is said the passenger would have been traveling faster had there not been some trouble with the locomotive mechanism. The engineer of the freight engine declared that the fog was so thick he could not see one hundred feet ahead. Two Pullman coaches were badly wrecked and the freight engine is almost a total loss, while several freight cars loaded with baled hay were ditched.

Mrs. Holliday is an attractive brunette forty years of age. Anderson is considered one of the largest landowners in Southern Michigan and a millionaire. She claims that Anderson alienated her affections from her former husband under promise of marriage, a promise not fulfilled up to the present time.

Holliday, previous to the separation of his wife, rented land from Anderson and it is claimed that he began to meddle in their affairs in 1896. Mrs. Holliday was granted a divorce in September, 1900, on grounds of cruelty and drunkenness and she alleges that Anderson furnished her the money for the suit.

MINNESOTA LEGISLATURE.

Bill for Relief of Bobleter Is Recalled by the Senate.

St. Paul, Feb. 17. — Senator H. J. Miller of Rock county Saturday demanded the reconsideration of the bill relieving Former State Treasurer Bobleter from liability for state deposits in banks that suspended while he was in office. Senator J. B. Jones of Todd presented a resolution for the recall of the bill, which had passed both houses.

Senator McGowan introduced a bill to abolish the present railroad and warehouse commission, and providing that the governor appoint a new commission of three members by the first Monday in March. The first appointments are to be for one, two and three years, and thereafter for three years each.

Senator McGowan introduced another important measure, which calls for a constitutional amendment, providing that all household furniture and personal clothing shall be exempt from taxation.

In the House.

The house Saturday declined to tie the hands of the committee on taxes in the way of limiting the time for it to discuss the tax code.

The resolution of Mr. Hauglond calling for a report Monday was sought to be amended by Mr. Anderson to permit a report Wednesday.

It was intimated that this would be satisfactory to the committee, but some of them did not see it that way, and when Mr. Bobbyn of Hennepin moved to lay all the resolutions on the table, the motion carried.

Representative Nyquist's bill repealing the dog tax law passed last winter was taken from the house calendar and placed on general orders after a good deal of discussion.

TRAGEDY AT HELENA.

Prominent Man Mortally Wounds His Wife and Commits Suicide.

Helena, Mont., Feb. 17. — Harold M. Cole, assistant superintendent at the East Helena smelter is dead in an undertaker's establishment, and Olive Mayne Cole, his wife, is at her home mortally wounded as the result of shots fired by the husband. The tragedy occurred last evening shortly after 8 o'clock at the residence of the couple. There were no witnesses to the tragedy and the wife is so seriously injured that she is not able to make any statement. One story of the affair is given by Mrs. Moyne, the mother of Mrs. Cole. Mr. Cole came in from East Helena about 7 o'clock. Shortly after his arrival Mrs. Moyne went out and returned in a little while. As she went up the steps she heard a shot, quickly followed by another. She was accompanied by her husband, and on entering the house saw Cole falling to the floor, while his wife was lying on the lounge with the blood streaming from two wounds, one in the head, back of the ear, and the other in the left breast. Lying at the foot of the woman were a number of letters. An examination showed that Cole was mortally wounded and he died before a physician could be summoned. He had shot himself through the head. Mrs. Cole is a young and handsome woman. The theory is that the husband found some correspondence belonging to his wife and that there was a quarrel and then the tragedy.

"When you come to think of it," commented the thoughtful man, "woman is not so unfairly treated as some of the sex insist. In fact, in some lines she has a distinct advantage."

"What, for instance?" demanded the champion of feminine rights.

"Well," replied the thoughtful man, guardedly, "I was thinking that it takes more than a scandal to make a dramatic star of a man."—Brooklyn Eagle.

He Clinched It.

Erie, Kans., Feb. 17th.—In July of 1900, W. H. Ketchum of this place was suddenly seized with a violent pain in the back. He says he supposed it was a "stitch," and would soon pass away, but it lasted five months and caused him great soreness, so that he was barely able to get out of bed. He became alarmed and consulted a doctor, which only increased his anxiety and did him no good.

A friend who had some experience advised him to use Dodd's Kidney Pills. Mr. Ketchum began with six pills a day, and in a week was well and the soreness all gone. However, this did not satisfy him, for he says:

"I thought I would clinch the cure with another box, and I did. I have had no recurrence of the trouble since and as this is over a year ago, I am thoroughly convinced that Dodd's Kidney Pills have completely cured me."

When Curates Were Wanted.

When one learns that curates are increasing so much more rapidly than benefices, wonder is excited as to the condition of affairs in the eighteenth century, when enterprising ladies offered livings to clergymen willing to marry them. An advertisement to this effect appeared in the London Chronicle in March, 1758. The lady was rather particular too. The curate was to be young, have a small fortune, be well recommended as to morals and good temper "and be firmly attached to the present happy establishment." The living was not rich—below £100 per annum—but the fair one was young and agreeable. There seems a touch of humility in the direction that answers "may be left at the bar of the Union Coffee House, Strand, directed to Z. Z." Confidence was created by the assurance that "the utmost secrecy and honor may be depended upon."—London Chronicle.

Where the Color Line Ends.

There may be mulattoes, quadroons and octoroons, but the eighth blooded negro is the last possibility in that progression. No one has ever seen, as far as we can learn, a human being of one-sixteenth negro blood. No pure blooded Caucasian and octoroon have been known to have issue. Many years ago just after the close of the civil war, when Bishop Newman was advocating the amalgamation idea in New Orleans one of the most famous physicians and ethnologists of that city offered a reward of $1,000 to any person who would bring to his knowledge a human being of one-sixteenth negro blood. No one ever claimed the reward. That particular product no man has ever yet found on earth. From the octoroon the reversion to type is the only available direction.—Atlanta Constitution.

Excessive Politeness.

There is a man who is always apologizing, and some say: "How courteous he is! How thoughtful! A born gentleman!" Know that he is a thorough and aggressive egotist. He runs against you, he steps on your foot, he tries to pass you on the left, he knocks your hat as he hangs by a strap in the car, he sits on your coattail—what does he not do to call attention to his own breeding? Sometimes he throws the accent on "beg," sometimes on "pardon." The speech is merely a rhetorical flourish, and he has practiced all the variations.—Boston Journal.

Consumption and Sulphur.

A German physician recommends to consumptives the sulphur treatment. This consists in the patient living in rooms where one or two drams of sulphur are melted daily on a hot stove. The first ten days there will be felt increased irritation and cough. These soon decrease, and improvement is rapidly felt, and complete cures are often effected if the disease is not too far advanced.

Mice and Peppermint.

K. M. Mikhailoff, a Russian chemist, has discovered that mice have a peculiar dislike to the odor of peppermint. He places small pledgets of cotton saturated with peppermint oil in openings made by the mice, and they do not show up for some time. Later the mice make an attempt to return, but the peppermint oil is once more used, and the mice don't come back.

Ram Dux, British Loafer.

A Hindoo baker's assistant in Bombay, on setting up in business for himself, bethought him of catering for the English community as well as for the native one. With this end in view he had the following notification painted over his doorway: "Ram Bux solicits respectful patronage. He is a first class British loafer."

Common Sense in Law.

When we are told that every law must be enforced to the letter though the heavens fall, it has a brave sound, but a wise regard for the public good demands that the laws be so executed that the heavens may not fall. The maxim that "the extreme of the law may be the extreme of injustice"—"summum jus, summa injuria"—is of venerable age and has had the approval of the best jurisprudence as well as the best statesmanship of many centuries. It is not mere "sophistry"—as somewhat hastily, I suppose, it has been called—but it may well be quoted in support of the application of simple common sense to complicated and perplexing exigencies. I think there is not a government in the world, not even the most conscientious, that does not refrain from rigidly enforcing to the letter some laws standing on its statute books, either because they are antiquated or because such enforcement is practically impossible or, if beneficial, would result in evils greater than those which those laws are to prevent or repress.—Carl Schurz.

Preparing Dates.

The preparation of dried dates is carried on largely at Awahl, and as the season had now commenced I took the opportunity to observe the process and was taken round the factories by the sheik. The dates selected are picked before they are quite ripe. The factory had a chimney about fifteen feet high and contained several open, circular, copper boilers, capable of holding five gallons each and nearly full of water. Into these vessels the dates are put and allowed to simmer over a slow fire. As the water in the copper decreased from evaporation it was filled up again, but it gradually became inspissated by the extraction of the juice of the date. The fruit is left in the water about half an hour and is then taken out and spread on mats or cloths in the sun to dry, after which it becomes hard and of a pale red color. It is exported in large quantities from Muskat to India.—Geographical Journal.

A Survival of the Primitive.

A Philadelphia philosopher thus explains the general preference for a wall table in a restaurant: "Primitive man ate in peril. The cave bear, the saber tooth tiger, even some warrior of his own kind, was apt at any moment to leap upon him and to devour his food and perhaps himself. Therefore he took his meals with his back against a cliff or in the corner of two adjoining cliffs, if possible, and with the open country before him. That, you see, was the safest way for him to eat. He could not then be surprised.

"And we still have in us that memory of the primitive man, and we still unconsciously, when we sit down to our repasts, choose places that give us a wall for our protection. That and not a desire to see things is what causes us to pick out walls and corners. You can see as well from the middle of a room or from any other place, you know."

A Queer Marriage Custom.

In the Loo Choo islands there are some curious marriage customs. One consists in the bridegroom going round to all his friends' houses and permitting them to dress him up in any ridiculous style that they fancy. Sometimes the happy man is arrayed in a gayly painted kimono, the sleeves of which are tied up with a string laden with bells, toys and trumpets. A mask is then put on and a red hat, the "rig out" being completed by an empty kerosene tin, which rattles noisily along as he walks, accompanied generally by a crawd of children.

The Pimpernel.

The common pimpernel, "poor man's weather glass," has the disadvantage of being a native plant and has been almost completely expelled from our flower gardens in favor of exotics which are rarer but lack much of being as pretty. The pimpernel is a charming little flower, which opens about 8 in the morning and closes late in the afternoon, but has the remarkable peculiarity of indicating a coming shower by shutting up its petals.

Select.

Once when passing through a cemetery in Lenox Eliot Gregory was surprised to see that the members of one old New England family had been buried in a circle, with their feet toward its center. He asked the reason for this arrangement, and a wit of that day, daughter of Mrs. Stowe, replied, "So that when they rise at the last day only members of their own family may face them!"

Wore the Blue.

The great writer of military songs was looking for inspiration.

"And you say that six of your sons wore the blue?" he interrogated as he halted at the door of a shanty. "Were they cavalry or infantry?"

"Noyther, sor," responded the proud mother. "They wor poleeemin."—Chicago News.

Easily Granted.

Tommy—Ma, can I have two pieces of pie this noon?

Ma—Certainly, Tommy. Cut the piece you have in two.—Somerville Journal.

Enterprising.

"Is your traveling man enterprising?"

"Enterprising? That man could sell a carved ivory cardcase to an elephant!"

The grape has more sugar in it than any other fruit, nearly fifteen parts in a hundred being sugar. The peach has least, only 1¼ per cent.

The highest point to which man can ascend without his health being very seriously affected is 16,500 feet.

A School For Detectives.

In Paris aspirants for positions in the detective force are taught in a regular school, where day after day they are put through various exercises until they become proficient and receive appointments or show that they have not the detective instinct in them.

The students first are trained in the use of their eyes and their hands. One of the lessons consists in placing the pupil in a brilliantly lighted room full of furniture and ornaments. Then he is taken to another room and required to make a sketch of the room he just has left, indicating the position of all the objects in it. He is allowed to look at a face for a minute and then required to describe the color of the hair, the eyes, the general form, etc. He afterward is required to pick out a photograph of the face from among several hundred others.

In educating the hand the student is placed in a dark room in which are many curious and unusual objects. These he feels over and then writes a description of them. He must remember even the slightest details. One test is to let him handle gems in the dark and then tell what they are, whether diamonds, rubies or what not. This is, of course, an exercise for the more advanced pupils.

Plays in Installments.

In nearly all the large cities of Spain the theaters sell tickets for separate acts of a play. The plays are, as a rule of the popular variety, plentifully interspersed with songs and dances. They are, in short, a sort of variety entertainment, with a slender thread of plot running through them. They begin early and end late, and large numbers of performers are employed. Seats are very cheap, and few people would care to sit out the whole performance.

The result is that it is possible for a small sum to buy a ticket entitling the purchaser to see one or two acts out of five or six. The consequence is that when the curtain comes down after an act a large portion of the audience leaves the house and seats are immediately taken by newcomers who have been waiting for the end of the act and have taken tickets for the next. Even in grand opera and classic drama this practice obtains in some of the Spanish theaters.

One Cold Saved.

Logic is logic, whether it touches the affairs of nations or a cold in the head. The conviction, says Tit-Bits, was forced upon a Liverpool woman whose coachman, although he had been ill for several days, appeared one morning with his hair closely cropped.

"Why, Dennis," said the mistress "whatever possessed you to have your hair cut while you had such a bad cold?"

"Well, mum," replied the unabashed Dennis, "I do be takin' notice this long while that whiniver I have me hair cut I take a bad cowld, so I thought to meself that now, while I had the cowld on to me, it would be the time of all others to go and get me hair cuttin' done, for by that course I would save meself just one cowld. Do you see the power of me reasonin', mum?"

Lifted Up Forever.

Mazzini, whose name is associated with the liberation of Italy, was once asked what he would have taught in school.

"One thing, at any rate, in all," replied Mazzini, "and that is some knowledge of astronomy. A man learns nothing if he has not learned to wonder, and astronomy, better than any science, teaches him something of the mystery and grandeur of the universe.

"Now, a man who feels this will soon feel something of his own greatness and mystery, and then for the first time he is a man."

Why He Wept.

The extensive authority of parents under the Chinese laws is well known. A Chinaman of forty years, whose aged mother flogged him every day, shed tears in the company of one of his friends.

"Why do you weep?" he was asked.

"Alas, things are not as they used to be!" answered the devoted son. "The poor woman's arms grow feebler every day!"—Sporting Times.

Didn't Work.

First Suburbanite—I hear that neighbor of yours adopted that hired girl of his so as to get her to stay with the family.

Second Suburbanite—Yes, and now his adopted daughter wants to stay in the parlor and play the piano all day and let her mother do the housework.—Judge.

Anticipation.

"Doesn't it make you the least bit envious to see what elegant furniture Mrs. Eyefly is putting into her house next door?"

"Not a bit. My husband says it will be sold by the sheriff within six months—and I'll be there to buy."—Chicago Tribune.

For a Co-Operative Creamery.

Another Creamery meeting was held at the village hall on Monday afternoon. The attendance was not so large as at previous meetings, but those who were present meant business. K. O. Gigstad was chosen as chairman of the meeting and N. A. Nelson as secretary.

The principal speakers were W. M. Prichard, of Thief River Falls; W. H. Blunt, of Terril, Iowa, and M. J. Cort, of Minneapolis.

Mr. Prichard, who is a leader in the creamery movement at Thief River Falls, spoke of the great benefits to be derived from the establishment of a creamery and to show that he was sincere he offered to give $100 to help the matter along if it was decided to build a creamery. If not, he would put in a skimming station to be operated on the co-operative plan; the butter to be manufactured in the new Thief River Falls creamery, and the whole proceeds to be divided among the patrons of the station after the necessary expenses were paid.

Mr. Blunt, a buttermaker of many years' experience, outlined the system and showed clearly that the project was bound to be a success, if handled right.

Mr. Cort told of his experience in organizing, equipping and starting creameries during several years in this state and in Iowa, and stated that all of them started in his territory during that time are doing a profitable business.

A canvass was made among those present and about $700 was subscribed for the purpose of starting a co-operative creamery. A committee, consisting of N. A. Nelson, O. W. Brink, G. A. Brooke and W. A. Sorsoleil, was appointed to solicit more subscriptions.

An adjournment was taken until Saturday at 1 o'clock when another meeting will be held.

In The District Court

The February term of the district court for Red Lake Falls county was in session all last week at Red Lake Falls and a large number of cases were up for trial. The most important criminal case was that of the State vs. George Gervis, Ida and Ethel Gervis who were indicted for running a house of ill fame in Red Lake Falls. George was sent to Stillwater for nine months and the females were adjudged not guilty. Ethel turned state's evidence and Ida, who married George less than a year ago, swore that her husband forced her to lead an immoral life against her own wishes.

The case of A. C. Adams against the city of Thief River Falls and the Great Northern Railway company was settled by the company paying Mr. Adams the sum of $595.42.

A. R. Jones has been helping himself to move around with a cane for the last few days, and all because the heating stove proved to be constructed of harder material than his back. A Very Interesting Letter.

We publish below a letter which is, to say the least, decidedly interesting to all the people in this vicinity. As will be seen the letter was written immediately after Mr. Lauby had decided to build an independent creamery here. Of the merits of the letter and its effects the readers can form their own conclusions and, perhaps, guess at the methods some corporations use in order to force things to come their way. We print the letter by request and also Mr. Lauby's denial of having entered into an agreement with the writer of the letter. We refrain from comment at present.

CROOKSTON, MINN., Feb. 8, '02.

P. E. LAUBY,
Thief River Falls, Minn.

Dear Sir:—Not hearing from you in response to my letter informing you of rate and inquiring when and how many cans you wanted, I visited St. Hilaire to-day and was very much disappointed in not being able to locate you and surprised to hear the rumor that you had allowed a few people there to persuade or influence you to pass up our proposition and put in a churn. Now Mr. Lauby, I want you to distinctly understand that although I was given to understand that these reports were authentic, I still refuse to believe that you have done anything of the kind after having made the arrangement you did with the farmers and writer at the Creamery meeting, and knowing as you do that it is absolutely impossible for you to meet our offer of four cents under New York and pay even yourself, say nothing of making any money, and I do not believe that you will be foolish enough to undertake it.

Those people served notice on me that they would make arrangements to get another creamery to compete against you and informed them that if they did it would not be to buck you but the Mpls. C. S. Co., as you had signified your intention of being with us and we would stand by you and that we were in a position to make any competition look like 30 cents. We would much rather work with you and assist you as outlined when I saw you and stand ready to fulfil our part of the agreement, but if you so far forget your honor and business interests as to break away from that arrangement, we will be obliged to go after you and the cream at St. Hilaire as same was pledged to us by the farmers at the meeting and we propose to have it whether it comes to us through you or some one else.

The people urging you to establish a churn-plant do not know what they are talking about and have not the interest of farming community at heart, or they would not advise the establishment of a market for cream that meant at least a cent and a half loss on every pound of fat sold you instead of us and it will only be a short time before the farmers themselves find this out and then you know the result as well as I do. If we are left to go after the cream in any other way than according to agreement made with you we will see to it that the country is filled with separator men and we will offer a price that will get the product from them, and after this thing has continued for a few months you will most certainly appreciate the fact that you did the wrong thing in breaking your agreement with us and wish you were with us instead of against us.

I have gone over the matter at length that you may understand just the proposition that confronts you and hope that you will grasp the point and receive same in the same spirit of friendship and fairness it is written and not as a threat as it might be construed as that is not the intention and only outline the matter in this way that you may see where you are at.

Our Mr. Sorenson, of Fargo, who has charge of this territory will hunt you up about the middle of next week and arrange all details with you to carry out our agreement or find out that you will not do so and proceed to lay our plans to go after the business in other ways. I would be pleased to have you write me personally at Minneapolis informing me what you desire to do.

Hoping there is nothing in these reports and that we may do a lot of business in future to the pleasure and profit of all concerned.

I remain, Very truly yours,
FRANK R. BRASIE.

ST. HILAIRE, MINN., FEB. 15, '02.
ED. SPECTATOR.

The accompanying letter would seem to imply that I had entered into a definite agreement with Mr. Brasie to buy cream for the Minneapolis Cold Storage Co., at this point. Mr. Brasie and myself talked the matter over and Mr. Brasie agreed to send a contract to meet for my approval and signature providing the same was satisfactory to me. Up to date I have not received such contract and do not and have not at any time considered myself in any way bound to do business for the Minneapolis Cold Storage Co.

PETER E. LAUBY.

Births And Deaths During 1901.

From the records kept by the Health Officer of St. Hilaire we are furnished with the following figures showing the number of births and deaths which occurred in this village during the year 1901.

The total number of births for the year was twenty-eight. Of this number seventeen were females and eleven males, making a majority of six in favor of the females.

The number of deaths was twelve, and the causes are assigned as follows: Convulsions, four; capillary bronchitis, one; Bright's disease, complicated by uraemia, one; insanity, one; mastoiditis complicated by basilar meningitis; one; drowning, one; whooping-cough, one; unknown cause, one.

Of the above twelve deaths only four patients were attended by any physician.

Helen Keller's First Earnings.

There is a pretty story in connection with the series of articles which Helen Keller the wonderful blind girl, has written for The Ladies' Home Journal, telling about her own life from infancy to the present day. She always has shrunk from the publicity which follows successful literary work, and it was with great difficulty that she was persuaded to take up the task of preparing her autobiography. She had however, set heart on owning an island in Halifax harbor for a summer home, and in a spirit of fun the editor of The Journal offered to buy it for her, or to provide the means to buy it. When the work of writing appeared especially irksome Miss Keller was reminded of her desire to become a land-holder, and it spurred her on. Just before Christmas she completed the first chapter of her marvelous story; and on Christmas morning she received from her publishers a check for a good round sum. Her delight may be imagined, for this was the first money of any account which she had ever earned. "It is a fairy tale come true," she said. Whether she will really carry out her plan to buy the island remains to be seen.

Fatherless Children in Japan.

Japan has only one orphanage, yet in no other land are fatherless children better cared for. Every family cares for the sick, destitute or orphans nearest to it. There is a superstition that a childless house is accursed, and people who are not blessed with children of their own never rest till they have adopted some waif.

Oranges.

Oranges are a most valuable fruit. Orange juice allays thirst and with few exceptions is well borne by the weakest stomach. It is also a laxative, and if taken at night or before breakfast it will be found most beneficial.—Ladies' Home Journal.

If He Wins.

"That eastern cashier speculated."

"And of course was unsuccessful."

"Why do you jump to that conclusion?"

"Because they don't call it speculation when the cashier wins."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Queering a Rival.

"If you've got a rival in the sweetheart business," remarked the Freckled Fanatic, "you never want to knock him. What you want to do is to boost, boost and keep on boosting until she gets so tired of hearing you sing his praises that she hates him."—Indianapolis Sun.

His Whereabouts.

"Do you happen to know anything of your master's whereabouts?" asked a wife who was looking for her husband.

"I'm not sure, mem," said the careful servant, "but I think they're in the wash."

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

Matilda's Mutiny

By Sara Lindsay Coleman

COPYRIGHT, 1902, BY DAILY STORY PUBLISHING COMPANY

Polly Fox, who six months before had gladly left the village's ever increasing sisterhood of spinsters to become the wife of the Reverend Mr. Fox and mother to the little and big Foxes, said to her husband, as Matilda, tall and trim, swung down the village street at a pace that comes from strength:

"It's plum scan'lous—she's got on a short skirt an' her hair down her back. It's her birthday an' she ain't done a lick o' work to-day. Jes' left it all for her mar an' Mary. Sed she'd been slavin' ten year, sence she come home from college, an' she intended havin' a day off. They done a bad thing for her when they sent her to college. She got quare notions an' has flouted every man in the village. I don't reckon she'll flout any more."

Matilda left the village behind her and plunged into a near wood. She flung herself full length on the ground and lay there motionless. Life had brought her nothing of what she had dreamed.

There was a flash of moving color and a burst of song in the silent wood; below, the river roared and tumbled in its eager seaward rush. June lay on the wide, wonderful mountains—June, with its glory of color, its abundant young life; and the June time which lives in the souls of unwed women was in Matilda. The June time! It revolted at life and death in a country village; it scorned the spinsters with their sharp tongues, their sagging shoulders and sagging hips, their dull-hued lives of toil.

Suddenly Matilda got to her feet and began heaping up the earth into a mound; she worked industriously and when she tossed back the heavy braid of hair that had slipped over her shoulder she laughed—a reckless laugh.

"It's almost amusing," she said.

"If I were in the secret I am sure I would agree with you." The voice was not far off that had spoken the words.

Matilda turned with the air of an insulted princess. The short skirt, the braided hair accentuated the youthful look.

"This," she said, haughtily, "is a private wood."

"And I am on a fence," was the calm reply, "and beyond is the king's highway."

Matilda gave the stranger a grave looking over but he stood unflinchingly.

"The ceremony was about completed," she spoke more graciously, "the song comes next." She threw back her head and sang in a clear, fresh voice, "How tedious and tasteless the hours." At the end of the first line she stopped and laughed.

"You are putting away the dolls and playthings of life?" the man asked.

"I found that the dolls were sawdust and put them away twenty-five years ago." This in a disdainful tone.

"What an ancient you are," said the man.

"Yes," humbly.

The man got down from the fence and came over to Matilda.

"What did you bury there?" he asked, indicating the mound.

"My youth," she spoke defiantly.

"Ye gods!" the man burst into laughter.

Matilda came a little nearer.

"You are a southerner and a gentleman," she said. "I know from your voice and your eyes. I'm celebrating. It's my birthday. At first I wept. You should have seen the glances that followed me down the street. I know how their tongues wagged when they saw my hair down my back; they all know that I am thirty."

"Well," said the man, "what if you are! I've known women of thirty who were much nicer than white-muslined, blue-ribboned, giggling girls."

"Out there," with a comprehensive sweep of her hand that took in the world beyond the blue circle of mountains; "here," she pointed to the village church spire that cut the blue reach of sky, "a woman's life ends at thirty, if she's unwed. She is a personal grievance to every man and woman in the village, and as long as there's a breath in her body they feel responsible for her and try to marry her off. It's bad enough when a new man comes into the community; it's shivery when a man's left a widower—oh, how I hate widowers!" She made a gesture of despair.

"What did you bury there?"

"You might try suicide," the man suggested.

"I've thought of it," said Matilda, darkly.

They looked at each other. The sun filtering through the trees flung coins of gold at their feet.

"It's my birthday," the man spoke slowly. "We might celebrate together; we might have one last day of youth."

A sudden wistfulness shone in Matilda's eyes, but she shook her head.

"It would be the one delicious, isolated impropriety of your life."

She looked at him doubtfully.

"You've let the band go down the other street all your days?"

"Yes," pensively.

"You have done the things you hate and left undone the things you'd love to do."

"How did you know?" she asked.

He trampled the grave she had made—the grave that held her youth and pointed to the water below, where a boat rocked softly.

"Come," he said.

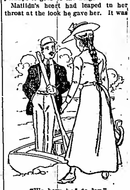
Matilda moved slowly from him in the direction of the church spire.

"The music," murmured the man impressively, "is going down the other street."

"Where are we going?" asked Matilda. She had stepped into the boat.

"To a land of mutual discovery," he said gayly. "It leads through winding paths; perhaps it returns to the level; perhaps it goes to the heights——"

Matilda's heart had leaped to her throat at the look he gave her. It was a strange proceeding for so aged a heart that had put aside all youthful follies.



"We have had to-day."

The boat moved slowly; the river swept away into the forest's depths.

Their laughter was the spontaneous laughter of two who find content in each other's presence; their silence held no estrangement.

A purple mist settled on the blue mountains that belted the distance; from some near hill, a milkmaid's call floated. The knolls above them were massed in bloom. A deep sweet happiness filled the woman's soul. It was but just that life out of its fullness should have given her this one last day of youth.

The boat turned homeward. The sun, a ball of fire, was dropping behind a far mountain peak. It was dragging her off to a dream country from which she would wake in a shiver. Alas, that from dreams the dreamers awake. But the boat crept on—in the perfumed gloom the laurel crowned hills were white. It was still a dream. A school girl dream come true. A castle built on lonely evenings when the wind had shivered and the thoughts were long, long thoughts—a castle turned to gleaming marble.

The boat touched the landing. For an instant the man felt the pressure of her light weight; then she stood beside him on the river bank.

"Good-by," said Matilda. She held out her hand; her eyes had a strange sweetness—the sweetness of a joy relinquished at birth, laid reverently away with her one day of youth.

"Good-by," she faltered, "it grows late."

"Good-by?" the man said, puzzled. Then he laughed down into her eyes, "Good-by until tomorrow."

"We have had to-day," said Matilda.

"And will have to-morrow." The man's boat shot out into the stream.

Matilda climbed the hill that led to the village—the dreary village. And in the west where the day was fast dying the star that comes first to the waiting sky glowed.

The Indian and the Spectacles.

The Holton Recorder tells an amusing story of an Indian from the Pottowatomie Reservation who visited an oculist in Holton to get a pair of glasses. The oculist seated him, and went through the usual tests with printed cards, eliciting from his customer but little comment as he tried on the different lenses. At last, when the oculist was almost in despair, the Indian pulled a couple of dice from his pocket, threw them on the floor, snapped his fingers as he grunted, "Come seven!" and then smiled all over his fat face when he found he could distinguish the spots readily. And the lesson seems to be that even the unphilosophic red man has grasped the immortal truth that the price of success is painstaking attention to matter of equipment.

Gold Coast Expedition.

A special expedition, under Dr. Charles Balfour Stewart, has just been sent by the Liverpool School of Tropical Science to the Gold Coast and to the gold mining districts of that colony, to conduct a series of operations there (largely the suppression of the mosquito), with a view to improve the condition of health and sanitation. Dr. Stewart was to have sailed for Cape Coast Castle on November 16, but his departure had to be delayed, as the municipal authorities of Liverpool requisitioned his services to deal with an outbreak of plague in the city. The lines on which Dr. Balfour Stewart will proceed will be similar, so far as possible, to those now being followed by the Sierra Leone expedition of the Liverpool School under Dr. Logan Taylor.

WHY HE HAD NERVES.

Harvard Student's Excuse for Delaying the Dentist's Work.

"A dentist's chair is not a popular retreat," says a practitioner, "but I occasionally find persons who like to linger. I have just finished a job for a youngster who is a Harvard freshman. He came in the day after Christmas, and contracted to have his teeth fixed, but said that hard study had undermined his nerves, and he could only stand two sittings a week. He looked as healthy and hearty as an ox, but I did not mind. Three days ago his father dropped in and asked:

"'Doctor, can't you hurry up on Fred's teeth?'

"'Certainly,' said I, 'if his nervous system will stand it. He said it made him nervous, and that he could only stand it twice a week.'

"'Nervous system be blanked!' shouted the old man. 'At home Fred said that twice a week was all the time you could give him. He is playing his teeth to put two weeks more on his vacation.'

"I finished that job in the next twenty-four hours, and the young man did not have a grin coming to him after the first five minutes in the chair."

She Was Too Sharp.

"John," said Mrs. Newliwed, "that corner grocer is dishonest."

"Tried to cheat you, did he?" replied her husband.

"He just did. I asked him for salmon, and he offered me a can with a blue label. As if I didn't know salmon-color when I see it."—Philadelphia Press.

BEAUTIFUL WOMEN WHO ENDORSE PERUNA.

Miss Lenore Allen, 407 Dowell Street, San Francisco, Cal., writes:

"I consider Peruna an infallible remedy for catarrhal diseases. For several years I have been troubled with influenza, especially during our rainy season. I used to catch cold so easily that I was afraid to be out when the weather was the least bit inclement, or in the evening air. But since I have used Peruna I have nothing whatever the matter with me.

"I am in perfect health, and find that Peruna acts as a tonic, and seems to throw all sickness and disease out of the body. I go anywhere now and in all kinds of weather, seem to have an iron constitution and enjoy life because I enjoy perfect health." LENORE ALLEN.

Miss Mattie Douglass, 138 Thomas Ave., Memphis, Tenn., writes:

"From my early womanhood I have been troubled with occasional headaches. I took different powders and drugs, at times getting temporary relief. One of my friends advised me to try Peruna, which I did. I soon found that my general health improved, and my entire system was toned up.

"I felt a buoyancy of body and lightness of mind I had not known before, and my headaches have entirely disappeared, and I have enjoyed perfect health for over a year. I gladly endorse Peruna."

MATTIE DOUGLASS.

Women from all parts of the United States and Canada are testifying daily to the virtue of Peruna. Only a few of these letters can ever be published. Write for a book of testimonials, of the cures Peruna has made.

Peruna Makes Clean, Healthy Mucous Membranes — Catarrhal Diseases Disappear Permanently.

The mucous membrane is to the inside of the body what the skin is to the outside of the body. It lines every organ, duct and cavity. Catarrhal inflammation attacking one part is liable to spread to other parts. A neglected cold or slight catarrh is often the cause of lingering and dangerous catarrh.

Women are naturally more susceptible to inclemencies of the weather than men. With them a cold is often the starting point of some severe pelvic derangement, causing much pain and suffering.

Every woman needs a remedy upon which she can rely to keep her system fortified against the trying weather of winter and early spring. If Peruna is taken at the first symptom of a cold it will cure it before it develops into some annoying catarrhal derangement.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, Ohio.

WOMAN'S GENTLE NATURE CALLS FOR GENTLE TREATMENT

Delicately formed and gently reared, women will find, in all the seasons of their lives, as maids or wives or mothers, that the one simple, wholesome remedy which acts gently and pleasantly and naturally, and which may be used with truly beneficial effects, under any conditions, when the system needs a laxative—is—Syrup of Figs. It is well known to be a simple combination of the laxative and carminative principles of plants with pleasant, aromatic liquids, which are agreeable and refreshing to the taste and acceptable to the system when its gentle cleansing is desired.

Many of the ills from which women suffer are of a transient nature and do not come from any organic trouble and it is pleasant to know that they yield so promptly to the beneficial effects of Syrup of Figs, but when anything more than a laxative is needed it is best to consult the family physician and to avoid the old-time cathartics and loudly advertised nostrums of the present day. When one needs only to remove the strain, the torpor, the congestion, or similar ills, which attend upon a constipated condition of the system, use the true and gentle remedy—Syrup of Figs—and enjoy freedom from the depression, the aches and pains, colds and headaches, which are due to inactivity of the bowels.

Only those who buy the genuine Syrup of Figs can hope to get its beneficial effects and as a guarantee of the excellence of the remedy the full name of the company—California Fig Syrup Co.—is printed on the front of every package and without it any preparation offered as Syrup of Figs is fraudulent and should be declined. To those who know the quality of this excellent laxative, the offer of any substitute, when Syrup of Figs is called for, is always resented by a transfer of patronage to some first-class drug establishment, where they do not recommend, nor sell false brands, nor imitation remedies. The genuine article may be bought of all reliable druggists everywhere at 50 cents per bottle.

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

Matilda's Mutiny

By Sara Lindsay Coleman

COPYRIGHT, 1902, BY DAILY STORY PUBLISHING COMPANY

Polly Fox, who six months before had gladly left the village's ever increasing sisterhood of spinsters to become the wife of the Reverend Mr. Fox and mother to the little and big Foxes, said to her husband, as Matilda, tall and trim, swung down the village street at a pace that comes from strength:

"It's plum scan'lous—she's got on a short skirt an' her hair down her back. It's her birthday an' she ain't done a lick o' work to-day. Jes' left it all for her mar an' Mary. Sed she'd been slavin' ten year, sence she come home from college, an' she intended havin' a day off. They done a bad thing for her when they sent her to college. She got quare notions an' has flouted every man in the village. I don't reckon she'll flout any more."

Matilda left the village behind her and plunged into a near wood. She flung herself full length on the ground and lay there motionless. Life had brought her nothing of what she had dreamed.

There was a flash of moving color and a burst of song in the silent wood; below, the river roared and tumbled in its eager seaward rush. June lay on the wide, wonderful mountains—June, with its glory of color, its abundant young life; and the June time which lives in the souls of unwed women was in Matilda. The June time! It revolted at life and death in a country village; it scorned the spinsters with their sharp tongues, their sagging shoulders and sagging hips, their dull-hued lives of toil.

Suddenly Matilda got to her feet and began heaping up the earth into a mound; she worked industriously and when she tossed back the heavy braid of hair that had slipped over her shoulder she laughed—a reckless laugh.

"It's almost amusing," she said.

"If I were in the secret I am sure I would agree with you." The voice was not far off that had spoken the words.

Matilda turned with the air of an insulted princess. The short skirt, the braided hair accentuated the youthful look.

"This," she said, haughtily, "is a private wood."

"And I am on a fence," was the calm reply, "and beyond is the king's highway."

Matilda gave the stranger a grave looking over but he stood unflinchingly.

"The ceremony was about completed," she spoke more graciously, "the song comes next." She threw back her head and sang in a clear, fresh voice, "How tedious and tasteless the hours." At the end of the first line she stopped and laughed.

"You are putting away the dolls and playthings of life?" the man asked.

"I found that the dolls were sawdust and put them away twenty-five years ago." This in a disdainful tone.

"What an ancient you are," said the man.

"Yes," humbly.

The man got down from the fence and came over to Matilda.

"What did you bury there?" he asked, indicating the mound.

"My youth," she spoke defiantly.

"Ye gods!" the man burst into laughter.

Matilda came a little nearer.

"You are a southerner and a gentleman," she said, "I know from your voice and your eyes. I'm celebrating. It's my birthday. At first I wept. You should have seen the glances that followed me down the street. I know how their tongues wagged when they saw my hair down my back; they all know that I am thirty."

"Well," said the man, "what if you are! I've known women of thirty who were much nicer than white-muslined, blue-ribboned, giggling girls."

"Out there," with a comprehensive sweep of her hand that took in the world beyond the blue circle of mountains; "here," she pointed to the village church spire that cut the blue reach of sky, "a woman's life ends at thirty, if she's unwed. She is a personal grievance to every man and woman in the village, and as long as there's breath in her body they feel responsible for her and try to marry her off. It's bad enough when a new man comes into the community; it's shivery when a man's left a widower—oh, how I hate widowers!" She made a gesture of despair.

"What did you bury there?"

"You might try suicide," the man suggested.

"I've thought of it," said Matilda, darkly.

They looked at each other. The sun filtering through the trees flung coins of gold at their feet.

"It's my birthday," the man spoke slowly. "We might celebrate together; we might have one last day of youth."

A sudden wistfulness shone in Matilda's eyes, but she shook her head.

"It would be the one delicious, isolated impropriety of your life."

She looked at him doubtfully.

"You've let the band go down the other street all your days?"

"Yes," pensively.

"You have done the things you hate and left undone the things you'd love to do."

"How did you know?" she asked.

He trampled the grave she had made—the grave that held her youth and pointed to the water below, where a boat rocked softly.

"Come," he said.

Matilda moved slowly from him in the direction of the church spire.

"The music," murmured the man impressively, "is going down the other street."

"Where are we going?" asked Matilda. She had stepped into the boat.

"To a land of mutual discovery," he said gayly. "It leads through winding paths; perhaps it returns to the level; perhaps it goes to the heights——"

Matilda's heart had leaped to her throat at the look he gave her. It was a strange proceeding for so aged a heart that had put aside all youthful follies.

"We have had to-day."

The boat moved slowly; the river swept away into the forest's depths.

Their laughter was the spontaneous laughter of two who find content in each other's presence; their silence held no estrangement.

A purple mist settled on the blue mountains that bolted the distance; from some near hill, a milkmaid's call floated. The knowls above them were massed in bloom. A deep sweet happiness filled the woman's soul. It was but just that life out of its fullness should have given her this one last day of youth.

The boat turned homeward. The sun, a ball of fire, was dropping behind a far mountain peak. It was dragging her off to a dream country from which she would wake in a shiver. Alas, that from dreams the dreamers awake. But the boat crept on—in the perfumed gloom the laurel crowned hills were white. It was still a dream. A school girl dream come true. A castle built on lonely evenings when the wind had shivered and the thoughts were long, long thoughts—a castle turned to gleaming marble.

The boat touched the landing. For an instant the man felt the pressure of her light weight; then she stood beside him on the river bank.

"Good-by," said Matilda. She held out her hand; her eyes had a strange sweetness—the sweetness of a joy relinquished at birth, laid reverently away with her one day of youth.

"Good-by," she faltered, "it grows late."

"Good-by?" the man said, puzzled. Then he laughed down into her eyes, "Good-by until tomorrow."

"We have had to-day," said Matilda.

"And will have to-morrow." The man's boat shot out into the stream.

Matilda climbed the hill that led to the village—the dreary village. And in the west where the sky was fast dying the star that comes first to the waiting sky glowed.

The Indian and the Spectacles.

The Holton Recorder tells an amusing story of an Indian from the Pottawatomie Reservation who visited an oculist in Holton to get a pair of glasses. The oculist seated him, and went through the usual tests with printed cards, eliciting from his customer but little comment as he tried on the different lenses. At last, when the oculist was almost in despair, the Indian pulled a couple of dice from his pocket, threw them on the floor, snapped his fingers as he grunted, "Come seven!" and then smiled all over his fat face when he found he could distinguish the spots readily. And the lesson seems to be that even the unphilosophic red man has grasped the immortal truth that the price of success is painstaking attention to matter of equipment.

Gold Coast Expedition.

A special expedition, under Dr. Charles Balfour Stewart, has just been sent by the Liverpool School of Tropical Science to the Gold Coast and to the gold mining districts of that colony, to conduct a series of operations there (largely the suppression of the mosquito), with a view to improve the condition of health and sanitation. Dr. Stewart was to have sailed for Cape Coast Castle on November 16, but his departure had to be delayed, as the municipal authorities of Liverpool requisitioned his services to deal with an outbreak of plague in the city. The lines on which Dr. Balfour Stewart will proceed will be similar, so far as possible, to those now being followed by the Sierra Leone expedition of the Liverpool School under Dr. Logan Taylor.

WHY HE HAD NERVES.

Harvard Student's Excuse for Delaying the Dentist's Work.

"A dentist's chair is not a popular retreat," says a practitioner, "but I occasionally find persons who like to linger. I have just finished a job for a youngster who is a Harvard freshman. He came in the day after Christmas, and contracted to have his teeth fixed, but said that hard study had undermined his nerves, and he could only stand two sittings a week. He looked as healthy and hearty as an ox, but I did not mind. Three days ago his father dropped in and asked:

"'Doctor, can't you hurry up on Fred's teeth?'

"'Certainly,' said I, 'if his nervous system will stand it. He said it made him nervous, and that he could only stand it twice a week.'

"'Nervous system be blanked!' shouted the old man. 'At home Fred said that twice a week was all the time you could give him. He is playing his teeth to put two weeks more on his vacation.'

"I finished that job in the next twenty-four hours, and the young man did not have a grin coming to him after the first five minutes in the chair."

BEAUTIFUL WOMEN WHO ENDORSE PERUNA.

MISS MATTIE DOUGLASS.
MISS LENORE ALLEN.

Miss Lenore Allen, 407 Dowell Street, San Francisco, Cal., writes:

"I consider Peruna an infallible remedy for catarrhal diseases. For several years I have been troubled with influenza, especially during our rainy season. I used to catch cold so easily that I was afraid to be out when the weather was the least bit inclement, or in the evening air. But since I have used Peruna I have nothing whatever the matter with me.

"I am in perfect health, and find that Peruna acts as a tonic, and seems to throw all sickness and disease out of the body. I go anywhere now and in all kinds of weather, seem to have an iron constitution and enjoy life because I enjoy perfect health." LENORE ALLEN.

Miss Mattie Douglass, 133 Thomas Ave., Memphis, Tenn., writes:

"From my early womanhood I have been troubled with occasional headaches. I took different powders and drugs, at times getting temporary relief. One of my friends advised me to try Peruna, which I did. I soon found that my general health improved, and my entire system was toned up.

"I felt a buoyancy of body and lightness of mind I had not known before, and my headaches has entirely disappeared, and I have enjoyed perfect health for over a year. I gladly endorse Peruna."

MATTIE DOUGLASS.

Women from all parts of the United States and Canada are testifying daily to the virtue of Peruna. Only a few of these letters can ever be published. Write for a book of testimonials, of the cures Peruna has made.

Peruna Makes Clean, Healthy Mucous Membranes — Catarrhal Diseases Disappear Permanently.

The mucous membrane is to the inside of the body what the skin is to the outside of the body. It lines every organ, duct and cavity. Catarrhal inflammation attacking one part is liable to spread to other parts. A neglected cold or slight catarrh is often the cause of lingering and dangerous catarrh.

Women are naturally more susceptible to inclemencies of the weather than men. With them a cold is often the starting point of some severe pelvic derangement, causing much pain and suffering.

Every woman needs a remedy upon which she can rely to keep her system fortified against the trying weather of winter and early spring. If Peruna is taken at the first symptom of a cold it will cure it before it develops into some annoying catarrhal derangement.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

WOMAN'S GENTLE NATURE CALLS FOR GENTLE TREATMENT

Delicately formed and gently reared, women will find, in all the seasons of their lives, as maids or wives or mothers, that the one simple, wholesome remedy which acts gently and pleasantly and naturally, and which may be used with truly beneficial effects, under any conditions, when the system needs a laxative—is—Syrup of Figs. It is well known to be a simple combination of the laxative and carminative principles of plants with pleasant, aromatic liquids, which are agreeable and refreshing to the taste and acceptable to the system when its gentle cleansing is desired.

Many of the ills from which women suffer are of a transient nature and do not come from any organic trouble and it is pleasant to know that they yield so promptly to the beneficial effects of Syrup of Figs, but when anything more than a laxative is needed it is best to consult the family physician and to avoid the old-time cathartics and loudly advertised nostrums of the present day. When one needs only to remove the strain, the torpor, the congestion, or similar ills, which attend upon a constipated condition of the system, use the true and gentle remedy—Syrup of Figs—and enjoy freedom from the depression, the aches and pains, colds and headaches, which are due to inactivity of the bowels.

Only those who buy the genuine Syrup of Figs can hope to get its beneficial effects and as a guarantee of the excellence of the remedy the full name of the company—California Fig Syrup Co.—is printed on the front of every package and without it any preparation offered as Syrup of Figs is fraudulent and should be declined. To those who know the quality of this excellent laxative, the offer of any substitute, when Syrup of Figs is called for, is always resented by a transfer of patronage to some first-class drug establishment, where they do not recommend, nor sell false brands, nor imitation remedies. The genuine article may be bought of all reliable druggists everywhere at 50 cents per bottle.

CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO.

CAPSICUM VASELINE

A substitute for and superior to mustard or any other plaster, and will not blister the most delicate skin. The pain-allaying and curative qualities of this article are wonderful. It will stop the toothache at once, and relieve headache and sciatica. We recommend it as the best and safest external counter-irritant known, also as an external remedy for pains in the chest and stomach and all rheumatic, neuralgic and gouty complaints. A trial will prove what we claim for it, and it will be found to be invaluable in the household. Many people say "it is the best of all of your preparations." Price 15 cents, at all druggists or other dealers, or by sending this amount to us in postage stamps we will send you a tube by mail. No article should be accepted by the public unless the same carries our label, as otherwise it is not genuine. CHESEBROUGH MFG. CO.

A STORY OF FORREST.

How the Peppery Actor Squared Accounts With One Critic.

Many years ago Edwin Forrest, the celebrated actor, when in New York, was in the habit of dining at Windust's, a noted restaurant on Park row that was a favorite resort of actors and literary men. It usually happened that Forrest would be joined by friends and that the little group would sit together at one table. On one occasion it chanced that an Englishman with a reputation for conceit and impertinence, who had scraped acquaintance with the tragedian, was one of the group.

Early in the course of the dinner the Englishman began to make criticisms which he considered pleasantries about Forrest's conception of certain roles. Encouraged by his own appreciation he gave full play to his humor and concluded each of his impertinences with, "Pardon my freedom, sir; it's my way."

To the astonishment of all who knew Forrest's irascible disposition he bore the Briton's offensive remarks patiently and seemingly ignored them as far as possible. When, however, the nuts were brought in by the waiter, he took several cracked walnuts in his hand and, walking over to the Briton's place, jocularly snapped them successively in the face of that individual, lightly saying after each shot, "Pardon my freedom, sir; it's my way," and snapped him out of the restaurant.

Gruesome Football Legend.

Where did football originate? Some people give ancient Chester, in England, credit for bringing the great winter pastime into existence. There is a record of football playing in that city in the year 1540, but Chestrians believe in a legend of much earlier

HOCH DER PRINCE

KAISER'S BROTHER IS MOST CORDIALLY WELCOMED AT NEW YORK.

ARRIVES JUST ONE DAY LATE

ADMIRAL EVANS EXTENDS NATION'S GREETING TO ROYAL GUEST.

CANNON BOOM, WHISTLES SHRIEK

IMMENSE CROWDS SHOUT WELCOME TO GERMANY'S SAILOR PRINCE.

New York, Feb. 24.—Prince Henry of Prussia, representative of his brother, the emperor of Germany, at the launching of the latter's American-built yacht, reached New York yesterday and was cordially welcomed as the guest of the nation. The land batteries that guard the outer harbor sounded the first greeting in a ponderous salute of twenty-one guns, the rifles of a special naval squadron assembled in his honor reechoed the sentiment; there were verbal greetings from the representatives of President Roosevelt, the army, the navy, and the city of New York, and a great crowd lined the way into the city to see and cheer the sailor prince of Germany.

The great storm against which the Kron Prinz Wilhelm had struggled for days, and which had glazed the Atlantic coast in an armor of ice, had lost its force and resigned its sway to warm sunshine and cheery blue skies so that there were no regrets that the royal guest was a full day late for the entertainment prepared for him. The genius of Marconi, reaching out from the storm-swept coast, had definitely located the belated liner and made certain the hour that she would reach Sandy Hook. There was a curtain off the Hook early yesterday morning and it was after 9 o'clock before the watchers caught the shadowy outlines of the cautiously approaching liner.

Evans Shows Up.

Rear Admiral Evans, commander of the special squadron and honorary aide to the prince, left the flagship Illinois at 9:40 o'clock in the naval tug Nina. With him were Capt. G. A. Converse, his chief of staff; Flag Lieut. Frederick Chapin, Ensign Frank T. Evans, aide, and Capt. von Rebeur Paschwitz, naval attache at the Washington embassy of the German government. They were all in full dress uniform. The Nina met the Kron Prinz beyond Fort Wadsworth and swung around to the starboard side of the liner, steaming up the bay. Prince Henry, attired in the uniform of an admiral of the German navy and surrounded by his naval and military staff in brilliant uniform, stood on the bridge of the liner. As the naval tug drew nearer the side of the steamship Prince Henry and Admiral Evans caught sight of each other and exchanged informal salutes. The distance from the steamer to the tug was too far for conversation, however. As the two vessels with a flotilla of tugs and official craft moved in past Fort Wadsworth the first of the salutes of twenty-one guns was fired. As the first gun sounded the prince advanced to the end of the bridge of the Kron Prinz Wilhelm and stood at attention. As he passed the big American flag floating over the fortifications he and the members of his suite did likewise. The flag at the jackstaff of the Kron Prinz was dipped and the German naval band accompanying the prince played "The Star-Spangled Banner." The guns of Fort Wadsworth were not silent before those across the Narrows at Fort Hamilton boomed out their salute. When that ceremony was over the Kron Prinz was stopped and the Nina hauled around to her port side and Admiral Evans and his staff boarded. The passengers were gathered on the main deck and there was a hearty cheer as the admiral came up the gangway.

Touched His Cap in Salute

Admiral Evans was escorted forward at once and in the quarters of Capt. A. Richter, master of the Kron Prinz Wilhelm, he and the prince met. The prince came forward and, taking the hand of the naval officer, shook it warmly.

"I am very glad to see you, sir," said the admiral. "Everybody in the United States is waiting to welcome you. It is my pleasure, sir, to formally greet you on their behalf."

"I thank you, sir, and through you, the people of your country," responded the prince. "I am very glad to be here and on this splendid day. The emperor directed me to convey his compliments to you, admiral, and I do so with very great pleasure."

Admiral Evans expressed gratification at the thoughtfulness of the emperor.

Prince Is Saluted.

After a brief halt the liner moved ahead and at 10:50 was abreast of the special squadron off Tompkinsville. The German standard was run to the foretop of the Kron Prinz and its appearance gave signal to the American fleet to salute. The San Francisco, Cincinnati, Olympia and Illinois lay in perfect alignment in the order named and made an attractive picture with their crews manning sides, turrets and tops. They raised the German naval standard and then opened blank fire. The prince stood at attention on the bridge and back of him were Admiral Evans and his staff and the numerous suite of the German visitor. The prince and his staff were especially interested in the Illinois and Olympia, and offered warm congratulations to the American admiral on the splendid appearance of his squadron. The prince said he was very anxious to visit the squadron and that he would do this at the earliest moment.

New York and its surroundings have rarely shown to greater advantage than yesterday in the sunlight, with the added brightness that came from the glistening coating of snow, and the royal visitor did not leave the bridge during the run up the bay. He said that he was at least gratifying an old ambition in visiting New York, and asked that the points of interest be shown him and the geographical bearings explained.

Great Crowds Greet Him.

The first of the large crowds was met at the battery, and from there on up to Recreation Pier, where the largest crowd of all had gathered, every pier to which admission was not denied was partly filled. The number of river craft also increased and the welcome was a noisy one.

Prince Henry disembarked at 12:55 p. m., at that moment walking down the decorated gangway from the Kron Prinz Wilhelm into the elaborately decorated pier. He then passed through an ornamental gangway and arch to the gangplank of the Hohenzollern, which had been decorated in the German colors and was covered half its length. The prince was met at the bottom of the gangplank by Admiral von Baudissin, commander of the Hohenzollern, and his officers.

The first of his callers to arrive after he had boarded the Hohenzollern was Gen. Brooke, U. S. A., accompanied by two aides. Admiral Barker and his aide, Capt. West, representing the United States navy, followed, and then came the German ambassador at Washington and his brilliantly attired suite of military and naval attaches and secretaries, and the military attache of the German embassy at Mexico, Lieut. Bartles. Following the German ambassador came the

of the president of the United States headed by Dr. Hill, first assistant secretary of state, and including Gen. Corbin, Col. Bingham and Commander Cowles, the brother-in-law of the president.

Capt. Nathan Sargent then called on the prince as special representative of Admiral Dewey. The captain said that he had been sent by the admiral especially to express to the prince the admiral's regret at not being able to greet him personally, and to pay his respects. The list of callers was ended with the mayor's party, which included himself and his private secretary. The German consul general at New York and his suite formed a part of the German ambassador's party.

About an hour was spent by the prince in receiving his callers and in making an admiral's inspection of the troops and crew of the Hohenzollern. Then followed a lunch.

The prince invited to this luncheon those among the Americans among his callers who represented the navy, and besides these there were at the board the members of the prince's suites and members of the German embassy in Washington.

The prince boarded the tug Nina at 3:30 to repay his calls. He was accompanied by one aide and Admiral Evans and Ensigns Evans and Chapin.

Prince Henry gave a dinner last night on board the Hohenzollern. His guests were the German ambassador and suite, the German naval officers and the representatives of the United States army and navy.

In the evening the ships of Admiral Evans' squadron were brilliantly illuminated with electric lights.

Henry Attends a Reception.

Prince Henry last night attended a reception given in his honor by the Deutscher verein at the clubhouse of the organization. He was escorted through the streets from the dock where the Hohenzollern lies to the clubhouse by Squadron A of the national guard, and, attended by his suite, Rear Admiral von Baudissin and his officers and other guests. All the party were in carriages, while at the head of the line rode a detachment of mounted police. In the prince's carriage rode Rear Admiral Evans and Assistant Secretary of State Hill. On reaching the clubhouse the prince was received by President Rudolph Keppler and Vice President Otto T. Schuller. He was ushered into the reception room where were gathered 260 members of the club, with nearly as many more members of their families. The club rooms were handsomely decorated with palms, evergreens and cut flowers, while on one of the walls, on a background of the American colors, hung a portrait of the German emperor. At the special request of Prince Henry the club members and their families were presented to him.

After the reception the prince was driven to the ferry and crossed over to Jersey City, where he boarded a special train for Washington.

IS FREE AT LAST

MISS ELLEN STONE NO LONGER IN THE HANDS OF THE BRIGANDS.

RELEASED FOR SURE THIS TIME

AMERICAN BOARD RECEIVES CONFIRMATION OF THE STORY.

TO PROTECT THE INNOCENT

AMERICANS WILL NOT DIVULGE WHERE AND HOW RANSOM WAS PAID.

Constantinople, Feb. 24. — Miss Ellen M. Stone, the American missionary who, with Mme. Tsilka, was captured by brigands in the district of Salonika Sept. 3 last, has been released and arrived at Strumitza, Macedonia, at 3 o'clock yesterday morning.

Nobody was at Strumitza to meet Miss Stone, as the brigands had given no indication that they proposed to release the prisoners. Mme. Tsilka and her baby were also released at the same time. The first news of Miss Stone's release was contained in a telegram received by Mr. Dickinson, the American consul general at Constantinople, from the American vice consul at Salonica. The telegram gives no details of the release. As Strumitza is near the Salonika-Uskub railroad, Miss Stone will proceed to Salonika without delay.

Will Keep It Secret.

London, Feb. 24.—Cabling from Constantinople, the correspondent of the Daily Chronicle says he understands that, owing to the necessity of protecting the innocent persons who assisted them, the American delegates will never divulge where and how the ransom money for the release of Miss Stone was paid. The correspondent learns, however, that the ruse of filling up money bags with lead after the ransom had been paid, with a view to making it appear that the mission to pay the ransom had failed, was completely successful. It is practically certain that the ransom money goes to the Macedonian committee.

Miss Stone, continues the correspondent, is certainly innocent of any knowledge of the plot to kidnap her, but strong suspicions are entertained about some Bulgarians who accompanied her party, or remained behind.

News Is Confirmed.

Boston, Feb. 24.—Secretary Barton of the American board has received the following cablegram confirmatory of the Associated Press dispatch announcing the release of Miss Stone. It was dated Salonika and is unsigned:

"Both Miss Stone and Mme. Tsilka and child released from confinement in good physical condition and good spirits."

Secretary Barton regards this news as absolutely authentic, as the missionaries of the board had been given instructions to send no cablegrams based on mere reports, but to wait until positive information could be given.

ATTORNEY GENERAL PYLE DEAD.

South Dakota Chief Counsellor Fights Bravely for Life.

Huron, S. D., Feb. 24.—Attorney General John L. Pyle is dead. The last spark of life departed about midnight Saturday night after a tremendous fight with disease, covering a period of more than a month. Mr. Pyle was one of the leading attorneys of South Dakota. He had been home only a few days from attendance on the conference of governors and attorneys general at Helena, Mont., in relation to the railroad merger about the first of January, when he was stricken with typhoid fever. His strong constitution gave assurance to his friends that there was no occasion for alarm. The fever ran its course, and the danger was thought passed, but his heart was weakened so that during the last few days hopes of his recovery had been abandoned.

PANIC CAUSES LOSS OF LIFE.

Park Avenue Fire the Third Calamity of the Year.

New York, Feb. 24. — For the third time since New Year's day Park avenue was the scene of loss of human life. First was the collision in the New York Central tunnel at Forty-sixth street and Park avenue; second came the dynamite explosion in the rapid transit subway at Forty-first street, and the third, Saturday, was a fire which started in the Seventy-first regiment armory at Thirty-third street and then spread to the Park avenue hotel, where eighteen persons were killed and many injured. It was the worst hotel fire since the Windsor was destroyed. The fire was first seen at about 1:30 in the morning, in the armory, and in a remarkably short time that building was aflame from end to end. The firemen made their way as best they could through the streets, deep with slush, and did all possible to confine the fire to the armory; but after they had been at work nearly an hour the discovery was made that the hotel was crowded with guests. About the time the hotel was found to be on fire the lights went out and the corridors were filled with smoke. The guests, unable to find their way through the darkened hallway jumped from windows or ran directly into the flame-swept portions of the building. It is this fact that accounts for the large loss of life, although the hotel was not destroyed.

QUAKERS GET THE NEWS.

Communication With Philadelphia at Last Reopened.

Philadelphia, Feb. 24.—The Philadelphia newspapers at 7:35 o'clock last night, through the Associated Press came into direct telegraphic touch with the country at large for the first time since 4:10 p. m. Friday. This was accomplished through herculean efforts of the mechanical force of the Western Union Telegraph company in restoring to working condition a number of wires between Philadelphia and Wilmington, Del., which had been prostrated by the fierce sleet storm of Friday. The telegraph officials concentrated their efforts in closing this gap, which covers a distance of twenty-seven miles, as they realized that this would quickest establish communication with New York. This opened connection to Washington which city was in telegraphic communication with New York, via the circuitous route of Pittsburg, Chicago and Buffalo.

M'GOVERN WINS.

Knocks Out Sullivan in the Fifteenth Round.

Louisville, Ky., Feb. 24.—Terry McGovern defeated Dave Sullivan Saturday night in the arena of the Southern Athletic club after fifteen rounds of as desperate fighting as were ever seen in any ring. Sullivan was counted out and then sought to protest. From the first tap of the gong until the end it was slam-bang, hammer and tongs nearly every second, both men working away with all the energy they possessed. There has seldom been seen a battle where the issue was more in doubt. One round would favor Sullivan the next McGovern. Then Sullivan would come strong again and even things up once more. McGovern was after his man every second. In the majority of rounds he was on the aggressive. Sullivan put up a wonderful fight however, was game to the core.

CORTEZ IS CAPTURED.

Filipino Officer Discovered Raising Funds for the Insurrection.

Manila, Feb. 24—A force of native constabulary at Santa Cruz, province of Laguna, Luzon, has captured Cortez, second in command to the insurgent general, Malvar, and turned him over to the military authorities. Cortez was in fancied security in a suburb of Santa Cruz known as Alipit, and was raising funds for the insurrection. A friendly native informed Inspector Sorensen of this fact and the capture of Cortez followed.

Few insurgents remain in the provinces of Batangas and Laguna. Gen J. Franklin Bell has accomplished his intended purpose of ridding this district of insurgents, though for the present the civil commission consider it inadvisable to declare the provinces in condition to be pacified.

Bristol, Tenn., Feb. 24.—News comes from Russell county, Va., to the effect that while a sheriff's posse was endeavoring to capture George Relkins, a mountaineer who killed an aged negro man and for whose capture a reward of $200 had been offered, Relkins came face to face with Deputy Sheriff J. S Smith. Realizing his peril, Relkins fired quickly, killing Officer Smith. Others of the party heard the shot and hastened to the scene. They found Smith dead, with a bullet hole in his breast. Relkins had disappeared. A lynching is anticipated if Relkins is captured.

Mysterious Wreck.

New York, Feb. 24. — A two-masted schooner sailing in a northeasterly direction, was seen to capsize off the Atlantic Yacht club's moorings at Norton's Point. The United States government tug boat Scout, which was notified, set out, but on reaching the vessel half an hour later, found no signs of life on board, and the crew was unable to distinguish the name of the vessel.

Good Thing, After All.

Mr. Muchblest—Great Scott! This is too much. This makes the seventh time my wife has had twins.

Mr. Hoodoo—That's all right. Look at the advantage of it! By having them come in pairs like that, you've been able to avoid the unlucky number thirteen.—Harlem Life.

Puzzled by His Discovery.

At the table on an incoming liner on a recent trip, one of the first-cabin passengers found in an oyster one of the tiny seed-pearls which look almost exactly like bird-shot. Apparently, the formation of pearls was a mystery to him, for he examined the thing curiously, picked it up gingerly, and laid it on the tablecloth for further investigation. Now, it is a habit of cooks at sea to carry fish hooks in their pockets, and on this trip, by a curious coincidence, part of a small hook got caught in a beefsteak that was served to this particular passenger. As soon as his knife encountered the hard object, he started, picked it out carefully and laid it beside the other find on the cloth. Then he beckoned to the waiter and confidentially whispered in his ear:

"I don't want to be impertinent," he said, "but would you mind telling me why you shoot your oysters and why you catch your steaks with a hook and line?"—New York Evening Post.

Another Man Altogether.

Valley, Mo., Feb. 24th.—There is a man in this town who has undergone the most remarkable physical change in the last few months.

His name is Perry Nelson, and those who knew him but a short time ago are amazed at his present condition.

He had not been feeling well for some time, and suspecting that the trouble came from his kidneys, which he knew were not any too strong, he determined to try a kidney medicine.

Dodd's Kidney Pills were highly recommended, and Mr. Nelson began a treatment of them. He was rewarded by a complete restoration to vigorous good health. He says:

"I used six boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills and they have helped me a great deal. I feel like another man, and can recommend Dodd's Kidney Pills very highly."

Foul Air in Rooms.

The following, from a London paper, Science, shows the importance of securing pure air in dwelling apartments, especially in the evening:

"That the amount of oxygen in a room is decreased alarmingly by our methods of illumination, the following simple statements show: A man may exist for an hour in a fair-sized room hermetically sealed. If he has no light he has a lamp instead of a candle in that room with him, and his existence will be shortened by fifteen minutes. If he has a lamp instead of a candle, in order to make himself more comfortable with additional light, he would live only half an hour. If he had two good gas burners, he would scarcely have time to write his will, for he would not live more than five minutes."

A WESTERN CANADA FARMER.

SEVEN YEARS AGO HE HAD BUT $24; NOW HE HAS SEVENTY HEAD OF CATTLE.

This Is What a Couple of Eastern Farmers Learned When on a Recent Trip to Canada—Splendid Words About Saskatoon, Rosthern and Hague District Where They Will Locate

Messrs. J. E. Blum and J. Crumper of Manchester, Washtenaw County, Michigan, paid a visit to Alberta last summer and saw there a Mr. Shantz, one of the good old Pennsylvania stock, who had come recently—some seven years ago—from Ontario with $24 in his pocket. He has certainly prospered, as he now has over seventy head of cattle, has a good loghouse framed over; also a good barn, and in all respects looks a thrifty and well-to-do farmer. He had some good crops of oats and barley. After spending some days in Calgary and Edmonton they returned to Regina, Assiniboia, and looked around the country north to Lumsden and Balgonie, where the crops appeared very promising and heavy; continuing up the Regina and Long Lake road they came to Saskatoon on the crossing of the South Saskatchewan River. Of this district they say:

"The country here pleased us better than any we have seen. We drove out eighteen miles in a northwesterly direction through the Smith settlement. This is a wonderful district; the growth was splendid; all kinds of grains and roots were perfection. The older settlers had good buildings of all kinds and looked very prosperous; in fact, we came to the conclusion that we had found what we were looking for, a good country. While the nature of the soil changes and is in some parts light, in others stony, and again heavy, generally speaking it leaves nothing to be desired. Hay and water are also in abundance and wood can be found along the river slopes and islands. We have decided to locate there and shall certainly advise our friends to do likewise. We also trust that this report may have the effect of drawing the attention of land seekers to this district, and can honestly advise all such to locate there. They will find a good thing. As farmers ourselves, from a good district in Michigan, we have come to the conclusion that, properly farmed, western Canada will grow almost anything." HOCH DER PRINCE

KAISER'S BROTHER IS MOST CORDIALLY WELCOMED AT NEW YORK.

ARRIVES JUST ONE DAY LATE

ADMIRAL EVANS EXTENDS NATION'S GREETING TO ROYAL GUEST.

CANNON BOOM, WHISTLES SHRIEK

IMMENSE CROWDS SHOUT WELCOME TO GERMANY'S SAILOR PRINCE.

New York, Feb. 24.—Prince Henry of Prussia, representative of his brother, the emperor of Germany, at the launching of the latter's American-built yacht, reached New York yesterday and was cordially welcomed as the guest of the nation. The land batteries that guard the outer harbor sounded the first greeting in a ponderous salute of twenty-one guns, the rifles of a special naval squadron assembled in his honor reechoed the sentiment; there were verbal greetings from the representatives of President Roosevelt, the army, the navy, and the city of New York, and a great crowd lined the way into the city to see and cheer the sailor prince of Germany.

The great storm against which the Kron Prinz Wilhelm had struggled for days, and which had glazed the Atlantic coast in an armor of ice, had lost its force and resigned its sway to warm sunshine and cheery blue skies so that there were no regrets that the royal guest was a full day late for the entertainment prepared for him. The genius of Marconi, reaching out from the storm-swept coast, had definitely located the belated liner and made certain the hour that she would reach Sandy Hook. There was a curtain off the Hook early yesterday morning and it was after 9 o'clock before the watchers caught the shadowy outlines of the cautiously approaching liner.

Evans Shows Up.

Rear Admiral Evans, commander of the special squadron and honorary aide to the prince, left the flagship Illinois at 9:40 o'clock in the naval tug Nina. With him were Capt. G. A. Converse, his chief of staff; Flag Lieut. Frederick Chapin, Ensign Frank T. Evans, aide, and Capt. von Rebeur Paschwitz, naval attache at the Washington embassy of the German government. They were all in full dress uniform. The Nina met the Kron Prinz beyond Fort Wadsworth and swung around to the starboard side of the liner, steaming up the bay. Prince Henry, attired in the uniform of an admiral of the German navy and surrounded by his naval and military staff in brilliant uniform, stood on the bridge of the liner. As the naval tug drew nearer the side of the steamship Prince Henry and Admiral Evans caught sight of each other and exchanged informal salutes. The distance from the steamer to the tug was too far for conversation, however. As the two vessels with a flotilla of tugs and official craft moved in past Fort Wadsworth the first of the salutes of twenty-one guns was fired. As the first gun sounded the prince advanced to the end of the bridge of the Kron Prinz Wilhelm and stood at attention. As he passed the big American flag floating over the fortifications he and the members of his suite did likewise. The flag at the jackstaff of the Kron Prinz was dipped and the German naval band accompanying the prince played "The Star-Spangled Banner." The guns of Fort Wadsworth were not silent before those across the Narrows at Fort Hamilton boomed out their salute. When that ceremony was over the Kron Prinz was stopped and the Nina hauled around to her port side and Admiral Evans and his staff boarded. The passengers were gathered on the main deck and there was a hearty cheer as the admiral came up the gangway.

Admiral Evans was escorted forward at once and in the quarters of Capt. A. Ruenter, master of the Kron Prinz Wilhelm, he and the prince met. The prince came forward and, taking the hand of the naval officer, shook it warmly.

"I am very glad to see you, sir," said the admiral. "Everybody in the United States is waiting to welcome you. It is my pleasure, sir, to formally greet you on their behalf."

"I thank you, sir, and through you, the people of your country," responded the prince. "I am very glad to be here and on this splendid day. The emperor directed me to convey his compliments to you admiral, and I do so with very great pleasure."

Admiral Evans expressed gratification at the thoughtfulness of the emperor.

Prince Is Saluted.

After a brief halt the liner moved ahead and at 10:50 was abreast of the special squadron off Tompkinsville. The German standard was run to the foretop of the Kron Prinz and its appearance gave signal to the American fleet to salute. The San Francisco, Cincinnati, Olympia and Illinois lying in perfect alignment in the order named and made an attractive picture with their crews manning sides, turrets and tops. They raised the German naval standard and then opened blank fire. The prince stood at attention on the bridge and back of him were Admiral Evans and his staff and the numerous suite of the German visitor. The prince and his staff were especially interested in the Illinois and Olympia, and offered warm congratulations to the American admiral on the splendid appearance of his squadron. The prince said he was very anxious to visit the squadron and that he would do this at the earliest moment.

New York and its surroundings have rarely shown to greater advantage than yesterday in the sunlight, with the added brightness that came from the glistening coating of snow, and the royal visitor did not leave the bridge during the run up the bay. He said that he was at least gratifying an old ambition in visiting New York, and asked that the points of interest be shown him and the geographical bearings explained.

Great Crowds Greet Him.

The first of the large crowds was met at the battery, and from there on up to Recreation Pier, where the largest crowd of all had gathered, every pier to which admission was not denied was partly filled. The number of river craft also increased and the welcome was a noisy one.

Prince Henry disembarked at 12:55 p. m., at that moment walking down the decorated gangway from the Kron Prinz Wilhelm into the elaborately decorated pier. He then passed through an ornamental gangway and arch to the gangplank of the Hohenzollern, which had been decorated in the German colors and was covered half its length. The prince was met at the bottom of the gangplank by Admiral von Baudissin, commander of the Hohenzollern, and his officers.

The first of his callers to arrive after he had boarded the Hohenzollern was Gen. Brooke, U. S. A., accompanied by two aides. Admiral Barker and his aide, Capt. West, representing the United States navy, followed, and then came the German ambassador at Washington and his brilliantly attired suite of military and naval attaches and secretaries, and the military attache of the German embassy at Mexico. Lieut. Bartles. Following the German ambassador came the

of the president of the United States headed by Dr. Hill, first assistant secretary of state, and including Gen. Corbin, Col. Bingham and Commander Cowles, the brother-in-law of the president.

Capt. Nathan Sargent then called on the prince as special representative of Admiral Dewey. The captain said that he had been sent by the admiral especially to express to the prince the admiral's regret at not being able to greet him personally, and to pay his respects. The list of callers was ended with the mayor's party, which included himself and his private secretary. The German consul general at New York and his suite formed a part of the German ambassador's party.

About an hour was spent by the prince in receiving his callers and in making an admiral's inspection of the troops and crew of the Hohenzollern. Then followed a lunch.

The prince invited to this luncheon those among the Americans among his callers who represented the navy, and besides these there were at the board the members of the prince's suites and members of the German embassy in Washington.

The prince boarded the tug Nina at 3:30 to repay his calls. He was accompanied by one aide and Admiral Evans and Ensigns Evans and Chapin.

Prince Henry gave a dinner last night on board the Hohenzollern. His guests were the German ambassador and suite, the German naval officers and the representatives of the United States army and navy.

In the evening the ships of Admiral Evans' squadron were brilliantly illuminated with electric lights.

Henry Attends a Reception.

Prince Henry last night attended a reception given in his honor by the Deutscher verein at the clubhouse of the organization. He was escorted through the streets from the dock where the Hohenzollern lies to the clubhouse by Squadron A of the national guard, and attended by his suite, Rear Admiral von Baudissin and his officers and other guests. All the party were in carriages, while at the head of the line rode a detachment of mounted police. In the prince's carriage rode Rear Admiral Evans and Assistant Secretary of State Hill. On reaching the clubhouse the prince was received by President Rudolph Keppler and Vice President Otto T. Schuller. He was ushered into the reception room where were gathered 260 members of the club with nearly as many more members of their families. The club rooms were handsomely decorated with palms, evergreens and cut flowers, while on one of the walls, on a background of the American colors, hung a portrait of the German emperor. At the special request of Prince Henry the club members and their families were presented to him.

After the reception the prince was driven to the ferry and crossed over to Jersey City, where he boarded a special train for Washington.

IS FREE AT LAST

MISS ELLEN STONE NO LONGER IN THE HANDS OF THE BRIGANDS.

RELEASED FOR SURE THIS TIME

AMERICAN BOARD RECEIVES CONFIRMATION OF THE STORY.

TO PROTECT THE INNOCENT

AMERICANS WILL NOT DIVULGE WHERE AND HOW RANSOM WAS PAID.

Constantinople, Feb. 24. — Miss Ellen M. Stone, the American missionary who, with Mme. Tsilka, was captured by brigands in the district of Salonika Sept. 3 last, has been released and arrived at Strumitza, Macedonia, at 3 o'clock yesterday morning.

Nobody was at Strumitza to meet Miss Stone, as the brigands had given no indication that they proposed to release the prisoners. Mme. Tsilka and her baby were also released at the same time. The first news of Miss Stone's release was contained in a telegram received by Mr. Dickinson, the American consul general at Constantinople, from the American vice consul at Salonica. The telegram gives no details of the release. As Strumitza is near the Salonika-Uskub railroad, Miss Stone will proceed to Salonika without delay.

Will Keep It Secret.

London, Feb. 24.—Cabling from Constantinople, the correspondent of the Daily Chronicle says he understands that, owing to the necessity of protecting the innocent persons who assisted them, the American delegates will never divulge where and how the ransom money for the release of Miss Stone was paid. The correspondent learns, however, that the ruse of filling up money bags with lead after the ransom had been paid, with a view to making it appear that the mission to pay the ransom had failed, was completely successful. It is practically certain that the ransom money goes to the Macedonian committee.

Miss Stone, continues the correspondent, is certainly innocent of any knowledge of the plot to kidnap her, but strong suspicions are entertained about some Bulgarians who accompanied her party, or remained behind.

News Is Confirmed.

Boston, Feb. 24.—Secretary Barton of the American board has received the following cablegram confirmatory of the Associated Press dispatch, announcing the release of Miss Stone. It was dated Salonika and is unsigned:

"Both Miss Stone and Mme. Tsilka and child released from confinement in good physical condition and good spirits."

Secretary Barton regards this news as absolutely authentic, as the missionaries of the board had been given instructions to send no cablegrams based on mere reports, but to wait until positive information could be given.

ATTORNEY GENERAL PYLE DEAD.

South Dakota Chief Counsellor Fights Bravely for Life.

Huron, S. D., Feb. 24.—Attorney General John L. Pyle is dead. The last spark of life departed about midnight Saturday night after a tremendous fight with disease, covering a period of more than a month. Mr. Pyle was one of the leading attorneys of South Dakota. He had been home only a few days from attendance on the conference of governors and attorneys general at Helena, Mont., in relation to the railroad merger, about the first of January, when he was stricken with typhoid fever. His strong constitution gave assurance to his friends that there was no occasion for alarm. The fever ran its course, and the danger was thought passed, but his heart was weakened so that during the last few days hopes of his recovery had been abandoned.

Two of Mr. Anderson's sisters were killed in China during the late uprising against foreigners, but only one was a subject of the United States, the other sister being a citizen of Sweden. Hilda S. Anderson was naturalized at Rockford, Ill., in 1897, and went to China as a missionary for the Christian Alliance.

PANIC CAUSES LOSS OF LIFE.

Park Avenue Fire the Third Calamity of the Year.

New York, Feb. 24. — For the third time since New Year's day Park avenue was the scene of loss of human life. First was the collision in the New York Central tunnel at Forty-sixth street and Park avenue; second came the dynamite explosion in the rapid transit subway at Forty-first street, and the third, Saturday, was a fire which started in the Seventy-first regiment armory at Thirty-third street and then spread to the Park avenue hotel, where eighteen persons were killed and many injured. It was the worst hotel fire since the Windsor was destroyed. The fire was first seen at about 1:30 in the morning, in the armory, and in a remarkably short time that building was aflame from end to end. The firemen made their way as best they could through the streets, deep with slush, and did all possible to confine the fire to the armory; but after they had been at work nearly an hour the discovery was made that the hotel was crowded with guests. About the time the hotel was found to be on fire the lights went out and the corridors were filled with smoke. The guests, unable to find their way through the darkened hallway jumped from windows or ran directly into the flame-swept portions of the building. It is this fact that accounts for the large loss of life, although the hotel was not destroyed.

QUAKERS GET THE NEWS.

Communication With Philadelphia at Last Reopened.

Philadelphia, Feb. 24.—The Philadelphia newspapers at 7:35 o'clock last night, through the Associated Press came into direct telegraphic touch with the country at large for the first time since 4:10 p. m. Friday. This was accomplished through herculean efforts of the mechanical force of the Western Union Telegraph company in restoring to working condition a number of wires between Philadelphia and Wilmington, Del., which had been prostrated by the fierce sleet storm of Friday. The telegraph officials concentrated their efforts in closing this gap, which covers a distance of twenty-seven miles, as they realized that this would quickest establish communication with New York. This opened connection to Washington which city was in telegraphic communication with New York, via the circuitous route of Pittsburg, Chicago and Buffalo.

M'GOVERN WINS.

Knocks Out Sullivan In the Fifteenth Round.

Louisville, Ky., Feb. 24.—Terry McGovern defeated Dave Sullivan Saturday night in the arena of the Southern Athletic club after fifteen rounds of as desperate fighting as were ever seen in any ring. Sullivan was counted out and then sought to protest. From the first tap of the gong until the end it was slam-bang, hammer and tongs nearly every second, both men working away with all the energy they possessed. There has seldom been seen a battle where the issue was more in doubt. One round would favor Sullivan, the next McGovern. Then Sullivan would come strong again and even things up once more. McGovern was after his man every second. In the majority of rounds he was on the aggressive. Sullivan put up a wonderful fight however, was game to the core.

CORTEZ IS CAPTURED.

Filipino Officer Discovered Raising Funds for the Insurrection.

Manila, Feb. 24—A force of native constabulary at Santa Cruz, province of Laguna, Luzon, has captured Cortez, second in command to the insurgent general, Malvar, and turned him over to the military authorities. Cortez was in fancied security in a suburb of Santa Cruz known as Altiti, and was raising funds for the insurrection. A friendly native informed Inspector Sorensen of this fact and the capture of Cortez followed.

Few insurgents remain in the provinces of Batangas and Laguna. Gen. J. Franklin Bell has accomplished his intended purpose of ridding this district of insurgents, though for the present the civil commission consider it inadvisable to declare the provinces in question to be pacified.

Bristol, Tenn., Feb. 24.—News comes from Russell county, Va., to the effect that while a sheriff's posse was endeavoring to capture George Belkins, a mountaineer who killed an aged negro man and for whose capture a reward of $200 had been offered, Belkins came face to face with Deputy Sheriff J. S. Smith. Realizing his peril, Belkins fired quickly, killing Officer Smith. Others of the party heard the shot and hastened to the scene. They found Smith dead, with a bullet hole in his breast. Belkins had disappeared. A lynching is anticipated if Belkins is captured.

Puzzled by His Discovery.

At the table on an incoming liner on a recent trip, one of the first-cabin passengers found in an oyster one of the tiny seed-pearls which look almost exactly like bird-shot. Apparently the formation of pearls was a mystery to him, for he examined the thing curiously, picked it up gingerly, and laid it on the tablecloth for further investigation. Now, it is a habit of cooks at sea to carry fish hooks in their pockets, and on this trip, by a curious coincidence, part of a small hook got caught in a beefsteak that was served to this peculiar passenger. As soon as his knife encountered the hard object, he started, picked it out carefully and laid it beside the other one on the cloth. Then he beckoned to the waiter and confidentially whispered in his ear:

"I don't want to be impertinent," he said, "but would you mind telling me why you shoot your oysters and why you catch your steaks with a hook and line?"—New York Evening Post.

Another Man Altogether.

Valley, Mo., Feb. 24th.—There is a man in this town who has undergone the most remarkable physical change in the last few months.

His name is Perry Nelson, and those who knew him but a short time ago are amazed at his present condition.

He had not been feeling well for some time, and suspecting that the trouble came from his kidneys, which he knew were not any too strong, he determined to try a kidney medicine.

Dodd's Kidney Pills were highly recommended, and Mr. Nelson began a treatment of them. He was rewarded by a complete restoration to vigorous good health. He says:

"I used six boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills and they have helped me a great deal. I feel like another man and can recommend Dodd's Kidney Pills very highly."

Foul Air in Rooms.

The following, from a London paper, Science, shows the importance of securing pure air in dwelling apartments especially in the evening:

"That the amount of oxygen in a room is decreased alarmingly by our methods of illumination, the following simple statements show: A man may exist for an hour in a fair-sized room hermetically sealed. If he has no light. If he has a lamp instead of a candle in that room with him, his existence will be shortened by fifteen minutes. If he has a lamp instead of a candle in order to make himself more comfortable with additional light, he would live only half an hour. If he had two good gas burners, he would scarcely have time to write his will, for he would not live more than five minutes."

A WESTERN CANADA FARMER.

SEVEN YEARS AGO HE HAD BUT $24; NOW HE HAS SEVENTY HEAD OF CATTLE.

This Is What a Couple of Eastern Farmers Learned When on a Recent Trip to Canada—Splendid Words About Saskatoon, Rosthern and Hague District Where They Will Locate.

Messrs. J. E. Blum and J. Crumper of Manchester, Washtenaw County, Michigan, paid a visit to Alberta last summer and saw there a Mr. Shantz, one of the good old Pennsylvania stock, who had come recently—some seven years ago—from Ontario with $24 in his pocket. He has certainly prospered, as he now has over seventy head of cattle, has a good loghouse framed over; also a good barn, and in all respects looks a thrifty and well-to-do farmer. He had some good crops of oats and barley. After spending some days in Calgary and Edmonton they returned to Regina, Assiniboia, and looked around the country north to Lumsden and Balgonie, where the crops appeared very promising and heavy; continuing up the Regina and Long Lake road they came to Saskatoon on the crossing of the South Saskatchewan River. Of this district they say:

"The country here pleased us better than any we have seen. We drove out eighteen miles in a northwesterly direction through the Smith settlement. This is a wonderful district; the growth was splendid; all kinds of grains and roots were perfection. The older settlers had good buildings of all kinds and looked very prosperous; in fact, we came to the conclusion that we had found what we were looking for, a good country. While the nature of the soil changes and is in some parts light, in others stony, and again heavy, generally speaking it leaves nothing to be desired. Hay and water are also in abundance and wood can be found along the river slopes and islands. We have decided to locate there and shall certainly advise our friends to do likewise. We also trust that this report may have the effect of drawing the attention of land seekers to this district, and can honestly advise all such to locate there. They will find a good thing. As farmers ourselves, from a good district in Michigan, we have come to the conclusion that, properly farmed, western Canada will grow almost anything." The Original Squeers.

The grossest injury which Dickens ever inflicted on a fellow being was his too accurate portrait of an innocent man in his Squeers. That Yorkshire schoolmasters were, as a rule, cruel and wicked enough it is true, but the particular schoolmaster who was recognized and who recognized himself as the original Squeers seems to have been an exception to the rule.

It will be remembered that Dickens and his illustrator traveled together to the north of England for the purpose of collecting material for "Nickleby" and especially for the Dotheboys episode. At Great Bridge they visited a boarding school known as Bowes academy. The master, William Shaw, received the strangers with some hauteur and did not as much as withdraw his eyes from the operation of penmaking during the interview.

Phiz sketched him in the act; Boz described the act. The personal peculiarities of William Shaw were recognized in Squeers. Shaw became a butt of popular ridicule, lost his pupils and finally died of a broken heart. Yet there is abundant evidence to prove that he was a really excellent and kind hearted man, who was made to suffer for the misdeeds of his neighbors.—Literary Era.

Ants and Magnetism.

That ants doctor their sick by hypnotism and magnetism is proved by observation. An ardent student tells how he witnessed what may be termed a seance in medical science among ants. He saw several of these little creatures emerge from the hill and noticed that there were some among them which were weak and emaciated—invalids, in fact. They were accompanied by healthy members of the community, and all made their way toward a distant mound.

On following their movements through a glass the observer saw on this mound a big and sturdy ant, which made some motions in the direction of the advancing invalids. The latter went up the mound, one by one, and submitted themselves to treatment. This consisted in the physician ant passing his feelers over the head and body of the patient in a manner distinctly suggestive of the hypnotizing of nerves and muscles practiced by human doctors. Every one went through the treatment, then the patients went back, and the doctor marched off in the opposite direction.

Sealskin Doesn't Come From Seals.

The beautiful product used for clothing and commonly known as sealskin is not furnished by the true seal, whose skin is almost useless except when used as an ornamental mat or stiff rug. They are the sea lions and sea bears—the eared seals, otaris—whose skins are so highly valued because so soft and warm. The true seal is common enough, but its skin is only prized as a trophy, and it may be added that sealskin when ready for clothing has not, as often supposed, the same downy appearance on the living animal, being covered with long, coarse, deep rooted hairs, which drop out when dressed by the furrier and leave the soft, woolly hair uninjured.

DISTRESSING ASTHMA.

To Be Cured This Disease Must Be Fought In Early Stages.

In popular usage asthma is a term employed to describe a well known condition, yet it is significant of the broadened knowledge of diseases in general that, as a distinct disease, the name is applied in a more and more restricted sense by physicians.

For example, the asthma of which Dr. Johnson complains in his later years, as recorded by Boswell, is so clearly set forth by the faithful biographer that the modern physician is even now able to determine that an affection of the heart was responsible for it.

Asthma is often a family affection and is frequently traceable to parents, grandparents or great grandparents. Most sufferers are of an excitable, emotional or nervous temperament. It bears a rather striking analogy to epilepsy in that its attacks are characterized by suddenness and influenced by strong emotions, like fear or grief, and not infrequently occur at night, when the sufferer may be plunged from deep sleep into an attack. In both diseases excitement during the day is often followed by attacks.

Physicians believe, however, that a high strung organization alone is not sufficient to develop the disorder, but that some other source of irritation must be added—that is, some faulty state of the system elsewhere, like disease of the digestive tract, harmful factors circulating in the blood, obstacles to free breathing in the nose and others.

Whatever may be the source they must be dealt with energetically and at an early stage, since long standing cases of asthma invariably develop changes in the lungs and heart which are permanent. The disease can then be dealt with only by measures aimed at palliating and cutting short the separate attacks and with no reasonable hope of an actual, permanent cure.

For the young sufferer and for those in the early attacks of asthma the writer would emphasize the necessity of a thorough search for and the removal of any and every error in hygienic living in order to avoid the suffering of the chronic asthmatic and the further diseases which it brings in its train.—Youth's Companion.

COMPLETED PROVERBS.

"Labor overcometh all things," even the laborer.

"Only that which is honestly got is gain;" the rest is velvet.

"Ignorance is the mother of impudence;" no father is named.

"Let a child have its will, and it will not cry," but its parents will.

"Pity is akin to love," but kinship does not always signify friendship.

"Whate'er is best administered is best" for the one who administers.

"Employment brings enjoyment" when it brings the means to enjoy.

"Possession is nine points of the law" and frequently all the profits.

"A man who will not flee will make his foes flee," but what if his foes be made of the same metal?

"Every man for himself, and the devil take the hindmost," is the cry of those who are well in front.

"A wise man is moved from his course neither by force nor entreaty," but the same often applies to a mule.

"It is hard to pay for bread that has been eaten," but not so hard as to get bread to eat that has not been paid for.

"In matters of taste there can be no dispute," for every man is so firmly convinced that there is no standard by which his taste can be measured.—L. de V. Matthewman in Era.

A Turquoise Peculiarity.

About one woman in three cannot wear turquoises without turning them green. Some turquoises will turn green after being worn by any woman. Jewelers of the first class guarantee to replace turquoises if they turn green, and the annual cost of the replacements is stupendous. One jewel house has tried the experiment of having all its employees go around with dozens of turquoises strapped next to their skin to try to detect the green ones, but even when they have passed this test some of them will be brought back by customers, having turned a hideous green. No reason is known for the changing of color.

Moody and the Questionable Book.

Some one asked the late Dwight L. Moody if he had read a certain book. He replied: "No; I believe there is poison in it. At least I have heard so on good authority." The friend said, "But wouldn't it be well for you to read it for yourself?" "No," said Mr. Moody. "If I take poison in my stomach, the doctor has to come with a stomach pump to take it out. Why should I take poison in my mind? I might never be able to get it out."—Margaret Bottome in Ladies' Home Journal.

Extreme Cruelty.

Employer—Mr. Slack, would you like to have an increase in salary?

Employee—Would I? I should say I would!

Employer—Well, let me tell you, then, that unless you get down here earlier and work a great deal harder you'll never get it in this world.—Chicago News.

His Fall.

Customer—I understand that your chef has been discharged.

Waiter—Yes, sir. He has gone to a place where they call him a cook.—Judge.

The word "mile" is derived from the Latin "mille," a thousand. A thousand paces of a marching soldier made the old Roman mile.

A STORY OF FORREST.

How the Peppery Actor Squared Accounts With One Critic.

Many years ago Edwin Forrest, the celebrated actor, when in New York, was in the habit of dining at Windust's, a noted restaurant on Park row that was a favorite resort of actors and literary men. It usually happened that Forrest would be joined by friends and that the little group would sit together at one table. On one occasion it chanced that an Englishman with a reputation for conceit and impertinence, who had scraped acquaintance with the tragedian, was one of the group.

Early in the course of the dinner the Englishman began to make criticisms which he considered pleasantries about Forrest's conception of certain roles. Encouraged by his own appreciation he gave full play to his humor and concluded each of his impertinences with, "Pardon my freedom, sir; it's my way."

To the astonishment of all who knew Forrest's irascible disposition he bore the Briton's offensive remarks patiently and seemingly ignored them as far as possible. When, however, the nuts were brought in by the waiter, he took several cracked walnuts in his hand and, walking over to the Briton's place, jocularly snapped them successively in the face of that individual, lightly saying after each shot, "Pardon my freedom, sir; it's my way," and snapped him out of the restaurant.

Grewsome Football Legend.

Where did football originate? Some people give ancient Chester, in England, credit for bringing the great winter pastime into existence. There is a record of football playing in that city in the year 1540, but Chestrians believe in a legend of much earlier

The Washington Creamery Association.

It now seems to be a settled fact that St. Hilaire will have a creamery, and one of the right kind. The title of the company will be The Washington Creamery Association—the name being chosen because the organization was effected on Washington's birthday.

Selma, the seven-years-old daughter of Peter Sanderson, died on Sunday evening at the home of her parents. The little one has been a patient sufferer from different diseases for many weeks and her death was the result of typhoid fever following pneumonia. At the present time the family is quarantined on account of contagious disease, and the aid and sympathy of friends is denied the bereaved parents in their time of trouble.

Foolishness Of Over-Study.

The Medical Record gives warning to parents that they are working their children too hard. The modern educational system lays too much stress on the development of the mind at the expense of his body. As a result we have bright weak men who are really less able to do good work than if their bodies alone had been cultivated. To build up the physical men give him "Golden Grain Belt" beer, for it is pure and nourishing and just the thing for hard working men. Always keep a case at your home and use it regularly. Where the Difference Lies.

"Wherein lies the difference between photography and courtship?" he asked softly.

"I don't know," she replied.

"In photography," he explained, "the negative is developed in the dark room, while in courtship that is where the affirmative is developed."

She blushed, but made no answer.

"Let us," he suggested, "proceed to develop an affirmative."

There being no objections, it was so ordered.—Chicago Post.

From St. Hilaire To California.

LOS ANGELES, CAL., FEB. 15, 1902.

ST. HILAIRE SPECTATOR:

I will send you a short sketch of our trip to California and the climate out here, which may be of interest to the SPECTATOR and our many friends in St. Hilaire.

After leaving St. Paul we saw nothing of interest, so far as scenic features are concerned, till we reached the lofty Sebley bridge crossing the Missouri river. The swift, sand-laden volumn of this famed stream flows far below the level of the eye, and there is a wide outlook on either hand. Then comes Kansas City, the great commercial gateway of the Missouri. The city is built on high bluffs. We walked up several flights of stairs to get to the street car line. In several places the track is layed through tunnels. Topeka, noted as one of the prettiest capitals in the west was our next stop. At Hutchinson we enter western Kansas. We stopped a short time at Garden City, also Dodge City of Cowboy fame. The surface of Kansas was once an inland sea. Here and there we could see most remarkable fossils of animal life. Entering Colorado it at first appeared a vast plateau elevated 4,000 feet above the sea. Soon it changes and we can see Pike's Peak in the distance, also the two beautiful Spanish peaks all covered with snow. They looked to be so short a distance from us that several passengers with ourselves asked the conductor to stop there for an hour and allow us to walk over and back, but to our great surprise he informed us they were sixty miles away. If he had said six miles we would have doubted his words, but, when he said sixty miles we could not help but ask him what he said. The mountains being so high, the distance is very deceptive. Slowly the Raton Range gathers significance till it becomes a towering wall at whose foot lies the city of Trinidad, beyond which begins the ascent of the Raton Pass. The grade is terrific and two powerful mountain engines are required to haul our train at a pace hardly faster than a walk. In some places the road winds in curves so sharp that the wheels shrink at the strain. Here we saw level side canons, shaded with aspen, long straight slopes covered with pine, tumbled waves of rock and and huge bare cliffs. Near the city of El Moro we saw Mt. Sims, 2,000 feet high, where an old Indian scout Col. Sims, is buried. We passed what was left of the Old Toll House where Dick Wooten collected toll in early days. We also had a glimpse of Kit Carson's trail. Here the hills crowd and shut off the outside world. There is a deep sand-stone cut, its faces seamed with layers of coal, a boundary post marked on one side "Colorado" and upon the other "New Mexico" and instantly following that a plunge into a one-mile tunnel of midnight blackness, at an elevation of something more than 7,000 feet. New Mexico is surely a territory in the sky. At no time do we fall below an elevation of 5,000 feet in traversing this portion of the territory. We were borne over mountains, above forests of pine and fir with glimpses of distant prairies, through canons and along level stretches by the side of the Great River of the North; past desert tracts spotted with spruce, and past dead volcanos and lava beds. Scattered by the way are Mexican villages, ancient Indian pueblos still inhabited. We stopped a short time at Las Vegas, one mile from the renowned Hot Springs. Here we saw the high mountain peak called "Starvation Point," where the Indians surrounded 150 white people and starved them to death in the year 1850. Overlooking the town of Santa Fe stands the old Chapel Rosario and the Romana school for Apache children. Arizona, like New Mexico and Colorado, is a land of mountain terraces and canons, with vast tracts of pine timber. Here the snow was two feet deep. This being our first trip through a mountainous country makes it very interesting.

Near Winslow we crossed the canon Diablo. This is a profound gash in the plateau 225 feet deep, 550 wide and many miles long. It has the appearance of a volcanic rent in the earth's crust. Towering above the city of Flagstaff, where is located the Lowell Observatory, is a peak of the San Francisco mountains called Humphrey Peak, 13,000 feet above sea level. But the grandest sight of all is at the crossing of the Colorado river on the Grand Canon. The gorge is 217 miles long and from nine to thirteen miles wide and more than 6,600 feet deep. On awakening in the morning we noticed that everything had assumed a different aspect—from a wintry scene to a land of flowers and vegetation. Here we passed extensive orange and lemon groves with fruit ready to be gathered. We saw gardens of vegetables, great tall palm trees, also Cypress and Magnolia. The way leads quickly from from San Bernardino to Pasadena and Los Angeles. The latter place is a beautiful city of 105,000 population and a great many more during the winter. The city is very thriving. There are some magnificent structures both in residences and business blocks. Among the latter the Chamber of Commerce which has a fine display of California products and antique curosities. The parks and lawns are beautifully kept with flowers, trees and shrubs. Several of the parks have fine collections of birds and animals. We visited the Oil Wells which is one of the leading industries of California. The price of fuel being comparatively high, oil is used for heating purposes. The price of one barrel is one dollar. Three and one-half barrels being equal to one ton of coal.

We went through Chinatown which was very interesting, especially at this time of the year—it being their New Year now. Beginning the first of February the whole week is given up to celebrating. They were all in gala attire displaying their immense dragon which is one block in length, made of costly silks and embroideries, it forming part of their religion. Their markets presented a strange appearance. Pork in all varieties seems to be their principal diet aside from rice. It is indeed a strange town.

We have visited nearly all cities and points of interest in southern California. What proves a surprise is the relatively small area of cultivated land and fit for cultivation. The climate is all one could wish for. While at San Diego we visited the U. S. Observatory and were told there that the most extreme cold ever reached in California—and that but four times in thirty years was 30 degrees, and that the heat has exceeded ninety degrees only 19 times in 29 years. San Diego is a city of 20,000 population beautifully situated on the ocean bay. During the boom it was overdone so there are now a great many empty houses and store buildings The only thriving businesses are the hotels and liveries. Coronado Beach is just across the bay from San Diego where is situated one of the finest winter resorts in the world, Hotel Del Coronado. While here I had the pleasure of going on a fishing expedition with a few tourists and we made quite a catch. J. Walker of Chicago pulled in a leaping tuna weighing 66 pounds which I supposed was the largest fish in the ocean, but which I disproved later on by pulling in a sea bass weighing 182½ pounds. How is that for a catch? "I am going again."

Only three blocks from Hotel Del Coronado is the Ostrich farm of one hundred birds—all ages and sizes. Fifteen miles from San Diego overlooking the ocean is situated the La Jolla resort noted for its mammoth caves. While here we gathered some beautiful shells. From here we went to Tia Junna in Old Mexico where we enjoyed a genuine Spanish dinner. Coming back to the states we were searched by the U. S. customs officers for valuables purchased there. Old Mexico to our notion is far behind the times. Next week we leave for Catelina Island for a two weeks stay, fifteen miles out in the ocean, that island being the home of the mountain goat. I expect to bag one of those mountain monarchs.

On the Farm.

"Father, I am fired with ambition since I came home from college. I want a broad field for action, where I can accomplish something."

"Well, my boy, there is the forty acre lot, which is a rather broad field. You might try a little action in that with a plow and a pair of horses, and if you stick to it you can accomplish something."—New York Herald.

A Theological Nose.

"I was once showing a young Japanese around Boston," says a correspondent of The Living Church, "and casually dropped into Trinity church with him. He was at the time a recent convert to Unitarianism in his own country and was wide awake to everything connected with American civilization and American Christianity.

"A few minutes after entering Trinity, as we approached the center aisle, I noticed him making a distinct sniffing noise and, looking toward him, saw that he was in the act of smelling, his nostrils moving convulsively after the manner of an animal scenting something. Looking surprised and mystified, I at once asked him what was the matter, and in broken English he replied, 'I smell paganism.'

"This method of detecting false doctrines is capable of some curious developments."

Human Traits In Birds.

The human traits in birds are many, as most sympathetic naturalists have testified. Mr. Burroughs has told us that there are jealousies and rivalries among the little winged folk and that the peace of families is often disturbed by outside flirts and lady killers. Quoting this statement in The Dial, another observer gives us to understand that the errant bird husband is duly punished. "I have myself," he says, "seen an English hen sparrow holding a cock by the topknot and dangle him clear off his feet, while her friends punished him with violent peckings."

Mistletoe.

The prettiest thing about mistletoe is its milky white opalescent berries. The stems and foliage seem to betray the parasite nature of the plant in their unwholesome shade of green, a peculiarly unwholesome shade characterizing the stems. It is an uncanny sort of plant. Most parasites are. Is there anything more positively ghostlike than the plant we know as Indian pipe (monotropa)?

Gallantry of Americans.

Americans have not the reputation of Europeans for gallant speeches, yet there are many occasions where they earn the envy of the people who are more given to saying pretty things. At a recent private dinner, at which Seth Low and his wife were guests, one of the diners said to the new mayor:

"You must to be proud to be the husband of the first lady in New York."

"I am proud," said the mayor, gallantly, as he glanced tenderly at his wife, "to be the husband of Mrs. Low."

On a similar occasion, recently, the American ambassador to the Court of St. James paid a graceful compliment to his wife.

It was at an informal dinner, at which the guests were all intimate friends. Someone proposed that each in turn should answer the question:

"If you were dead and could come back to this world in another body, who would you prefer to come as?"

When it came to Mr. Choate's turn, he said: "I should prefer to come as Mrs. Choate's second husband."—New York Times.

J. W. Partridge, 45 Cedar St., Belfast, Me., says: "Cole's Carbolisalve has been a favorite household remedy with us for years. We have never seen anything that compares with it as a cure for burns, sores, boils, chilblains, sore and weak eyes, cuts, wounds, and in fact everything that an ointment could be used for."

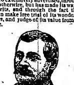
FREE

A WONDERFUL SHRUB—CURES

KIDNEY AND BLADDER

Diseases, Rheumatism, etc.

In the short time that Alkavis, the Kava-Kava shrub compound, has been before the American public, its Cures of various forms of Kidney and Bladder diseases, Rheumatic and Gouty Disorders, have been numbered by the thousands. Alkavis has not been extensively advertised, through Newspapers or otherwise, but has made its way entirely on its merits, and through the fact that every sufferer can make free trial of its wonderful curative powers, and judge of its value from personal experience.



Mr. John Will, Route 3, Rural Delivery, Muncie, Ind.

The President of the Suffolk Hospital and Dispensary, Boston, Mass., established under the laws of the State, writes Sept. 16th, 1901, as follows:

"Gentlemen:—As a rule we are unwilling to endorse any preparation the formula of which is not made public to the medical profession, but the use of your product has so fully convinced us of its remedial value that our objection has been overcome. Let us say in a word that we have tested it in some chronic cases of Bladder and Rheumatic trouble, and it has Cured where old and established compounds have wholly failed. Our good words are at your disposal, for all should know of the good accomplished by its use."

James Thomas, Esq., of the Board of Review Bureau of Pensions, Washington, D. C., writes: Was cured of a usually fatal Kidney Trouble after many physicians had failed and he had given up all hope of recovery. Mr. John Will, Muncie, Ind., writes: Was told by two physicians, one being my son-in-law, that neither he nor any other doctor could cure me, but nevertheless "Alkavis" did the work. Many ladies also join in testifying to the wonderful curative powers of Alkavis in Kidney and allied diseases, and other troublesome afflictions peculiar to womanhood, which can not with propriety be described here.

That you may judge of the value of this Great Discovery for yourself, we will send you one Large Case by mail Free, only asking that when cured yourself you will recommend it to others. It is a Sure Specific Cure and can[illegible] fail. Address, The Church Kidney Cure Co[illegible] No. 406 Fourth Avenue, New York City.

MADE LINCOLN SAD.

GRAPHIC PICTURE OF A TOUCHING SCENE AT NEW ORLEANS.

Aristocratic Frenchman of the Southern City Could Not Understand the Wave of Pity Which Saddened the Tender Heart of the Great Emancipator.

One of the most touching pictures ever seen by mortal eyes since the three crosses stood out against the darkening sky, must have been that of Abraham Lincoln looking on at the slave auction in New Orleans one day away back, long before he had become a nation's idol, only to fled a martyr's grave.

An old weazened Frenchman, with a scornful turn of his aristocratic old profile, told me the story of his attendance at the slave auction that day.

"Why, yes, I remember the fellow well," said the old Frenchman, in answer to my inquiry. I cannot give the story in all its charm, as it came in broken French from beneath the snowy mustache, because I was so thrilled by the picture conjured up by the story that I could give little attention to the accent. "Ah, in those days I always lik' to go down to ze levee" (would that I could give you the quaint, delicious accent, half Parizian French, half Cajen, wholly N'Orleans), "I meet such strange people down there. In my father's house all say one thing—nothing new at all. An', as I say, when I went to the slave auction that day—lovely, sunshiny day, jus' lik' always come here Mardi Gras time, who should I see standing there but that tall, how you call him? lanky flatboatman I knew down on ze levee. My li'le heart jump. I so glad to see him, but he look sad, verra sad as he smile at me an' he reach' down an' took my li'le han' in his, oh! so verra hard one, an' he hol' her so tight I feel frightened. I know not why he look so sad. On what they call 'ze block' was only a yellow gal—Mme. ———'s Suzanne, an' they were selling her. I remember right well she was a fine figure of a girl; I remember that yet," and the famous old roue laughed softly and sweetly under the weight of his ninety summers.

"Yes, I remember zat yet," he chuckled; "it's ze climate of zis N'Orleans, I t'ink. But I go on an' tell you about ze man. But, no, there not anyt'ing to tell, but he look verra sad. An' he hol' my li'le han' so verra tight, lik' I tol' you, an' I feel frightened li'le while, zen I laf' an' I say, 'She only nigger gal', and he hol' my han' too hard zen, an' he say, sof' lik' to hisself, 'She's a woman, my God!' An' I laf' again, li'le fellow lik' me, an' I say, 'I know zat,' but he did not laf, and he turn an' walk away lik' he thinkin' to hisself.

"After zat day I never see him on ze levee nor at all; on' I cannot believe anyt'ing lik' zat mak' me sad, an' Mardi Gras time comin', too, but I did feel sad li'le bit, because I love to fin' him on ze levee, an' I never forget zat name. The next time I heard it—well, we will not now speak of zat time. There was something strange 'bout him, an'—"

The feeble old voice quivered slightly as he continued, "an' somehow I never could forget ze fellow; it all comes back to me now, an' I see him just as he looked zat day. I cannot forget him, but ——" and the old aristocrat of "la belle France" and the ante-bellum south folded his small, shrivelled hands, "but of course he was only one of ze people, an' wa cannot blame him for his views, sir; views which we could never share, sir, never."

And the old Frenchman looked very grave as he sat there in the balmy sunshine of his wide "gallery" thinking, perhaps, of how absurdly serious "ze people" could allow themselves to become about mere trifles. "Foolish, sir, perfeckly foolish."—Chicago Inter-Ocean.

MADRID'S HIGH DEATH RATE.

Distinction of Being the Most Unhealthy Capital in Europe.

Madrid enjoys the unenviable distinction of being in every way the most unhealthy capital in Europe. According to statistics just published by the municipality, there have been 79,374 deaths during the past five years, among a population of only slightly exceeding 500,000.

In 1901 the death numbered 17,242, and of these 4,064 were of children under four years of age. This gives a rate of about 33 per 1,000. In the five years' period consumption carried off nearly 10,000 inhabitants, and smallpox and measles 5,000 more.

The municipality is just beginning to realize the bearing of these figures, and various decrees have been published for the better enforcement of sanitation. Among other things it is to be a punishable offense to let an apartment or dwelling before it has been disinfected by the municipal laboratory department. But two of the greatest evils in Madrid are food adulteration, which is virtually unchecked and overcrowding. The 528,000 inhabitants are herded in 17,000 houses, which gives an average of thirty-one persons per house.—Pall Mall Gazette.

Gov. Shaw of Iowa, the new secretary of the treasury, tells this story of a personal experience while trying a case in an Iowa court. A boy about 14 years old had been put on the stand, and the opposing counsel was examining him. After the usual preliminary questions as to the witness' age, residence, and the like, he then proceeded:

"Have you any occupation?"

"No."

"Don't you do any work of any kind?"

"No."

"Just loaf around home?"

"That's about all."

"What does your father do?"

"Nothin' much."

"Doesn't he do anything to support the family?"

"He does odd jobs once in a while when he can get them."

"As a matter of fact, isn't your father a pretty worthless fellow, a deadbeat, and a loafer?"

"I don't know, sir; you'd better ask him. He's sittin' over there on the jury."

ANOTHER GRAND REPORT.

From His Majesty's Dockyard, Portsmouth, England, Where Upwards of 16,000 Men Are Constantly Employed.

Some time ago the Portsmouth Times and Naval Gazette published a most thrilling and remarkable experience of the wife of Mr. Frederick Payne, himself connected with the Portsmouth dockyard for many years. The report produced a great sensation, not only in Portsmouth, but throughout the country, being considered of sufficient importance for reproduction and editorial comment by the leading metropolitan and provincial press of England, as showing the marvelous power which St. Jacobs Oil possesses as a cure for Rheumatism, its application having effected a perfect cure in the case of Mrs. Payne, after having been a helpless cripple and given up by several physicians.

We have now further evidence of its intrinsic value as a Pain Conqueror. Our readers will do well to follow the intelligent and highly interesting details as given in Mrs. Rabbets own words:

"To the Proprietors St. Jacobs Oil—

"Gentlemen: My husband, who is a shipwright in His Majesty's dockyard, met with an accident to his ankle and leg, spraining both so badly that his leg turned black from his knee to his toes. The doctor said it would be months before he could put his foot to the ground, and it was doubtful whether he would ever get proper use of his leg again.

"A few days after the accident I had a book left at the door telling about St. Jacob's Oil, so I procured a bottle from our chemist, Mr. Arthur Creswell, 375 Commercial Road. I began to use St. Jacob's Oil, and you may guess my surprise when in about another week from that date my husband could not only stand, but could even walk about, and in three weeks from the time I first used the Oil my husband was back at work, and everybody talking about his wonderful recovery. This is not all. Seeing what St. Jacob's Oil could do gave me faith in your Vogeler's Curative Compound, also favorably mentioned in the book left at my house. I determined to try the compound on my little girl, who was suffering from a dreadful skin disease, the treatment of which has cost me large sums of money in going from one doctor to another with her, all to no purpose.

She has taken two bottles of Vogeler's Curative Compound, and one would now hardly take her for the same child. Her skin has such a nice healthy color after the sallow look she has always had.

"I shall never cease to be thankful for the immense benefit we have derived from these two great remedies of yours. I think it a duty to recommend these medicines now I have proved their value.

(Signed.) "Elizabeth S. Rabbets,
"93 Grafton Street, Mile End,
"Landport, Portsmouth, England."

A liberal free sample of Vogeler's Compound will be sent by addressing St. Jacob's Oil, Ltd., Baltimore.

The above honest, straightforward statement of Mrs. Rabbets evidence is stronger and far more convincing than pages of paid advertisements, which, though in themselves attractive, yet lack that convincing proof which Mrs. Rabbets' description of her own experience supplies. St. Jacob's Oil has a larger sale throughout the world than that of all other remedies for outward application combined, and this can only be accounted for from the fact of its superiority over all others.

Good Points of Cheviot Sheep.

From Farmers' Review: In selecting Cheviot sheep I did so with the belief that I was not choosing a breed that had been inbred to such an extent as to weaken the vitality, which inbreeding has been carried to extremes in the case of some breeds. The Cheviots are active and will get feed for themselves when other breeds will rely on their owner for feed. In connection with my cattle, I carry a small flock of registered Cheviot sheep. The Cheviot is a Scotch sheep, its native home being the Cheviot hills of Scotland. Dr. Stuart in writing of these sheep says: "The Cheviot is a close, middle-wooled and heavy-muttoned sheep and carries more muscle and less adipose tissue than any other mutton sheep of either England or Scotland." Their points of excellence are: First, their extreme hardiness, which enables them to become adapted to almost any condition of climate or keep. They are what might be called natural rustlers and will be found feeding when other more sluggish and lazy kinds are sleeping. Their second excellence is the fleece, which is a thing of beauty being of a clean, white color, running from 5 to 6 inches long for one year's growth of fine quality. This wool furnishes the material for the noted cheviots and tweeds, and brings the highest price in the market. Their third excellence is, that the ewes are noted as being excellent mothers, caring well for the lamb and giving a large quantity of milk, thus saving a large per cent of the lambs. As a breed they are very prolific. The rams when crossed on common ewes produce a large per cent of twins and the size of the progeny is much increased. No breed of sheep rank higher as mutton-producers having the largest per cent of dressed meat in proportion to carcass and of excellent quality.—A. E. Burleigh Knox County, Missouri.

Bacon Curers and Pig-Feeders.

Heavy weights are not in demand now in the cattle, sheep, and pig sections of farm live stock, says North British Agriculturist. On the other hand, "baby" beef and mutton are in demand, and "baby" pork, too. At the recent fat stock shows heavy-weighted cattle and sheep were meeting a very dull sale, whereas cattle and sheep of nice handy weights were in sharp demand at very good prices. In the same way, pigs of heavy weights are not in demand by bacon curers, and they consequently meet a dull trade. Last week the Ayrshire bacon curers held a meeting at Kilmarnock for the purpose of taking concerted action in the way of inducing pig feeders to aim at producing the kind of pig that was wanted. Ayrshire bacon has an enviable reputation in the market, and it is for the interest of all bacon producers to jealously guard the reputation of their product, and to produce the kind of pig that yields the best meat, and commands the highest price. According to the unanimous finding of the Ayrshire bacon curers, the kind of pig that was wanted for bacon curing was from 5½ to 6½ stones of 24 lb. per stone; and the curers at the Kilmarnock meeting unanimously agreed to give the top price for well-fed pigs of this weight, all pigs above that weight to be bought at a corresponding reduction on that top price. Pig feeders should therefore take steps to ensure that their porkers are marketed in fit condition before they come to be over the age at which the top price is given by the curers, and this can only be done by having the animals well fed from the first, so that they never get a back-set in their progress. The same rule holds good in regard to cattle and sheep as well as in regard to pigs.

A Common Coop.

A common form of coop for hen and chickens is shown in the illustration. This coop is easily made. By it the old hen is kept in restraint while the chicks have their freedom, being able to go in and out under the slats. This is suitable for localities where cats, rats and other animals do not menace the chicks.

Colored Muscovy Ducks.

From Farmers Review: I have had but two years' experience with the Colored Muscovy Duck, but what I have had leads me to think that it is the ideal duck for the villager or suburbanite, who has only a limited amount of room. I find that they thrive and grow rapidly even when confined in small quarters. One point that I consider very much in their favor is the fact that they make no noise. They don't seem to have a "quack" in them. Another thing in their favor is that they start to lay very early in the spring and continue to lay almost constantly until late in the summer. I consider them more of an ornamental duck than any of the others. I have found them rather hard to raise for the first two weeks after they are hatched, but after that period they grow very rapidly and mature quickly. I have experienced no difficulty in disposing of all I have had to spare.—Jas. W. Bell, Cook County, Illinois.

The hen that is crop-bound had better be sent to the pot as soon as she recovers from an attack enough to be considered in good health. A bird that has developed a tendency of that kind is very likely to be troubled with it frequently. Such a bird should not be bred from, and is therefore good only for the table.

A poultry raiser says that poultry in confinement do not fatten as well or as quickly on grain as on a mash. This is probably true, as the birds require exercise to help assist in grinding the whole grain. In France, where birds are fattened in close confinement, only soft food is used.

Because of unwillingness to wear glasses, women suffer more from their eyes than do men.

GOVERNOR OF OREGON

Uses Pe-ru-na in His Family For Colds and Grip.

CAPITOL BUILDING, SALEM, OREGON.

A Letter From the Executive Office of Oregon.

Pe-ru-na is known from the Atlantic to the Pacific. Letters of congratulation and commendation testifying to the merits of Pe-ru-na as a catarrh remedy are pouring in from every State in the Union. Dr. Hartman is receiving hundreds of letters daily. All classes write these letters, from the highest to the lowest.

The outdoor laborer, the indoor artisan, the clerk, the editor, the statesman, the preacher—all agree that Pe-ru-na is the catarrh remedy of the age. The stage and rostrum, recognizing catarrh as their greatest enemy, are especially enthusiastic in their praise and testimony.

Any man who wishes perfect health must be entirely free from catarrh. Catarrh is well-nigh universal; almost omnipresent. Pe-ru-na is the only absolute safeguard known. A cold is the beginning of catarrh. To prevent colds, to cure colds, is to cheat catarrh out of its victims. Pe-ru-na not only cures catarrh, but prevents. Every household should be supplied with this great remedy for coughs, colds and so forth.

The Governor of Oregon is an ardent admirer of Pe-ru-na. He keeps it continually in the house. In a recent letter to Dr. Hartman he says:

STATE OF OREGON,
EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT,
SALEM, May 9, 1898.

The Pe-ru-na Medicine Co., Columbus, O.:

Dear Sirs—I have had occasion to use your Pe-ru-na medicine in my family for colds and it proved to be an excellent remedy. I have not had occasion to use it for other ailments.

Yours very truly, W. M. LORD.

It will be noticed that the Governor says he has not had occasion to use Pe-ru-na for other ailments. The reason for this is, most other ailments begin with a cold. Using Pe-ru-na to promptly cure colds, he protects his family against other ailments. This is exactly what every other family in the United States should do. Keep Pe-ru-na in the house. Use it for coughs, colds, la grippe, and other climatic affections of winter, and there will be no other ailments in the house. Such families should provide themselves with a copy of Dr. Hartman's free book, entitled "Winter Catarrh." Address Dr. Hartman, Columbus, Ohio.

ALL UNDER WATER

GREAT DAMAGE CAUSED BY THE SWOLLEN STREAMS IN THE EAST.

PATERSON, N. J., OVERWHELMED

FLOOD TOILS TO FINISH WORK OF DESTRUCTION LEFT UNDONE BY FIRE.

THOUSANDS ARE HOMELESS

MANY BRIDGES WASHED AWAY AND RAILWAY TRAFFIC IS SUSPENDED.

Paterson, N. J., March 3.—This city, so recently swept by fire, is now overwhelmed by flood. Three weeks ago the greater part of its business section was burned out and yesterday the quarter occupied by the houses of the poorer class is inundated. Hundreds of families have been made homeless by the overflow of the Passaic river and the country for miles around the city is under water. So far but one death has been reported. The great peril now is that the Spruce street roadway may overflow, in which event a great loss of property in the manufacturing district is sure to ensue.

The fire of three weeks ago, while causing a damage to property to an extent of nearly $8,000,000, did not create such suffering and widespread desolation as the flood. The district for a mile along the river front, from Spruce street hill to Straight street, and two blocks north and five blocks south of the river, nearly half a mile in width, is covered with water which in many instances reached the second story of the dwellings. In this district are situated the Rogers locomotive works and several silk mills and dye works. In the immediate vicinity of them fully 600 families have been Driven From Their Tenements.

Of these unfortunates several hundred were taken from their homes in boats and barges amid scenes of much excitement. In the absence of Mayor John Hinchcliffe, who is now in Cuba recuperating from the strain of the recent fire, Thomas J. Bergan, president of the board of aldermen, is acting mayor, and, with the mayor's secretary, William M. Dill, is doing his utmost to relieve all those who need assistance. In the work of rescue one of the most earnest toilers lost his life. The cry of fire was heard about 1 o'clock in the afternoon, and it looked as if the elements were combining to destroy the city. There was a brisk wind blowing, but the blaze was soon controlled.

On Hamilton avenue near the river the foundations of two new buildings were undermined by the flood and the structures collapsed and were swept away in the stream. The Arch street bridge collapsed in the afternoon. All the other bridges are completely submerged, cutting off communication between the two sections of the city. The boilers and engine rooms of several of the big mills are ten feet under water.

WILKESBARRE UNDER WATER.

Damage Already Done Is Estimated at Over $1,000,000.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., March 3.—A heavy rainfall and rush of water from its upper tributaries caused the North Branch of the Susquehanna river to rise rapidly yesterday. The high water mark is equal to that of 1865, which has always been known as a record-breaker. The damage to property is already estimated at $1,000,000. The water is over the banks of the river from Pittsburg to Nanticoke and resembles a vast lake. Nearly one-half of the city is under water. At Westmoor, Firewood and Riverside nearly all residents vacated their houses. The water had reached the first stories and was gradually going up to the second. Those who lingered too long had to be removed in boats. Two hundred families living in the lowlands in the town of Plymouth had to leave their houses hastily in the afternoon. At Nanticoke several houses were swept away by the rushing waters and the people living in them had a narrow escape. Several washouts are reported along the line of the Central Railroad of New Jersey. Reports from the mines show that many of them were flooded and it will take some days before they can be pumped out. This will curtail the output of coal. Nine lives have been lost so far. The casualties for the past twenty-four hours were three.

Many Industries Paralyzed.

Philadelphia, March 3.—The Schuylkill river is again within its banks and getting to its normal condition. The destruction wrought by the storm was so great that many industrial establishments along the river banks will be unable to resume work for several days. Quite a number of buildings used for manufacturing purposes had their foundations weakened and machinery clogged with mud. All reports from up-river points carry the information that great damage was done. The various towns, now that the water has receded, are rapidly recovering their normal condition.

Worst Flood in Many Years.

Wheeling W. Va., March 3.—Wheeling is in the grasp of the worst flood it has experienced since 1884 with but one exception. In Wheeling, Bellaire, Benwood, Martin's Ferry and Bridgeport scores of factories have been entered by the raging waters, fires extinguished and 20,000 men placed on the list of involuntary idleness that will continue until to-night or to-morrow morning. Wheeling island is two-thirds covered by water and fully 700 families are occupying the upper floors of their homes. South Wheeling and Benwood were hit fully as hard.

Pittsburg Is Recovering.

Pittsburg, March 3. — This city and Allegheny have so far recovered from the flood as to have resumed all ordinary traffic and to have in a great measure overcome the inconvenience brought about by the high waters. The only portions of either city still under water are the lower parts of Penn avenue in Pittsburg and the Wood Run district in Allegheny. Both of these sections will be out of the water's clutch in a few hours, as the rivers are steadily falling here and at all points above. An estimate of the damage done here by the flood is hard to get at, but conservative men place the total at about $1,250,000. This includes the loss to thousands of workmen in wages as well as the actual property loss.

Almost Wiped Out.

Fort Plain, N. Y., March 3.— The hamlet of Sprakers, six miles east of here, has been almost wiped out by the combined forces of water and fire. Sprakers is made up of fifty families and has been under water for two days. Great masses of ice came down the river and struck the houses, some of which were so shaken that stoves were overturned and the dwellings were burned.

Much Damage at Harrisburg.

Harrisburg, Pa., March 3.—The second and third piers of the famous old camel-back bridge on the Harrisburg side were washed away by high water early yesterday morning. Much damage has been done by the high water in and about Harrisburg.

The Ohio Raging.

Cincinnati, March 3. — Reports from the Upper Ohio valley show the river rising from Wheeling to Ripley and above the danger line at all intermediate points.

MARCONI AGAIN SPANS OCEAN.

Marconi Maintains Constant Communication With Home Station While on Ocean.

New York, March 3. — Skeptics who doubted the truth of Marconi's recent statement that he had succeeded in dispatching messages between Newfoundland and his Cornwall station were furnished Saturday with proofs of a still more marvelous achievement on the part of the versatile Italian electrician, who arrived from Southampton on the Philadelphia. He announced, and his testimony was corroborated by that of the captain of the vessel, that he had been in communication with the Podhue station for almost the entire distance across the ocean. Day after day on the voyage the inventor sat at his post on the steamer and kept up an uninterrupted succession of messages with the home station. For 2,000 miles not the slightest difficulty was experienced, but after that the connection was not perfect.

FARGO HAS QUITE A FIRE.

Offices and Warehouses of the J. I. Case Company Are Totally Destroyed.

Fargo, N. D., March 3.—Fire yesterday destroyed the big J. I. Case offices and warehouses here, and entailed a loss of $75,000. The flames are supposed to have started in the boiler room and to have burned slowly for several hours before they were discovered. In addition to the building, which was valued at something like $20,000, there were twenty complete threshing rigs stored there, some old machines were in the basement for remodeling, and there was an extra large stock of repairs on hand, as this office was used as the repair distributing point of the entire Northwest.

FIGHT WITH BURGLARS.

Chief of Police Badly Wounded and One Burglar Receives Fatal Injuries.

Mattoon, Ill., March 3. — In a fight between burglars and officers here early yesterday morning Chief of Police Lyons received wounds that may cause the loss of an arm by amputation and two or three youths whom the police were attempting to capture, were wounded, one of them fatally. The police were advised that an attempt would be made to rob the bank, stationed three men in the building, and when the youths entered through a rear window the police attempted to capture them.

KING LEOPOLD IN BAD HEALTH.

Condition Causes Anxiety, But Physicians Deny Symptoms Are Serious.

Brussels, March 3.—The condition of King Leopold, who has been ill since his return here from the Riviera, is causing anxiety. The physicians in attendance on his majesty deny that his symptoms are serious, but the frequency of their visits has given rise to disquieting rumors.

CHILE MAY BUY NAVY.

Commission Appointed to Investigate Questions of Purchasing Armament.

Santiago, Chile, March 3. — A naval commission composed of Admiral Simpson and Captains Switzon and Martinez, who are now in Europe, has been appointed for the purpose of examining into the matter of the acquisition of naval armaments in England.

AN AMERICAN JUDGE.

English Language Must Be Spoken by Would-Be Citizens.

Fargo, N. D., March 3.—The action of Judge Owen of Devils Lake in refusing naturalization papers to an applicant who was unable to speak the English language after a six-year residence in the state seems to be generally indorsed by the press. The judge is stalwart in his Americanism and wants the men who are given citizenship to be able to appreciate the honor.

FIVE CRUSHED TO DEATH.

Many Are Injured in Collapse of Cleveland Factory.

Cleveland, Ohio, March 3.—The fourth floor of the Cleveland Baking company's plant on Central avenue fell under the weight of a large number of barrels of flour, crushing through the three under floors, into the basement. Five persons are missing, four girls and a man. They are buried beneath the mass of debris in the basement and are undoubtedly dead.

Killed Himself by Hanging.

Warren, Ohio, March 3—Hon. Henry Bishop Perkins, one of Ohio's most prominent and philanthropic citizens, killed himself by hanging yesterday in his office. Illness and suicide of a favorite son is believed to be the cause.

Two Men Drowned.

Pikeville, Ky., March 3. — Frank Tyre of Catletsburg, Ky., and Lewis Schrodt of Portsmouth, Ohio, traveling men, were drowned in the Big Sandy near here yesterday by the overturning of their boat.

NEW YORK'S WARM GREETING

NOISY DEMONSTRATION IN HONOR OF GERMANY'S SAILOR PRINCE.

PAYS VISIT TO THE PRESIDENT

MR. ROOSEVELT EXPRESSES A WELCOME ON BEHALF OF THE NATION.

Greeted by Roosevelt.

Washington, Feb. 26.—Prince Henry of Prussia and suite, accompanied by the welcoming delegations from both the president and the German embassy, arrived here at 10:20 o'clock yesterday morning, promptly on schedule time.

Attired in the uniform of an admiral, Prince Henry entered an open carriage with Secretary of State Hay and Rear Admiral Evans, the latter occupying the front seat.

The sun shone brilliantly and it was as balmy as a day in May as between the lines of the national guard standing at attention the brilliant cortege moved along the famous Pennsylvania avenue to the White House.

Behind the lines of soldiers were solid masses of people extending to the building lines, while the windows of all buildings were jammed with people. As Prince Henry's carriage swung into the East gate the White House Marine band played "My Country." The cortege stopped under the great porte-cochere and the party alighted. Maj. McCawley and Capt. Gilmore back into the long state corridor, then to the left into the East room. The prince's suite remained until he had concluded his interview with the president. In the green room the members of the cabinet and their ladies were gathered. Prince Henry passed them, gracefully bowing.

Conducted the Prince

At the door of the Blue parlor Maj. Cawley and Capt. Gilmore parted from the prince, who proceeded alone. He had scarcely crossed the threshold before President Roosevelt, who was waiting, stepped forward and grasped him by the hand. The greetings were of the most cordial nature.

At 11:40 President Roosevelt returned Prince Henry's visit.

The visit of Prince Henry and his suite to the capitol yesterday afternoon must have been not only a gratifying experience to the royal visitor on account of the warm and flattering reception he received at both the house and senate and of the opportunity it afforded of meeting personally the leaders of both houses.

The dinner given to Prince Henry by President Roosevelt at the White House in the evening closed the honors bestowed on the royal visitor by official Washington yesterday.

Launching of the Meteor.

New York, Feb. 27. — Sunshine was the only thing needed to make complete the otherwise successfully carried out and brilliant program arranged for yesterday when the announced purpose of the visit of Prince Henry of Prussia to this country, as the representative of his brother, Emperor William, was accomplished, and the kaiser's yacht Meteor launched and christened by Miss Alice Roosevelt, attended by her father, the president.

The launch, on Shooter's island, took place in the morning and the program carried out without a hitch took up something less than an hour. Sponsor, prince and president were the center of a brilliant assemblage of guests privileged to witness an interesting exchange of international courtesies.

The Meteor moved down the ways at 10:39 a. m. amid a scene of great enthusiasm. The launching proper was without a mishap and presented a graceful and beautiful picture, although it was accomplished in a drizzling rain and other inauspicious atmospheric conditions.

In the evening Prince Henry, his suite and the presidential delegates were the guests of the mayor of New York at dinner at the Manhattan club and the day was brought to a close with a wonderful performance at the Metropolitan opera house.

Dined and Wined.

New York, Feb. 28. — The luncheon given yesterday in honor of his royal highness, Prince Henry of Prussia, by twelve New York gentlemen and a German government official, to about 100 Americans from all parts of the United States who are of eminence in the finance, commerce and industries of the United States, at Sherry's, was in some respects the most notable function of its kind ever held in this city. There were 137 persons seated at eleven tables.

In the evening Prince Henry dined with 1,000 of the men who make American newspapers. He was the special guest of Herman Ridder, proprietor of the New York Staats Zeitung, who gathered at his table a majority of the leading figures in American journalism. They came from the four quarters of the country and made the most noteworthy gathering of their profession ever assembled in the United States.

MARTYR HONORED.

Beautiful and Impressive Services Held in Honor of McKinley.

Washington, March 1.—Memorial exercises in honor of the late President McKinley in the house of representatives drew a distinguished gathering to the floor of that great chamber yesterday, while the galleries were filled to overflowing with people. Crowds began to flock to the capitol hours before the opening ceremonies. At 11:30 the Marine band, stationed in the lobby behind the speaker's desk, played "Nearer, My God, to Thee," and followed with the intermezzo from the Cavalleria Rusticana. Lord Pauncefote, the British ambassador, dean of accompanied by Chinese Minister Wu, arrived at 11:50 and was followed rapidly by the other diplomats, taking the seats in the front rows to the right of the speaker. Five minutes before noon the speaker called the assemblage to order. Chaplain Coudon offered prayer. Then Lieut. Gen. Miles appeared in the center of the doorway at 12:02, and, after being announced, was conducted to a seat.

The Diplomatic Corps,

"His Royal Highness, Prince Henry of Prussia," announced the doorkeeper. Speaker and house arose as one man and the royal visitor came down the center aisle, escorted by Representative Grosvenor and Senator Foraker, and followed by Ambassador von Holleben.

Played German Hymn.

Simultaneously the band struck up "Heil dir Im Siegerkranz." Until the last strains of the national air died away the prince, statesmen, officers and the "plain people" remained standing. The stroke of the speaker's gavel seated the audience.

President Roosevelt and cabinet then appeared, all rising again as the chief executive, escorted by Grosvenor and Foraker, chairmen of the house and senate memorial committees, came down the aisle, where they stood until the band rendered "My Country." The president took the chair beside the prince and directly in front of the speaker.

Memorial Exercises.

The chief justice and associate justices were then announced and President Pro Tem. Frye relieved Speaker Henderson of the gavel. Frye announced the purpose of the gathering and that Chaplain Coudon would pray. The chaplain thanked God for McKinley's services as a soldier, citizen and statesman, and that he had left a monument more grand and imposing than the mind of man can conceive—a record which he had written in heaven for himself. As the assemblage slowly took seats after the prayer Mr. Frye said:

"It is now my great pleasure to introduce to you the Hon. John Hay, who has been selected to pay tribute in an address to the memory of our late beloved president."

Grand Eulogy by Hay.

Secretary Hay began his oration amidst a solemn silence. He strongly condemned the crime which deprived a nation of its head, showing with great clearness the utter uselessness and inhumanity of the act. Then followed a grand eulogy of the life and work of the dead president—a eulogy such as has never been excelled, and seldom equalled, in the records of congress. Touching and reverent reference was made to Mr. McKinley's loving family life, his honorable career as a soldier, his high professional ethics, his great statesmanship, which the orator declared shall forever leave its stamp upon the history of the country, and the noble and cheerful sacrifice of his life on the nation's altar.

LIVELY FOR THE PRINCE.

Fitting Culmination to His Visit to the National Capital.

Washington, March 1.—Prince Henry's visit to the national capital had a fitting culmination last night in a splendid official dinner given at the German embassy and later a tremendous outburst of popular enthusiasm from the German residents of Washington, as the imperial visitor was about to start for his Southern and Western tour. The dinner was given at the embassy at 8 o'clock, his royal highness being the guest of honor, while those invited to meet him were representative of the highest official and diplomatic society.

During the afternoon Prince Henry enjoyed one event not on his official itinerary when he and President Roosevelt went in a rainstorm on a horseback ride of an hour and a quarter through Rock creek valley and the suburbs in the northwestern section of the city. The ride was arranged personally between them during one of their talks at an official function. The ride was through the northwestern suburbs and rain fell a large part of the time, but both riders seemed to enjoy the outing.

Visits Naval Academy.

Annapolis, Md., March 1. — Prince Henry of Prussia yesterday visited the naval academy and met the cadets under instruction there. He saw them at work and at play, and at the close of his visit addressed them in a complimentary speech, expressing his confidence that they would do their duty if their country called.

Operators Stand Firm and Conference Ends Without Result.

Des Moines, Iowa, March 1. — The conference of the joint scale committees of the miners and mine operators of Iowa has adjourned after three days' futile effort to reach an agreement. The operators refused to make any concessions from last year's scale and the miners refused to recede from their demands. A second conference has been called for March 11.

TWENTY CAMPS QUIT.

Lumberjacks Are Thrown Out of Work.

Akeley, Minn., March 1.—About twenty logging camps in the immediate vicinity of Akeley have been broken up by continued rains and mild weather, throwing about 2,000 men out of work, leaving contracts only partially completed and loggers in financial straits. No more logging can be done this year, as the roads are completely destroyed. The loss will be great.

WEALTH BUT NO WILL.

Fifty Thousand Dollars May Escheat to Wisconsin.

Eau Claire, Wis., March 1.—William H. Watson, who died yesterday morning, left an estate worth probably $50,000, but no will and no heirs. Diligent inquiry by wire fails to reveal a single relative.

Kicked by a Colt.

Appleton, Minn., March 1. — Elmore Stotts, an aged farmer residing two miles south of town, was kicked by a colt he was training and injured so seriously that he died in a few hours. He was an old resident.

Mail Trains Collide.

Portage, Wis., March 1. — Two fast mail trains on the Milwaukee road collided at Lake George station, three miles east of here. No one was hurt but traffic was delayed for several hours.

HENRY IS PLEASED

WARMLY GREETED ON HIS JOURNEY THROUGH THE SOUTH AND WEST.

VISITS HISTORIC BATTLEFIELDS

HEARS AFRESH STORIES OF THE CONFLICT BETWEEN NORTH AND SOUTH.

NEGRO MELODIES TICKLE HIM

CROWDS THRONG EVERY STATION AND GREET HIM WITH CHEERS.

Indianapolis, March 3.—Prince Henry of Prussia went up Lookout mountain yesterday, and after viewing the ground where the Union and Confederate armies met in conflict and hearing a fresh story of the battle, resumed his journey to the North and West. Leaving Chattanooga over the Nashville, Chattanooga & St. Louis railroad, his train ran through a corner of Alabama, and then turning to the north, hurried across Tennessee, with a short stop at Nashville, through Kentucky, with brief stays at Louisville and Bowling Green, and up into Indiana to another brief halt at Indianapolis. At Indianapolis the course was changed to the westward again, and on the tracks of the Vandalia line his train went on toward St. Louis. His reception in the South was hospitable and demonstrative. The negroes manifested great curiosity to see the prince, and they interested and amused him. He got an opportunity to hear them sing at Nashville and at the experience. It was the Glee club of Fisk university that sang, and at the close he asked the young woman who led them to come into his car. He shook her hand and congratulated her. There was a great crowd at Chattanooga, and the people presented the prince with a handsome souvenir of his visit. Nashville also made a demonstration of friendliness, as did Louisville and Indianapolis. At every station along the route the people gathered to salute him with cheers. There was much enthusiasm over Admiral Evans as well, and at several points after they had seen and cheered the prince the people called for the admiral. Brief though it was, Prince Henry was delighted with his Southern tour and as he was leaving Nashville, said: "The people have been very kind to me. Everywhere they have received me in the kindliest manner, and I very deeply appreciate it. I wish they might all know how thankful I am."

Was Greatly Pleased

FILLED HIM WITH LEAD.

A Drunken Man Uses a Shotgun With Effect.

Mattoon, Ill., March 3. — A serious shooting affray last evening occurred at Charleston, ten miles east of here, in which Frank and Thomas Houchin, brothers, were shot by Jack White, brother-in-law of Thomas Houchin.

White did his work with a double-barreled shotgun and eighty-three shot landed in Frank Houchin's arm and side at a distance of six feet. He may die. Thomas Houchin received only part of the charge. He will recover. Anthony Houchin, another brother, just moved away from the muzzle of the weapon as White pulled the triggers. Domestic difficulties were the cause.

White was intoxicated. He alleged that Thomas Houchin had abused his sister, Houchin's wife. The men met in George Crim's saloon early in the evening and there was a row in which brickbats and beer bottles figured. White sent home and secured his shotgun. Next he called at Houchin's residence and made such a disturbance that the police were sent for. He eluded them and reached Crim's saloon, where Thomas, Frank and Anthony Houchin were conversing. They saw him coming and bolted the door. White ran to a window, thrust his weapon through and fired both barrels. Several hours later he was arrested and lodged in jail. Frank Houchin is an industrious and respected young man.

REBELLION IS GRAVE.

United States Calls on China to Protect Foreigners.

Pekin, March 3.—The Chinese foreign office now admits that the rebellion in the vicinity of Non-ning, a province of Quang See, seventy miles north of the Gulf of Tonquin, is very grave, though this was denied yesterday. Over 1,000 former soldiers are engaged in pillaging. An edict has been issued commanding the Chinese authorities to afford protection to the missionaries and other foreigners. Mr. Conger, the United States minister, has notified Prince Ching, head of the foreign office, that he expects China will speedily suppress the rebellion and protect the foreigners in that part of the country.

TWO BUILDINGS COLLAPSE.

Terrific Explosion Causes Death of Three Persons.

Reading, Pa., March 3.—A terrific explosion occurred last night in the four-story music store of C. H. Lichty. The building at once completely collapsed. This was followed by the three-story brick umbrella factory adjoining of Mrs. Mary Roland. Both buildings and contents were destroyed. A number of persons were in the building but they were all accounted for except Mrs. Roland and a friend who called to spend the evening, and the watchman in the Lichty building. It is believed these three persons perished. The explosion is said to have been due to a gas which was manufactured by a local company.

Two Brothers Drowned.

Montgomery, Ala., March 3. — Capt. Charles A. Allen and his brother, Thomas Allen, of this city, were drowned in the backwaters of the Alabama river yesterday while driving a young horse which became frightened.

Burned Public Buildings.

Rome, March 3.—The inhabitants of Cassano, Department of Calabria, attacked and burned the municipal buildings of their town. The troops re-established order. Several persons were wounded.

The Legislature

Proceedings of the Week in the ..... State Law Mill...

In the House.

St. Paul, Feb. 25.—The great battle in the house on the tax code will probably come off to-day. It would have come yesterday afternoon had not the tax law advocates filibustered until adjournment to delay a vote. They talked in relays. The situation was peculiar. The house has 118 members, but only about 100 were present yesterday; the rest had not returned from the holiday and Sunday recess. The passage of the tax bill needs sixty votes, a majority of the whole membership. The tax advocates had not the sixty votes, so their game was to delay a vote until to-day, in the hope that among the absentees there would be enough to give them the requisite number.

The third reading of the tax code was begun soon after 2 o'clock, and was concluded in less than an hour. A conference of the tax code leaders had been held in the meantime, and as it was certain they could not secure the necessary sixty votes during the afternoon, the order was to talk away the remainder of the day.

Representative Pennington secured the adoption of an amendment providing that not more than two members of the tax commission shall be of the same political party.

Representative Jacobson pleaded that more time should be allowed for debate.

The motion for the previous question was lost by a vote of 31 to 56.

Many of the opponents of the bill were not in the hall when the vote was taken, and Sherman Smith demanded a call of the house. A motion to adjourn intervened, which was carried by a vote of 67 to 35.

In the House.

St. Paul, Feb. 26. — The tax bill is dead. The result of nine months' labor by the tax commission and three weeks' deliberation by the legislature is now so much waste paper. For all practical purposes this effort has been wasted.

The legislature will now attempt to agree on a bill submitting constitutional amendments to be voted on next fall. Other tax legislation will be attempted and the session is not likely to close till the last of next week.

The house listened to arguments for and against the tax bill for nearly two hours before coming to a vote.

Four members were absent on account of sickness. But even with them the bill would have been lost. It lacked six votes of the necessary sixty.

The bill is dead. An attempt will be made to restore it to life by reconsideration. This may succeed in getting it temporarily before the house in an effort to strike out the Wallace amendments. Without these amendments, however, the bill will not pass. The opposition to the bill will oppose reconsideration and will oppose striking out the Wallace amendments. Reconsideration may be carried, but it is evident that the bill cannot pass, however doctored.

A grist of bills was introduced yesterday in the house and sent to the committee on reception of bills.

In the Senate.

Yesterday's senate session lasted thirty-five minutes and included little work of importance beyond the passage of the concurrent resolution introduced last week, asking congress to establish a military post at Crookston, Minn.

In the House.

St. Paul, Feb. 27.—The tax code was killed Tuesday and was buried yesterday when, by a vote of 55 to 54 the house refused to reconsider the vote by which the measure was lost.

The vote on reconsideration was made with five members less present than the vote on which the bill was lost.

Immediately on the announcement of the death of the old code a flood of new tax bills was ready.

Mr. Jacobson submitted one embodying, in addition to the features of the defeated code as to street railways and other public service corporations, a 5-cent tonnage tax on ores.

The house passed the senate bill appropriating $25,000 for expenses in the legal fight against the Northern Securities company.

In the Senate.

Senator McGowan introduced a lengthy resolution, reciting that the house refused to pass a tax bill for the consideration of the senate, and, therefore, proposed the senate adjourn sine die. Lieut. Gov. L. A. Smith let the resolution be read, but stated it was out of order, basing his ruling on the constitutional provision that neither branch of the legislature can adjourn for over three days without consent of the other. Senator Daugherty gave notice of debate, and, under the rules, the resolution went over.

Several new bills were introduced.

In the Senate.

St. Paul, Feb. 28.—Senator John H. Ives of St. Paul called for a vote on a reconsideration of the memorial to congress which asks for the establishment of a military post at Crookston. The motion to reconsider was defeated.

A number of important bills were introduced and most of them sent to the reception of bills committee.

Senator Sheehan presented a bill to permit all telegraph and telephone companies to issue trust deeds for part or all of their properties, for which trust deeds corporate bonds may be floated, negotiable, to bear interest not to exceed 10 per cent, and convertible into stock if deemed expedient.

Senator Halvorsen fathered a bill requiring banks to file statements with the bank examiner May 1 each year.

Senator Daly introduced a bill to have grain in elevators assessed, in the name of the elevator owner.

In the House.

The house passed the senate resolution correcting the kind of mocasin flower which is to be the state flower hereafter.

The house practically beat the Nyquist bill to defeat the 1901 dog tax law by substituting for it in committee of the whole the bill of Mr. Morlov, which makes it optional with each county whether dogs shall be licensed or not.

The committee on reception of bills laid to rest a number of measures.

MINNESOTA LEGISLATURE.

Jacobson Tax Bill Warmly Received in the Senate.

St. Paul, March 3. — The Jacobson tax bill, which passed the house Friday got a stormy reception in the senate Saturday and precipitated a debate that developed a large body of hostilities. The attack on the measure was made from several directions—upon its constitutionality, its scope and upon several of its most important provisions. After a long fight the bill was sent to the taxes and tax laws committee. A common understanding was first reached that hearings and committee examination of the measure must be concluded speedily and that the bill be reported Wednesday.

Stockwell's resolution calling upon the president to put a stop to the shipment of horses and mules from the United States to South Africa passed by a vote of 36 to 5.

In the House.

The house Saturday, with barely enough members on the floor to pass bills, received a dozen unimportant measures, passed nearly as many more, agreed upon a special order on the Anderson bills for Monday afternoon and adjourned.

The interest of the house lay in the fate of the Jacobson bill over in the senate, where the lords of the upper house were becoming involved in a preliminary struggle with the measure, which the house shinned through without an amendment. Those members directly interested in bills before the house managed to keep within voting distance a bare majority, and the bills passed went through in a majority of cases practically by default.

WHERE SULLY FOUGHT.

Whitestone Battlefield in North Dakota to Be Made Into a Park.

Fargo, N. D., March 3.—The success of the plan to have Whitestone battlefield in Dickey county set aside as a small national park seems assured. Register Valentine of the local land office has received an order from the department at Washington to withhold from entry the southeast quarter of section 7, the southwest quarter of 8, the northwest quarter of 17 and the northeast quarter of 18, township 131, range 65. This section would include the battlefield on which Gen. Sully fought the Indians in 1863.

FIERCE, BLOODY FIGHT.

Mockist Leader and a Force of One Thousand Are Completely Routed at La Frias.

Willemstad, Curacao, March 3.—According to advices from Caracas, the Mockist leader, Gorbira, with a thousand men, nearly all of them Colombians, Feb. 24 attempted a new invasion of Venezuela near La Frias. After a bloody fight at Las Cumbres the insurgents were completely routed and obliged to retire across the frontier, leaving a large number of dead on the field.

FIGHT WITH DEATH.

Conductor Holds the Grim Reaper Off for a Few Hours.

Fargo, N. D., March 3. — After remaining on duty under trying circumstances and bringing his train successfully to the end of his trip, Conductor Segar of the Soo, from Enderlin to Portal, dropped dead at the latter place as he stepped from the car. He had striven to live until he reached Portal and death came immediately on the relaxation.

INJURIES ARE FATAL.

Traveling Man Who Was Injured at Blanchard, N. D., Dies.

Fergus Falls, Minn., March 3.—W. B. Dowley, the traveling man who was injured in the Great Northern wreck at Blanchard, died of his injuries. His wife left here for his bedside, but his death occurred an hour before she arrived. Dowley was well known throughout this section, having traveled for the St. Paul Rubber company for a number of years.

Sherman and Senator John Sherman, died here at the age of forty-five years, as the result of a paralytic stroke experienced five weeks ago while visiting his wife's grave at Woodland cemetery.

CREAMERY IS BURNED.

Bellingham Industry Is a Heavy Sufferer.

Bellingham, Minn., March 3. — The plant of the Bellingham Co-operative creamery company was burned to the ground. The loss on the building and contents is total, as there is no insurance. The plant was managed under a lease by J. N. McBride. The building was erected in 1897 at a cost of $3,200.

Tax Collections Good.

Fergus Falls, Minn., March 3.—County Treasurer Butler has footed up the totals of the tax collections made on his tour of the county this year, and finds that he collected $37,930 during the four weeks that he spent among the farmers. This is $11,000 more than last year's collections and $10,000 more than the collections of any previous tour in the county's history. The farmers have money this year and are paying up their taxes as never before.

Would Curb the Sports.

Sioux City, Iowa, March 3.—The ministers of this city at a session held behind closed doors decided to place a municipal ticket in the field for the spring election. Rigid enforcement of all laws is the general demand of the ministers, who claim that the saloons and sporting element have had too much liberty in the past.

Unite in Institute Work.

Sturgis, S. D., March 3.—This year the counties of Meade, Butte and Pennington again unite forces in institute work. The session will convene in Belle Fourche June 3 and close June 11. A large gathering is anticipated.

Meets Death at a Crossing.

St. Paul, March 3.—Mrs. Anna Korsenn was run down by a Milwaukee freight train near the West Seventh street crossing at 2:30 yesterday morning. She died while being taken to the city hospital.

LIVING IN LONDON.

It Is Not a Good Place For a Man of Small Income.

An American who in the classical language of his country is at present "located" in London wants to know whether any city in the world is quite so niggardly as our town. He has been going the round of the London restaurants and has encountered in the management of them a spirit which distresses him. "There is, to begin with," he says, "a charge of from twopence to sixpence for guarding your hat and coat in the cloakroom, and a tip in addition is expected. You want to wash your hands—another twopence or another sixpence and another tip. You take up the menu, and, behold, there is an intimation that a charge of threepence each person will be made under the guise of 'table money.' The charge varies according to the nature of the place. Threepence is the lowest and sixpence perhaps the average. At a great many restaurants it is 1 shilling and in at least two that I have visited 1s. 6d. The only difference is that in the lower priced restaurants it is called 'table money' and in the higher priced ones placed under the captivating heading of 'couvert.' To my mind, an entrance fee frankly demanded at the door would be much less offensive than to find yourself asked at the end of a dinner to pay for the trouble and expense of cleaning up the cutlery you have used."

His conclusion of the whole matter is that "London lives by imposing a fixed tariff on the accessories that in every other city I have ever been to are thrown in gratis," and he thinks that being a gentleman is one of the most expensive professions an Englishman can have. He declares it to be an utter delusion that London is a cheap place to live in. "For the poor man," he says, "the man whose income is less than £800 a year, there is no city where less can be had in the way of comforts and even the necessities of life. In New York it is only the luxuries that cost. The expenses of everyday living may be as great or as small as one cares to make them. New York, in fact, is laid out for the poor man. From the transportation system to the price of such fundamental charges on the household treasury as coal, ice, fuel, meat, bread, milk and fruit, almost everything conspires to bring him in a good return for a very small outlay. All these things are cheaper in New York than in London."—London Chronicle.

Bills In Congress.

The words "has introduced a bill in congress," applied to a senator or representative, usually sound much larger than their ordinary meaning warrants. In order properly to estimate the value of the introduction of a bill one must remember that of 12,000 or 15,000 measures introduced a few hundred only are passed. As for proposed amendments to the constitution, the infant mortality among them is appalling. Each new congress sees a score or more of proposals for a "sixteenth amendment to the constitution." We shall doubtless some time have such a thing, yet three amendments, all of which were consequences of a great civil war, represent the only changes made in the constitution since the presidency of Thomas Jefferson.—Youth's Companion.

Houses and Superstitions.

"Real estate men are gradually forgetting most of the old time superstitions which used to cause us much trouble," said a dealer the other day. "The number of houses which cannot be rented or sold on account of being haunted or because some terrible crime was committed on the premises is rapidly decreasing. We run across only a few people who balk at living in house No. 13. Even elderly men who have made big fortunes are beginning to believe that there is nothing in the old saying that the aged rich man builds a mansion to die in."—New York Tribune.

OLD STAGECOACHES.

THE LINE THAT RAN BETWEEN KANSAS AND CALIFORNIA.

It Cost $225 For the Through Trip, and Seats Often Brought a Big Bonus—How One Load of Passengers Amused Themselves.

The stage line between Atchison and Placerville, Cal., which ran daily coaches for about five years in 1860-65, was the finest ever known in the stagecoach business. In equipment no similar line could equal it. It was the greatest stage line on the globe, carrying passengers, mail and express.

In 1864-65 it cost more for meals between Atchison and Denver than the railroad fare now costs, with meals added. The run from Atchison to Denver is now made in something like fifteen hours as against six days in the stagecoach days. At one time the fare from Atchison to Denver was $175; the railroad fare at present is $15. The quickest time ever made by stage between Atchison and Denver was four and a half days. Ben Holladay, owner of the line, traveled by special coaches from Placerville, Cal., to Atchison, 2,000 miles, in twelve days and two hours, beating the regular daily schedule five days. This feat cost Holladay $20,000, but it was a great advertisement for his line. The stages, when crowded, carried fifteen persons, besides great quantities of mail and express.

One of the coaches used on the Atchison-Placerville line is now in the Smithsonian institution at Washington. After leaving Atchison it was operated on the Deadwood line and was several times captured by Indians and outlaws. Once when captured by outlaws it carried $60,000 in gold. In this attack three guards were killed. Buffalo Bill heard that the old coach had been abandoned and went after it, using it for years in his wild west show. In London it carried the Prince of Wales, and all the notables of Europe examined it with interest. On the Fourth of July, 1895, this famous old coach was exhibited with the wild west show at Concord, N. H., where it was made. The owners and employees of the stagecoach factory gave the historic old stage a great deal of attention, and in the parade it bore this sign: "1863—Home Again—1895."

Including Atchison and Placerville, there were 153 stations on the line, the longest in existence (1,913 miles). The fare was $225, or about 12 cents a mile. The stations were from ten to fourteen miles apart. Some days $2,000 was taken in at the stage office in Atchison for fares alone. Each passenger was allowed twenty-five pounds of baggage; each pound of excess cost $1, which was the price for carrying express. The fare to Denver during the war was $175, or 27 cents a mile per passenger. The stages were nearly always crowded, and passengers were often compelled to wait several days at Atchison before they could be accommodated. A minister once refused to travel on Sunday and abandoned his place. He did not get a chance to go until the following Sunday, and this time he concluded that, under certain circumstances, traveling on Sunday was excusable. Sometimes passengers booked for a certain day sold out for a bonus of from $20 to $50 and waited for a later stage.

The quickest route between New York and San Francisco at that time was by way of Atchison. The western terminus of the line was changed from St. Joseph to Atchison on completion of the Hannibal and St. Joseph road to this point, as Atchison was eight miles nearer Placerville than St. Joseph. The stage line ran a little north of west from Atchison, crossing the Big Blue at Marysville, 100 miles west; thence continuing in a northwesterly course up the north side of the Little Blue and over the divide into the Platte valley; thence by way of Fort Kearney, Plum Creek and Julesberg to Denver. The road between Atchison and Denver was in the form of a crescent. O'Fallon's Bluff was 100 miles north of Atchison and Denver. The easiest part of the line was between Atchison and Fort Kearney. The schedule time of the stages was four and a half miles an hour, night and day, including stops. Occasionally the drivers would make fifteen miles an hour, and the passengers thought it very fast. The express messengers received $62.50 a month, with free meals, and were compelled to ride beside the driver six days and nights without rest, except as they could sleep while the stage was in motion. They received a lay over of nine days every three weeks. On going to bed after a trip they frequently slept twenty-four hours without moving. Drivers received from $40 to $75 a month and board. On the main line there were 2,750 horses and mules and 100 coaches. The annual cost of operating the line was $2,425,000.

The passengers were nearly all men, and they had a hard time amusing themselves. A gay party of eight once started from Atchison, and they sang for two days and nights, using ribald words to old church tunes. Finally one man proposed a collection. With the money thus raised they bought a jug of whisky at a station. Then there were a spree and quarreling and poker playing. One man said he had been robbed by one of the players, and he insisted so strongly on a fight that the stage was stopped and a ring formed. The two drunken men rushed at each other, bumped each other down and could not get up. The other men helped the fighters to their feet, and the harmless battle was renewed. Finally the driver would wait no longer, and the stage went on, with the passengers quarreling on the inside. At last they engaged in a general fight and then went off into a drunken sleep.—Atchison Globe.

NATURE'S ICEHOUSE.

Food For Birds That Is Preserved In the Arctic Regions.

The number of birds that go to the arctic regions to breed is vast beyond conception. They go not by thousands, but by tens and hundreds of thousands, and because nowhere else in the world does nature provide at the same time and in the same place such a lavish prodigality of food.

The vegetation consists of cranberry, cloudberry and crowberry bushes, and these, forced by the perpetual sunshine of the arctic summer, bear enormous crops of fruit. But the crop is not ripe until the middle and end of the arctic summer, and if the fruit eating birds had to wait until it was ripe they would starve in the meantime, so they arrive on the very day of the melting of the snow.

But each year the snow descends on an immense crop of ripe fruit before the birds have time to gather it. It is thus preserved perfectly fresh and pure, and the melting of the snow discloses the bushes, with the unconsumed last year's crop hanging on them or lying ready to be eaten, on the ground.

The frozen meal stretches across the breadth of northern Asia. It never decays and is accessible the moment the snow melts. The same heat which thaws the fruit brings into being the most prolific insect life in the world—the mosquito swarms on the tundra. No European can live there without a veil after the snow melts. The gun barrels are black with them, and clouds of them often obscure the sight.

Thus the insect eating birds have only to open their mouths to fill them with mosquitoes, and thus the presence of swarms of cliff chaffs, pipis and the wagtails in this arctic region is accounted for.—Pearson's.

THE RIGHT TO VOTE.

In England It Is Withheld From Many Full Fledged Citizens.

There are many full fledged English citizens who are disqualified from membership in parliament and from taking any part in parliamentary elections. Thus all peers of the realm, except those Irish peers who do not happen to have been elected for life to represent their order in the house of lords, are barred from the exercise of franchise. So, too, are police officials, high and low. They neither have a vote nor are they eligible.

Ineligibility to parliament extends to the Anglican clergy, to Scottish Presbyterian ministers and to the Roman Catholic priesthood. Undischarged bankrupts and those convicted of felony and who have not completed their sentences and are merely freed on tickets of leave are likewise disqualified from election to parliament. So, too, are young men under the age of twenty-one and persons who, having been judicially declared insane, have not been legally restored to their civic rights and privileges.

Insanity, however, does not constitute any disqualification in the case of the upper house of parliament. Lunatics are permitted to take part in the divisions in the gilded chamber, and at the time when the Irish home rule bill, enacted by the house of commons, was defeated by the house of lords no less than three crazy peers were brought down to Westminster by their keepers from the insane asylums in which they were held under restraint and voted as hereditary legislators against home rule being granted to Erin.

Something New In Mechanics.

Great is the humor of woman when she doesn't mean it, great is the nerve of woman when she doesn't need it, and great are the nerves of woman when it so pleases her. This combination is blamable for the following: A very pretty girl sat in a Long Island railroad train. Suddenly the whistle blew. It is perhaps not necessary to say that a Long Island railroad whistle is more efficacious than otherwise. It is tuned to the key of W and is operated with a great diapason, giving out a brand of yelping shriek different from anything known to nature. To repeat, the whistle whistled. "O-o-ow!" cried the pretty girl. "Isn't that awful? I should think the railroad company would have these things oiled. It is an outrage." Her companion had often heard of wetting whistles, but never before of oiling them. Think it over.—Brooklyn Times.

What He Came For.

A learned judge who was one of the guests at a dinner was unexpectedly called upon to reply to a toast. Recovering somewhat from his surprise, he said that his situation reminded him of the story of a man who fell into the water while he was fishing.

With no little difficulty he was rescued, and, after he had regained his breath and was in a fairly comfortable condition, his rescuer asked him how he came to fall into the water.

"I did not come to fall into the water," replied the unfortunate fisherman. "I came to fish."

Voices to Order.

A knowledge of the physiology of the human larynx has made it possible to supply artificial voices to persons who have been deprived of the one nature gave them, and a number of cases exist where the cavity has been opened and a larynx made of suitable material with rubber membranes has been inserted and become practically useful in speech.

Heavenly.

"Say," the girl's father called from above stairs, "this is an unearthly hour for that young man to be here, Mary!"

"You're right," responded the young man, who had just been accepted; "the hour is unearthly, sure enough; it's simply heavenly!"—Philadelphia Record.

Curious Coincidence.

The theory that great men are usually born in the cold half of the year from October to March inclusive, gains a point through the fact that 19 of the presidents of the United States were born in the cold months while only six had birthdays in summer months. The month of February is said to have given us the world's greatest men, and it is notable that February was the birth month of both Washington and Lincoln. If you weren't born lucky, drink "Golden Grain Belt" beer. It tones up the system and makes one strong and happy, and such people are pretty likely to be successful in spite of the lack of a lucky birth. Order of your nearest dealer or be supplied by Alex. Thompson, Crookston, Minn.

To Open Reservation.

Mayor Kratka, of Thief River Falls, returned last Wednesday from his trip to Washington, where he went for the purpose of securing the opening of eleven townships of the Red Lake reservation. When he returned he was accompanied by Indian Inspector McLaughlin who is instructed to make a treaty with the Indians and arrange the terms upon which they will turn the land over to the government. It is expected that the treaty will be completed within a few days.

"The consent of every male Indian over 18 years of age is necessary before the reservation can be opened. This means that probably 200 signatures must be obtained. The Indians will be well paid for the land and each man, women and child will share pro rata. The Indians may remain on the land if they desire to do so.

"When the reservation is opened it is probable that the so-called lottery plan used so successfully in Oklahoma will be the mode of procedure. This gives every man who deposits $1.00 a fair chance to draw a quarter section of land and prevents contests."

Farmers with an eye to business always insure their buildings against fire. $22.50 will buy $1,000 fire insurance for five years. Call on H. E. Ives.

Death of Fred Wittich.

Fred Wittich, who was removed from here to the Crookston hospital a few days ago for treatment for typhoid fever died there on Saturday evening, his illness having lasted only about a week.

The deceased was about 32 years old and has been working during the past two years as night foreman in the saw mill here. He leaves a mother and sister, who live at St. Cloud, to mourn his early death. The remains were shipped there for interment. He had a host of friends here who heard of his death with sorrow that was genuine.

We are informed that all expenses of his illness and funeral will be paid by the Crookston Lumber Company in whose employ he has been for years. This certainly is an evidence of the high esteem with which he was regarded.

Car Load of Emigrants.

On Monday a special tourist car was deposited here by the Great Northern railway company, for the accommodation of a number of local people who had decided to make a trip to Yakima Valley. Of the number who left many will remain to make their homes in Washington, while some will soon return. The depot was crowded with the friends of the departing ones. The list included the following:

Andrew Swenson and family, Thos. Hennesy's family, Chas. Sundin and Ed Sudderman, all of Wylie; A. H. Weagant and family, Mrs. Wm. Peters and children, Mrs. Erick Hanson and children, Herman Adams sr., Miss Edna Dalnard, Gunder Lindquist and B. Kortgaard, of St. Hilaire. Miss Dalnerd goes to join her father, S. M. Dalnord, at Monroe, Washington, and Mr. Kortgoard to visit his daughter, Mrs. Delamater, at Blaine.

The Brotherhood of Nations.

How much nearer to each other the nations of the world seem to be to-day and really are to-day than was the case a few decades ago. When weeks and months were required for communications between the United States and Europe the countries of the old world appeared to be a long way off. Now the circumference of old earth is belted with telegraph and cable lines in every possible direction. What happens today in Europe, Asia, Africa, Australia, South America and the great islands of the sea is made known to us to-morrow by great newspapers like The Chicago Record-Herald, whose foreign news correspondents are located in every important city in the world outside of the United States. In addition to its own staff correspondents, The Record-Herald enjoys the foreign news service of the New York Herald, famous for many years for the reliability of its foreign news, and also of that great co-operative news-gathering organization, the Associated Press. No other daily newspaper in America possesses facilities so varied and extensive for covering the news of all nations.

RYE BREAD AND COFFEE.

This Is the Staple Food of Workingmen in Germany.

The workingman in Germany must have coffee, and plenty of it, and a little meat. Butter is practically unknown to him, lard being used in its stead. He rarely uses milk, eggs or white flour, and he never thinks of buying any of the better cuts of meat. Canned goods, familiar to every American worker, are absolutely unknown to him.

His staple food is rye bread, which he buys in enormous loaves. His wife or his little girl goes to market for this bread and brings it home clasped in her arms unwrapped. I have seen a little tot of a towheaded girl staggering homeward with a loaf almost as big as she was, and as she walked she gnawed lustily at the flinty end of the loaf. Indeed I have heard it said that the eating of this hard crusted bread gives the German workman teeth of unequaled excellence.

And this bread is good, thoroughly good. The government, which supervises everything and everybody, guards the rye bread of the people with jealous care. The bakers are watched, compelled to give full weight and make good bread. I have eaten it in a number of different towns, and it was always sweet to the taste and wholesome. This bread is fairly cheap, costing usually from 35 to 50 pfennigs (9 to 12 cents) a loaf, though it, too, has risen in price with increased demand.

Upon this great loaf the German empire may be said to rest. All Germany has grown up on it. In one form it is the basic ration of the German army, and many a peasant can live very well for a considerable time though he has nothing else to eat.—Outlook.

CANDLES.

Their Mellow Light Is Fast Becoming but a Memory.

So markedly is the candle going out of use that the dictionary of a few years hence will probably have to supplement its definition with an illustration. In the glow of electric light, gas and paraffin we are much disposed to pity our immediate forefathers who had to put up with candles.

Yet we retain a strange respect for the candle in certain directions. When we wish to pay the highest reverence, we fall back upon it. The death chamber is lighted with candles. So is the church altar. We cannot but be forced also to the conclusion that higher ideas have been brought out and better matter written by candlelight than have been or probably ever will be by that of gas or electricity.

Shakespeare could not possibly have written all his plays by daylight. Indeed, it is more than probable that the touch of bohemianism in his composition, as in that of his watered down literary descendants today, preferred night to day for turning out its best work. Hamlet's soliloquy upon the existing value of things, Portia's tribute to mercy and the advice of Polonius to Laertes as to the best way of conducting himself in life were probably written between the snuffings of a candle. In particular can one imagine the decisive snuffing and the contemptuous tossing away of the scrap of burned wick at the close of the passage hypothetically disposing of "Caesar's imperial day."—London Globe.

WHERE DOCTORS FAIL

To Cure Woman's Ills, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Succeeds. Mrs. Pauline Judson Writes:

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—Soon after my marriage two years ago I found myself in constant pain. The doctor said my womb was turned, and this caused the pain with considerable inflammation. He prescribed for me for four months, when my husband became impatient because I grew worse instead of better, and in speaking to the druggist he advised him to get Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Sanative Wash. How I wish I had taken that at first; it would have saved me weeks of suffering. It took three long months to restore me, but it is a happy relief, and we are both most grateful to you. Your Compound has brought joy to our home and health to me."—MRS. PAULINE JUDSON, 47 Hoyt Street, Brooklyn, N. Y.—$5000 forfeit if above testimonial is not genuine.

FREE KIDNEY AND BLADDER CURE.

Mailed to all Sufferers from Disorders of the Kidneys and Bladder, Bright's Disease, Rheumatism, Gravel, Pain in the Back, Dropsy, etc.

The following letter from Hon. I. A. Hopkins, Chairman of the Board of County Commissioners, Ellsworth, Kan., tells how Alkavis cured after he made up his mind that he had but a short time to live.

Gentlemen:—I believe and know that I owe my life to Alkavis. I had been troubled with Kidney and Bladder Trouble for years. My limbs were swollen with Rheumatism so that I could hardly walk. I had to get up every hour of the night to urinate. I passed great quantities of blood on account of hemorrhage of the Kidneys and Bladder. I tried and had been trying everything in the shape of Medicine for Kidney Trouble that I could think of or that the Doctors recommended, but nothing helped me. I made up my mind that I had only a short time to live. I sent for three bottles of Alkavis; began to take it, and before I had taken it one week began to get better. My Kidney Trouble and Rheumatism were soon gone and I am in good health now. I have recommended Alkavis to a great many people and all have been benefited by its use.

Gratefully yours, I. A. HOPKINS."

MRS. MARY FOX, Seymour, Iowa.

Mrs. Ida A. Francis, of Mooresville, Ind., writes: "She had been bothered with Kidney and Bladder Trouble ever since she was six years old; did not get any rest day or night, and had to be up fifteen times a night at times. Was also troubled with Rheumatism, Female Complaint and Irregular Menses, also symptoms of Dropsy. Tried many physicians but received little benefit. Two years ago took Alkavis and was completely cured and states she will answer any letter that comes to hand concerning the wonderful medicine." Mrs. Mary Fox, Seymour, Iowa; Miss Viola Dearing, Petersborg, Ind.; Mrs. Jas. Young, Kent, Ohio; and many other ladies join in testifying to the wonderful curative powers of Alkavis in various forms of Kidney and allied diseases, and in other disorders peculiar to womanhood.

That you may judge of the value of this Great Kidney Remedy for yourself, we will send you one Large Case by mail Free, only asking that when cured yourself you will recommend it to others. It is a Sure Specific and can not fail. Address, The Church Kidney Cure Company, No. 406 Fourth Avenue, New York.

Over the young grass of the long avenue, the branching oaks flung slanting shadows. The sweetness of Banksia roses dwelt in the Virginia sunshine, where the trailing vines crept up the grey walls, and around the jewel-like panes of the mullioned windows, winding about the stately columns that guarded the portals of Gordon Hall. The peace of the country Sabbath had laid its hand upon the daily come and go; a quiet that brought every far-off moving thing very near, in the rustle of a mighty silence.

Mistress Esther Gordon came slowly down the broad winding stairs. The light from the great oriel window above her head, shafting down into the gloom below, played a quivering halo of golden motes about the fair young head. In the dark setting of the old hall, the dainty figure shone out as some royal dame stepped down from a Romney picture, the blue brocade cut away from the firm white throat, where the pearls rose and fell amid the foam of lace, and the small feet clad in the high-heeled satin shoes.

"Four," booms the clock that towers above her head, and as if in answer, the thud of galloping hoofs come up the avenue. Lansing had been true to his tryst, although just across the river lay the army of Cornwallis, and the hail of the pickets could be heard in the clear evening air. There was scarce an instant's pause, ere the rider's spurred heel rang on the stone step, and Lansing strode down the length of the long hall. A goodly man, this young continental, albeit the buff and blue were a trifle tattered and faded, the blue eyes were bright, and the stalwart form carried a lithe grace, that betrayed even more than the tinged cheek, the good red blood of Powhatan. The Romney picture awoke, and Mistress Esther, the sweet face all aglow, held out her two white hands.

"You foolish boy," but there is no chiding in the lovely eyes—and then his grave face brought the question to her lips. Before she could voice it the faint sound of a distant bugle rang across the river. Lansing sprang to to his feet. "There they are! Hide me, Esther, for the love of the sweet saints, hide me! It is the King's troopers."

Over Esther Gordon's face a whiteness went. Between lover and King lay the choice of a moment, but before that tribunal where a woman's verdict is fore-ordained. A moment later, and Mistress Esther's own little page was speeding the great red roan to a hiding place in the swamp, and Mistress Esther herself was fitting a key to the high carved clock that towered on the stair. To and fro, swung the great round disc of the pendulum, and the hands were pointing to ten minutes past four, when a laugh, and a clatter of accoutrements in the avenue warned them of the danger close at hand.

Mistress Esther closed the case, and hid the key among the laces about her white throat. One little foot was poised on the last step of the stair, as the Captain entered the door, his glitter of gold lace on the King's scarlet lighting up the gloom where the sun-rays failed to penetrate. He bowed low, as Mistress Esther advanced to meet him, and the ungloved hand, half-doubtingly held out to her, was white as a woman's, for Captain John Willoughby, of My Lord Cornwallis' favorite regiment, was versed far better in the lore of courts than in the tactics of these wild colonists, who fought as Indians from tree to tree rather than as well-trained troops, standing up to be killed in the open. There was an instant's embarrassment, as he halted and stumbled through the unwelcome duty of announcing his errand.

"Mistress Esther, I am forced to commit the indignity of asking your permission to search the Hall. Believe me, the loyalty of your house is unquestioned by My Lord Cornwallis, as well as your humblest admirer," and here he bowed very low, "but we have tracked one of the rebels straight to this mansion, and to satisfy evil tongues it were well to search, though it be a mere matter of form."

No tremor of the white hand.

Mistress Esther courtesied low. "Captain Willoughby, there need be no apology, no hesitation in this matter of your duty. A Gordon is ever a King's man, and it were well to set an example of moral as well as physical sacrifice in these times of disaffection, if so be it benefit the cause. My doors are open to your men, bid them search, search well, that Gordon's roof may hide no traitor to his Majesty." Up the stairs, and down other stairs, through the rambling garrets, and into holes where scarce a mouse could hide, deep into the cavernous cellars went King George's men, but never so much as a coat-tail of the hated blue and buff could the most diligent spy. Mistress Esther herself peered down the cellar stairs, and bade them to search well, lest the rebel should disturb her household in the midnight hour.

It was well done. No tremor of the soft white hands that poured the rare red wine for the Captain, and as the shadows grew soft and the gray time stole over the land, Mistress Esther paced by his side up and down the long hall, while he spoke of his home over sea, and the old mother that wrote such pitiful loving letters to her boy in this far-off savage land. He told her of the wide moors, where the purple heather bloomed, of the grim old castle that frowned across the rolling land, from the days of "Bluff Hal," and all the goodly heritage that but waited to claim her mistress. There was good cheer in the kitchens of Gordon Hall, where the servants feasted the troopers, and the Tory songs rang loud above the ale cups.

Would the end never come? Verily, she was becoming an arch traitor to self, to all maidenhood, as well as her king. And though the old clock kept its secret well, it could not shut out from the ears of the man hidden within the low musical voice telling the newest version of the very oldest story on earth. At last, when the voices had sunk to an indistinct murmur, and there had come a little silence to be translated as he would, jealousy got the better of prudence. He scorned to owe his life to her, this Tory Light-o'-love that but held him there to torture the very heart from his bosom. So little a time, and the glorious head had lain on his breast and now the darkness hid what must be a repetition with her Tory lover. Oh! the jade. His hand was lifted to make known his presence, when again, the blare of the bugles sounded across the river. Instantly there was a stir in the hall below, while Lansing held his breath, the mere force of habit rendering him quiet, although the passion of rage was shaking him from head to foot. There was a whispered farewell, and then the Captain's voice right beneath him, "The clock has stopped."

Lansing stepped forth from the case.

Mistress Esther went white to the roots of her hair, and all the blood rushed to her heart, leaving her faint and sick, but the darkness hid her agitation, and the gay laugh rippled lightly as she replied: "Ah, Captain! You are a sad flatterer, I do protest. That was a very pretty compliment, but the clock is not to blame. It has given good notice that it no longer guards the hour. I am this day expecting the smith, but he has failed me, and 'twere well, as that mischievous little page of mine must needs meddle with the pendulum, and to keep it from his fingers I have locked it so well that I have lost the key. You will judge me a careless housewife in very truth, but there are many things in this vast house to burden the mind of one poor maid," and Mistress Esther sent a glance from under her long lashes that rendered the Captain more fain than ever to lift the burden of Gordon Hall from the shoulders of its fair owner.

His men had formed in the avenue, and there was no excuse for a longer delay, so the Captain backed lingeringly down the steps, his sword a jingle, and the handsome head bared in the gloaming. With deliberate ease he mounted, and away down the avenue, turning in the saddle as long as the blue brocade trailed over the stones, and Mistress Esther took care to use no unseemly haste, but waited until the red was blended gray, and the last lilt of song had died away ere she mounted the stairs and turned the key. Lansing stepped forth from the case, his eyes blazing with pent-up wrath, but ere he could say the words that must have been fatal to that loyal, loving heart, two white arms were flung about his neck, and the sweet face nestled against his shoulder.

"For you, for you I did it, and now may my God forgive me the lies that I have told this day, and the making a shuttle-cock of a good man's heart. I am traitor to all but you, traitor to myself, and my king, for the sake of the sweetest love that e'er a maid hath known. Thy country be my country, thy Washington my king, or what you will to make of him, so long as Guy Lansing's good right arm is mine."

With a prayer of thankfulness for the words left unsaid, he held her close, and there was silence where no word avails.

He Weakened.

A Revolutionary Age.

Soulless corporations, heartless coquettes, conscienceless rascals of various sorts we have had with us now these many years, and it looks very much now as if a kind of Providence was about to even things up a little by providing us with such useful contrivances as wireless telegraphy, heatless light, smokeless powder, boneless shad and seedless oranges. If some genius would rise up now and give us a breed of biteless dogs and stingless mosquitoes, together with some loseless umbrellas and spendless cash, we shall all be happy and content.—Leslie's Weekly.

Boost for Woman's Rights.

Woman's rights got a big boost out in Montana the other day, when a judge declared that it didn't matter whether a wife was earning more money than her husband or not—when she demanded divorce she was to get alimony just the same. The only trouble was that the judge added that it served a man right, anyway, for getting married. And yet they talk about woman's being illogical! The most strenuous suffragists would never say that anything served a man right for getting married; neither would she assert woman's "right" both to her own earnings and to the support of her divorced husband. If the woman in this particular case made such demands, some male lawyer put her up to it.—New York Evening Sun.

Pierre Loti a Painter.

A man of many parts is Pierre Loti. As an English sailor and brilliant novelist, he was world-known, but it comes as a surprise to hear that he was a painter of repute. There is nothing more beautiful in the Church of Vendredi di Sainte at Constantinople than the picture of the "Priest at Prayer," bearing the signature, "J. V." Everyone knows that Pierre Loti's name is Julian Viaud. It was the result of a pious vow on account of the kindness of the monks, that led Loti to do this painting in his leisure.—Sketch.

BEAUTIFUL CHILDREN

Made Well and Strong by Pe-ru-na.

Mrs. Schafer, 436 Pope Ave., St. Louis, Mo., writes:

"In the early part of last year I wrote to you for advice for my daughter Alice, four years of age.

"She has been a puny, sickly, ailing child since her birth. She had convulsions and catarrhal fever. I was always doctoring until we commenced to use Peruna. She grew strong and well. Peruna is a wonderful tonic; the best medicine I have ever used."—Mrs. Schafer.

Mrs. C. E. Long, the mother of little Mina Long, writes from Atwood, Colo., as follows:

"We can never thank you enough for the change you have made in our little one's health. Before she began taking your Peruna she suffered everything in the way of cough, colds and croup, but now she has taken not quite a bottle of Peruna, and is well and strong as she has ever been in her life. She has not had the croup once since she began taking Peruna, and when she has a little cold a few doses of Peruna fixes her out all right. We can never praise it enough."—Mrs. C. E. Long.

A Doctor's Little Daughter Cured of Grip by Pe-ru-na.

Dr. R. Robbins, Physician and Surgeon of Muskogee, Indian Ter., writes:

"I have been a practicing physician for a good many years and was always slow to take hold of patent medicines, but this winter my little girl and myself were taken with the grip. I was so bad I was not able to sit up. I sent for a doctor, but he did me no good.

"Finally I sent and got a bottle of Peruna and commenced to take it. I took two bottles and my cough was gone and my lungs loosened up and my head became clear. My little girl took the same way.

"It looked as though she would die, she was so sick. I gave her medicine, but it seemed to do her little good, so I sent and got one more bottle of Peruna and commenced to give it to her. It was only a short time until she was getting along all right, so I give your medicine, Peruna, the praise for what it did for me and my dear little daughter."—Dr. R. Robbins.

Mrs. G. W. Heard, of Howth, Texas, writes to Dr. Hartman in regard to her baby girl, Ruth:

"My little girl had some derangement of the Bowels. She was a mere skeleton and we did not think she would ever get well. After giving her less than one bottle of Peruna she was sound and well. Now she has a good appetite and is a picture of health."

Mrs. Heard also writes in regard to her son, Carl:

"My son's ears had been affected since he was a babe only a few months old. The last year I thought he had almost lost his hearing and had a local physician treating him for about six weeks. Finally I began giving him your remedy, and after he had taken two bottles he was entirely cured. I cannot praise Peruna enough."—Mrs. G. W. Heard.

If you do not receive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case, and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

One may sail the seas and visit every land and everywhere will find, that men of affairs, who are well informed, have neither the time nor the inclination, whether on pleasure bent or business, to use those medicines which cause excessive purgation and then leave the internal organs in a constipated condition. Syrup of Figs is not built on those lines. It acts naturally, acts effectively, cleanses, sweetens and strengthens the internal organs and leaves them in a healthy condition.

If in need of a laxative remedy the most excellent is Syrup of Figs, but when anything more than a laxative is required the safe and scientific plan is to consult a competent physician and not to resort to those medicines which claim to cure all manner of diseases.

The California Fig Syrup Co. was the first to manufacture a laxative remedy which would give satisfaction to all; a laxative which physicians could sanction and one friend recommend to another; so that today its sales probably exceed all other laxatives combined. In some places considerable quantities of old-time cathartics and modern imitations are still sold, but with the general diffusion of knowledge, as to the best medicinal agents, Syrup of Figs has come into general use with the well-informed, because it is a remedy of known value and ever beneficial action.

The quality of Syrup of Figs is due not only to the excellent combination of the laxative and carminative principles of plants, known to act most beneficially on the system, with agreeable and refreshing aromatic liquids, but also to the original method of manufacture. In order to get the genuine and its beneficial effects one should always note the full name of the Company—California Fig Syrup Co.—printed on the front of every package.

ETRURIA IS SAFE

CRIPPLED CUNARD LINE STEAMER IS TOWED TO THE AZORES.

LOST PROPELLER AND RUDDER

FUTILE ATTEMPTS MADE BY OTHER STEAMERS TO RENDER ASSISTANCE.

PASSENGERS HAVE GOOD TIME

AMUSE THEMSELVES WITH DECK SPORTS AND CONCERTS.

Horta, Azores, March 10.—The Etruria entered this harbor in tow last evening. All on board are well.

She had a comparatively uneventful passage, except for the breakdown, which occurred during the dinner hour of Feb. 26. When this occurred the Etruria had only just finished speaking by wireless telegraphy with the Cunard line steamship Umbria. After the accident was discovered the Etruria called the Umbria wirelessly for one hour, but without success.

Upon examination it was found that the ship's propeller had broken off outside the tube and that the rudder had been carried away by the propeller. The Etruria then sent up rockets, which were seen by the British steamer William Cliff. The latter bore down and was alongside in fifty minutes after the accident. She stood by until daylight when, after several attempts, she succeeded in passing a hawser aboard the Etruria. The tank steamer Ottawa at this time. The William Cliff then attempted to tow the Etruria, while the Ottawa attempted to steer her. The hawser, however, snapped. The Ottawa stood by for two days and then left for Fayal, bearing the second officer of the Etruria, to report the disaster and obtain assistance.

In the meanwhile the crew of the Etruria had made every effort to rig a jury rudder. The first such rudder was carried away immediately an attempt was made to use it. After further efforts, lasting for two days, a second jury rudder was successfully adjusted and is still in position.

The passengers of the Etruria were satisfied they were in no danger, and they praise the conduct of the captain and crew of the vessel. After the accident the passengers amused themselves with the usual deck sports, and concerts were held in the first and second cabins. Only those who were anxious concerning business matters chafed at the unavoidable delay. The Etruria reports having sighted the Italian mail steamer Sardegna, from Naples Feb. 26 for New York, last Wednesday, March 5. The Sardegna stood by, but finding she could be of no assistance, Proceeded on Her Course.

The Etruria was hoping to communicate with the North German Lloyd steamer Kron Prinz Wilhelm by wireless telegraphy, but her mast wire broke in several places and she was unable to repair it until the weather had improved, when it was too late. After the accident the passage of the Cunard steamer was entirely uneventful, and there occurred nothing of interest beyond the daily runs of the vessel, which ranged from 60 to 100 knots.

The Etruria will wait here for the arrival of the royal mail steamer Elbe, which left Southampton for Horta Saturday. The Elbe will carry the Etruria's passengers to England. The Etruria will then be towed home by two tugs which are now on their way out from Liverpool for this purpose.

IN A SHEET OF FLAME.

Man Jumps From a Burning Building and Is Seriously Injured.

Chicago, March 10.—Dazed and half-suffocated by smoke which filled his room, Rudolph Engelcke, a jeweler, rushed through a sheet of flames yesterday and threw himself from a three-story window of a boarding house at 204 Erie street. On the pavement below a number of firemen were holding a net. Engelcke, his clothes ablaze, whirled in the air as he shot toward the ground, then struck on one side of the net and bounded to the stone walk. He sustained internal injuries, a fractured wrist and was severely burned about the head and body. A dozen others had narrow escapes.

FIGHTING BOB'S COMMAND.

Rear Admiral Evans Will Be in the Asiatic Fleet.

The admiral's destination will be Yokohama, where he will succeed Rear Admiral Kempff as junior in command of the United States fleet in Asiatic waters. His flagship will probably be the battleship Kentucky, which has been making her headquarters at Yokohama. The admiral's wife and daughter and Miss Taylor will go with him.

RUSSIA LOSES NO TIME.

Force of Troops Hurried to the Disturbed Section of China.

Pekin, March 10. — Chinese officials are greatly disturbed over the conditions at Jehol (Cheng Te), about 100 miles northeast of Pekin, where bandit soldiers have captured a priest. An official of the foreign office declares that the Russians have already dispatched 500 troops to Jehol from the Manchurian border. The trouble began over the settlement of claims of native Christians, and it resulted in rioting between Christians and the non-Christians. Brigands took advantage of these conditions to plunder the country, and the Russian telegraphic connections were incidentally cut. The foreign office says the captured priest is a Belgian. It was reported March 7 from Pekin that the Chinese court had ordered the immediate release of this priest in order to forestall the entry of foreign troops into the district of Jehol, which is rich in gold mines.

FILIPINOS COMING IN.

During the Past Week Seven Officers and a Hundred Riflemen Surrender.

Manila, March 10.—There is constant activity in disarming insurgents and in pursuing Ladrones. As pacification extends the number of surrenders diminish. During the week the surrenders approximated seven officers and a hundred riflemen. Among those surrendering were Malvars, the chief agitator of the Katipunan society. Gen. Wheaton sent gunboats with detachments of troops to Talim island, Province of Laguna, for the purpose of cornering Rizal's band of Ladrones. The insignificant disturbance there is now ended. The mixed court martial convened to try Maj. L. W. T. Waller and Lieut. Day of the marine corps will be organized under the presidency of Col. Forney of the marines. Maj. Kingsbury of the cavalry will act as judge advocate.

RESTORED TO PRIESTLY DUTIES.

Excommunicated Chicago Priest Is Rehabilitated.

Chicago, March 10.—Rev. Joseph J. Crowley, the Roman Catholic clergyman who was the central figure in a sensational scene here Nov. 3 last, when the lights in The Holy Name cathedral were turned out and the celebration of high mass was stopped in an effort to enforce a ban of excommunication against Father Crowley, has returned to Chicago and gave evidence yesterday of his rehabilitation as a priest by celebrating high mass in the Church of the Immaculate Conception at Schiller street and South Park avenue. Father Crowley arrived on Thursday last from Washington, where he conferred with Cardinal Martinelli.

CRISIS NEAR FOR ITALY.

Revolutionary Outbreak Is Liable to Occur.

London, March 10.—The grave situation in Italy will reach a critical point to-day. This is the proposed date for the great railway strike and also for the fate of the government in the chamber of deputies. Grave fears of disturbances in the principal cities are entertained, and it is evident that the kingly qualities of the young monarch are about to be put to a severe test. The responsibility for dealing with the situation will probably fall directly on his shoulders.

DIVORCE FOR INFANTA.

Eulalie and Don Antonio Suffer Estrangement.

Paris, March 10—Long standing estrangement that has existed between Infanta Eulalie and Don Antonio is nearing culmination in legal separation. The infanta is now in Paris and process will be begun shortly in French courts. The step contemplated is guarded here with the utmost secrecy, but advices from Madrid leave no room for doubt in the matter.

FIFTY LIVES LOST

WRECK OF THE CANNON BALL EXPRESS WAS A TERRIBLE AFFAIR.

BODIES WERE LEFT IN THE FIRE

SLOWLY INCINERATED IN THE BURNING DEBRIS OF THE WRECK.

SUCCOR OUT OF THE QUESTION

SEVENTY-FIVE INJURED PASSENGERS ARE BEING TAKEN CARE OF.

El Paso, Tex., March 10.—The list of dead who perished in the Cannon Ball express wreck on the Southern Pacific will probably foot up to at least fifty. The names of some of the lost will never be known. Wounded and pinioned in the cars, many unidentified passengers were burned so that recognition will be impossible.

When the relief train left the scene of the wreck with seventy-five injured on board, the debris was still burning, and any effort to recover the bodies slowly burning from being burned would have been folly. The death list was not compiled from names of persons whose remains had been actually recovered, but from names of missing furnished by Relatives or Friends.

El Paso is filled with the wreck victims. The hotels are overcrowded and the hospitals have all they can care for. A few of the injured are in critical condition, but nearly all are expected to recover.

Four thousand people awaited the coming of the relief train at the station. The Pullman cars were crowded with the totally disabled and the day coaches contained those who were slightly injured. There was hardly a complete suit of clothes in the entire crowd. Nearly all had lost their hats and the majority of those able to walk had only blankets wrapped about them. Scarcely a man appeared but wore bandages. Women were still hysterical and several injured babes were to be seen. A dozen or more persons had to be carried from the train on litters. Nothing additional has been learned as to the cause of the wreck. Passengers think the engineer lost control of his engine.

TRAIN'S UNPLEASANT EXPERIENCE

Two Men Killed and an Unsuccessful Search Is Made for a Third Corpse.

New Brunswick, N. J., March 10. — The fast freight, east-bound, due here at 2 o'clock yesterday morning, had a rather unusual and unpleasant experience between Trenton and this city. Two dead men were encountered, one of them having been killed by the train itself, and once the train was stopped to search for a body that could not be found. The run from Philadelphia was uneventful. As the train approached Princeton Junction it hit and killed a man. The train was stopped and the body was cared for and left at the junction to be shipped to Trenton, it being in Mercer county. When near Monmouth Junction the train was stopped at a signal from the head brakeman, who said it had hit another man and he had seen the body hurled into a ditch. A search of the track for a mile back failed to locate the supposed victim. The train was again started east, and as it neared Millstone the glare of the headlight revealed the body of another man lying on the rails. The engineer stopped and the body was picked up and brought to this place. It was that of Howard R. Breese of New Brunswick. He is supposed to have been struck by another train while walking home from Franklin Park.

CAUSED WILD PANIC.

Fire Destroys a Building Adjoining a Hotel.

Beaver Falls, Pa., March 10. — The Manold block was completely destroyed by fire at an early hour yesterday morning, entailing a loss of about $75,000. The loss on the building is $30,000. Of the tenants, Smith & Finkleher, paint manufacturers, lose $40,000, and were the chief sufferers. The guests in the Seventh avenue hotel, just across the street from the burning building, became panic-stricken and many of them rushed into the street only thinly clad. The hotel was saved, however, and the guests returned to their rooms unharmed.

BOER MUNITIONS ARE CAPTURED.

Insane Chinese Woman Then Sets Fire to Her Bed.

Deadwood, S. D., March 10.—An insane Chinese woman narrowly escaped incineration in Deadwood. She was released from the county jail a few days ago and was in charge of a nurse. The latter left her, and, in order to avoid being annoyed by her, the other Chinese chained her to the floor in her room, within easy reach of a stove, in which they started a fire. The woman fed part of her bed clothes to the fire and finally set fire to the bed. The other Chinese were bewildered and afraid to attempt her rescue, and but for the arrival of a policeman she would have perished.

JUDGE IN A QUANDARY.

Doesn't Know What to Do With Estate After Paying Widow.

Fargo, N. D., March 10.—A peculiar estate is to come before Judge Roberts for adjustment, and there seems to be no provisions in the probate code that exactly fit the matter. A farmer in the county died intestate. His property is valued at $20,000. He left a widow but no children. His parents are dead, but brothers and sisters survive him. The court is in a quandry how to divide the estate after the widow's share is apportioned, as the code covers every other contingency but this. Had the deceased either parents or children the matter would have been fully covered.

Fargo, N. D., March 10.—About the luckiest man in North Dakota is K. Koppang of Milton. He had a hunch that a valuable quarter of land near Park River was not properly homesteaded four years ago by a stranger, who went away without making the required improvements. His long absence amounts to abandonment, and Mr. Koppang has begun a contest. The land is within six miles of Park River and in the most fertile section of Walsh county. Other quarters in that vicinity find a ready sale at $3,000.

He will not tell his reasons for shooting Taylor. Taylor will recover unless blood poisoning sets in. The bullet penetrated only a short distance, but carried a piece of cloth into the wound. A singular thing about the case is that Taylor seems anxious to have the boy freed immediately, and says he will not appear against him.

LOADS OF SETTLERS.

South Dakota Being Overrun With Immigrant Crowds.

Aberdeen, S. D., March 10.—The spring rush of immigrants has begun in earnest. Entire train loads of settlers' outfits are of almost daily occurrence on the various railroads and the indications are that it will crowd the Dakota lines to handle promptly the immense volume of traffic if it assumes the proportions now anticipated. Land buyers are flocking in by every train and their families will follow later in the season.

The Legislature

Proceedings of the Week in the State Law Mill . . .

In the Senate.

St. Paul, March 3. — The Jacobson tax bill, which passed the house Friday got a stormy reception in the senate Saturday, and precipitated a debate that developed a large body of hostilities. The attack on the measure was made from several directions—upon its constitutionality, its scope and upon several of its most important provisions. After a long fight the bill was sent to the taxes and tax laws committee. A common understanding was first reached that hearings and committee examination of the measure must be concluded speedily and that the bill be reported Wednesday.

Stockwell's resolution calling upon the president to put a stop to the shipment of horses and mules from the United States to South Africa passed by a vote of 36 to 5.

In the House.

The house Saturday, with barely enough members on the floor to pass bills, received a dozen unimportant measures, passed nearly as many more, agreed upon a special order on the Anderson bills for Monday afternoon and adjourned.

The interest of the house lay in the fate of the Jacobson bill over in the senate, where the lords of the upper house were becoming involved in a preliminary struggle with the measure, which the house skinned through without an amendment. Those members directly interested in bills before the house managed to keep within voting distance a bare majority, and the bills passed went through in a majority of cases practically by default.

In the House.

St. Paul, March 4.—The Anderson inheritance tax bill passed the house by a vote of 93 to 2. The bill proposes a tax of 5 per cent upon collateral inheritances and a direct tax of 1 per cent upon direct inheritances of amounts in excess of $1,000.

The house passed Representative E. F. Allord's bill exempting from the conditions of the new primary election law the nomination of candidates for places on library, school and park park boards in cities of less than 100,000 inhabitants.

R. J. Wells submitted a bill containing a scheme for taxing grain in elevators. It would reach all grain stored in elevators. The officer in charge of the elevator must give the assessor a sworn statement each year of the amount of grain each person has in the elevator May 1. It is taxed at full rate and the tax is a lien on the grain. A false statement in connection with the information given by the elevator official is made perjury. It was referred.

In the Senate.

Two insurance bills were passed under suspension of the rules. They were Senator Baldwin's measure allowing mutual and fraternal insurance companies to amend their articles of incorporation, and Senator Grue's bill providing that the suspension of members of mutual insurance societies for nonpayment of dues shall not be a bar to the collection of the amount due.

Senator J. D. Jones called up the Ferris house bill to amend the game laws so as to prevent the keeping of deer or moose carcasses out of season.

Senator Baldwin had found the bill clumsily drawn and defective. As drawn the bill prohibits a man from wearing a pair of buckskin gloves, except between the 10th and 30th of November.

The bill was laid over for amendment.

In the Senate.

St. Paul, March 5.—The constitutional amendment proposed by the judiciary committee as a substitute was reported out to the senate yesterday morning and placed on general orders. It provides for a tax on inheritances at a rate not to exceed 5 per cent; for a tax on incomes from credits not otherwise taxed at a rate not greater than 10 per cent; for a tax on incomes from sources other than credits and in excess of $1,000 exemption, at a rate not to exceed 4 per cent, and for a tax on franchises. However, a gross earnings tax may be paid in lieu of this last franchise tax.

The senate got into a row over the Halvorson bill making the railway and warehouse commission appointive by the governor instead of elective by the people. The bill was indefinitely postponed.

In the House.

Private bills had the call in the house yesterday morning, and although of trifling importance, effectually prevented the consideration of more serious matters. Mr. Jacobson objected to every attempt to suspend the rules.

There was an interesting debate on Senator Schaller's bill removing municipal and school officials in cities of less than 10,000 from the provisions of the primary election law. The bill was passed.

Public Examiner Johnson and his staff were made happy by the passage of the bill appropriating $11,500 for the maintenance of their department.

A bill was introduced providing for the representation of Minnesota at the Louisiana Purchase exposition, and appropriating $150,000 therefore.

In the Senate.

St. Paul, March 6. — The Jacobson tax bill was killed in the senate yesterday by a vote of 35 to 28. The debate was the warmest that has occurred in the senate for several years. The committee on taxes presented a majority report recommending indefinite postponement. The minority presented a report favoring the advancement of the bill to general orders.

When the committee reported to the senate Senator Young opened the debate in favor of the minority report. He reminded the senate that this extra session of the legislature has been called to consider the subject of taxation alone, and that the people of the state would demand something in the way of reform.

Senator Sheehan supported the majority report for indefinite postponement.

The debate continued until late in the afternoon. The vote by which the bill was defeated came on a call for the previous question on the adoption of the minority report advancing the bill to general orders. The vote stood 35 to 28. To make the death blow more effective a reconsideration was moved and Mr. Jacobson's bill was sent to its last resting place.

In the House.

The house spent the greater part of the day in discussion of the proposed amendments to the constitution to be submitted to the voters at the November election.

Representative C. D. Allen of Fillmore offered a resolution that the house adjourn sine die Tuesday at noon. Notice of debate was given and the resolution went over.

In the House.

St. Paul, March 7.—The house yesterday adopted a single constitutional amendment for submission to the voters at the next general election. In effect it is as follows:

To strike out the provision of the constitution that all taxes shall be as nearly equal as may be, and all property on which taxes are to be levied shall have a cash valuation, equal and uniform throughout the state; to substitute a provision that "the power of taxation shall never be surrendered, suspended or contracted away;" to strike out the words "laws shall be passed taxing all moneys, credits, investments in bonds, stocks, joint stock companies, or otherwise, and also all real and personal property according to its true value in money;" to change maximum personal property exemption from $200 for each individual to $300 for one member of a family; to provide that "all taxes shall be uniform upon the same class of subjects and shall be levied and collected under general laws for public purposes;" to provide that existing railroad gross earnings taxes shall not be affected.

As yet the proposed constitutional amendment is the only thing in the way of tax reform to show for the $50,000 which the extra session has cost, unless it be the repeal of the 1901 dog tax law, which, after ten months' trial, proved unsatisfactory.

In the Senate.

The old board of control controversy opened in the senate yesterday.

It was occasioned by the introduction of a bill by Senator R. V. Brower of St. Cloud to exclude from the financial management of the board of control, all the state's educational institutions, and re-establish such financial management with the respective boards which previously had it in charge. He succeeded in getting the bill ordered printed and referred to the reception committee.

The "restrictive" constitutional amendment in taxation prepared by the senate judiciary subcommittee was debated for three hours on general orders yesterday afternoon, recommended favorably without a single amendment, and passed.

IOWA LEGISLATIVE SYMPATHY.

Resolution of Hope Is Offered and a Spirited Debate Is Expected.

Des Moines, March 8.—Representative Timothy Donahue yesterday introduced a resolution of sympathy in the house for the Boers in South Africa. The resolution expressed the hope that the Boers might soon prove victorious and that their Valley Forge experiences might end in a glorious Yorktown. The resolution will be called up to-day and will be the subject of considerable debate if pressed.

The house committee on municipal corporations reported favorably on the bill giving cities the power to regulate telephone rates. The bill for municipal ownership of telephones was killed.

The senate committee on judiciary decided to recommend for passage the bill for the reorganization of the supreme court, the judges to receive salaries of $6,000. This bill was debated at great length in the house and it was finally passed with the salary at $5,000. The original bill provided for continuous sessions of court and the senate will insist on this.

The senate spent all day debating the question of the state university tax bill, but was unable to come to a vote.

Cause of Death Unknown.

Woodbine, Iowa, March 8.—The inquest held over the remains of J. E. Brainerd returned a verdict in which they failed to locate the responsibility for the man's death. When found he had $2,400 on his person, with which he was to have purchased land. This disproves the murder theory for the sake of robbery.

Run Over and Killed.

Birmingham, Ala., March 8.—Martin J. Lynch, superintendent of the construction of the locks in the Warrior river, was run over by a dummy engine at Tuscaloosa yesterday and instantly killed.

MUSCULAR SORENESS.

As the result of over-exertion and exposure to heat and cold, or from whatever cause, may be treated successfully by the timely application of St. Jacob's Oil. A thorough rubbing is necessary. The Oil should be applied vigorously, for at least twenty minutes, two or three times daily, when all pain, soreness, stiffness will be removed in twenty-four hours. It will also strengthen and harden the muscles. Football players, gymnasts, and all athletes will find St. Jacob's Oil superior to any other remedy for outward application, for the reason that its action is more rapid and its effect permanent. Thousands of people all over the world use and recommend St. Jacob's Oil for muscular soreness. A twenty-five cent bottle is quite sufficient to prove its efficacy. In cases where muscular soreness is complicated with any disease which requires an alterative, Vogeler's Curative Compound should be taken. This is prepared by the proprietors of St. Jacob's Oil, Baltimore, Md., who will send a sample free on application.

Taking High Ground.

The Rev. Dr. Nextly, in pursuance of a design to deliver a series of discourses on the mountains of the Bible, made the following announcement:

Next Sunday evening, brethren, I shall preach a sermon on Mount Ararat."

And after the services were over Aunt Ann Peebles went forward to say goodbye and wish him a pleasant voyage and safe return.—Chicago Tribune.

The Up-to-Date Baby.

It isn't correct any more to have things daintily pretty. It is no longer the proper thing to swathe the little body in yards and yards of muslin and lace, and put him in bed with pillows of down and silk, perfumed with rose or violet. Up-to-date mothers no longer vie with each other on the point of delicate elaboration. They do not vie any more at all. Their one object is to make everything as sanitary and comfortable as possible for the newcomer. Sometimes they give a sigh for the pretty bow or frill of lace, but, after all, everything in the new fashion looks so clean and sensible and wholesome, they come to see the other was only a perverted taste, and take no pleasure in it. Things have advanced in the last few years. The nursery is one of them.—Woman's Home Companion.

For Her Sister's Sake.

Stendal, Ind., March 10th.—Mrs. Sarah A. Shrode of this place says:

"I suffered much as many other women do with Kidney and Bladder Troubles. I tried many medicines, but got no relief until I used Dodd's Kidney Pills.

"Nine boxes of this remedy cured me completely, and I feel it my duty to my fellow women to make this statement.

"I can heartily recommend them to any woman suffering with Kidney and Bladder Ailments."

The good words of Mrs. Shrode will be good news for many of her suffering sisters. Dodd's Kidney Pills have proven themselves to be sick women's best friend, for they are as effectual in all cases of Female Weakness as in Bladder and Kidney Disease.

How It Was Done.

"I'll match you," said the sporty girl, "to tell whether I'll accept you or not."

"Alas," replied the foxy suitor, "you are more than a match for me."

Thus, by this compliment, he won her.—Chicago Post.

A HARVEST OF COLDS.

Nearly everybody is now suffering from some form of a cold. The best and most reliable remedy known is Cole's Cough Cure. All good druggists, 25 and 50 cents.

Cause and Effect.

"John," she said to her husband, who was grumbling over his breakfast, "your love has grown cold."

"No, it hasn't!" he snapped, "but my breakfast has."

"That's just it. If your love hadn't grown cold, you wouldn't notice that your breakfast had."—Philadelphia Press.

Surprise.

"Were you surprised when I proposed?" he asked.

"Well," she replied, thoughtfully, "I was not so surprised that you proposed as I was that you did not propose on some previous occasion."—Chicago Post.

WITH AX AND BLOCK.

Criminal Executions In Prussia Still Performed by the Headsman.

Seventeenth century methods still prevail in Prussia in the matter of the execution of criminals. The man sentenced there to suffer capital punishment is led to the fatal block, and his head is chopped off with identically the same sort of ax as that which was used to put a period to the career of Charles I. in the Tower of London on that fateful 30th of January 252 years ago. Practically the only difference between the twentieth century execution and that of the time of Cromwell is that the condemned is not put to death publicly.

In many parts of the German empire the guillotine has taken the place of the gallows and the block, but in Prussia old fashioned justice clings tenaciously to the old fashions, and not the rope nor the automatic knife nor the power of electricity has been able to displace the broadax as the law's official implement of death. The only concession made to modern sentiment is in the garb of the executioner.

This functionary does not, as in the earlier times, dress in doublet and hose and hide his ensanguined identity behind a frightsome mask. Instead, he appears at the execution garbed in a frock coat of somber hue and correct cut, and he wears upon his head, even when delivering the death stroke, a tall silk hat. His three assistants are similarly attired.

Why this garb was chosen no one can say authoritatively. It is one of those things the origin of which appears to have been forgotten with the originators. But it is the lawful costume, prescribed in the regulations, which apply also to the twelve civilian witnesses who must attend an execution, with the result that a stranger witness is unable to say until the ax has fallen which of the other fifteen silk hatted, frock coated individuals grouped about him is the man who lives by death.—New York Press.

FLOWER AND TREE.

Keep begonias where the air is not too dry, and they will not drop their leaves.

In watering house plants sufficient should be given to soak the soil thoroughly.

A tree is nearly dormant in winter, especially one that has been lately transplanted.

Plants in a dormant state require very little water during the winter, and an excess will cause decay.

Drenching rosebushes with strong quassia tea is a good curative of bugs and other destructive insects and pests.

To root cuttings quickly fill a saucer full of sand, into which the slips may be set. Keep the sand the consistency of mud.

Never give up a decaying rosebush until you have tried watering it two or three times a week with soot tea for a short time.

Repotting of plants becomes necessary for two reasons—the plant uses up the available fertility in the soil and fills the pots with roots.

To prevent crotched trees from splitting after they come into bearing twist and fasten two small limbs together, and as the stem grows it will prevent splitting.

Cuttings of quick growing herbaceous plants, like heliotrope, verbena, phlox, geraniums, root quickly, chrysanthemums quickest of all. Choose cuttings when the plants are most vigorous.

HINTS NATURE GIVES

SYMPTOMS THAT SHOULD WARN MEN OF COMING SICKNESS.

The Significance of Sneezing, Yawning and Recurring Winter Colds. The Meaning of Blue Hands—Apoplexy's Warning Signals.

Nature scarce ever strikes without warning. In so far as disease is concerned it gives clear signs of what is impending days, weeks, months and even years before the attack. If people looked for these signs and took warning from them, they would escape much serious illness and live many years longer than they do. It is indeed remarkable how careless we are in this respect. A man who will anxiously scan the sky for signs of coming rain lest his top hat may get spoiled will never dream of examining his eyes, nose or finger nails for signs of coming illness.

The sneeze, for instance, is very significant. It is always a sign that something is injuring the air passages anywhere from the nose down to the lungs. Should it be only a case of snuff or pepper, of course the sneeze is of no consequence. But often it is an indication of congestion. There is inflammation somewhere, with too much blood, and the object of the sneeze is to give relief by getting rid of some of the fluid. This sneeze is a warning that every prudent person should attend to. It is at least the forerunner of a cold. But it may indicate an approaching attack of bronchitis or pneumonia. When there is much sneezing, accompanied by something like a small shower of rain, the victim will do well to take a warm footbath, go to bed and adopt the other usual remedies to cure a cold.

The winter cold itself is a grave warning. When it recurs two or three times every winter, it is sure to be followed in the end by chronic bronchitis. Once this comes on it is practically incurable.

Men are started on their lives much as a shell from a cannon—with a certain fixed quantity of energy. If disease or accident does not carry them off, they will die some time of what we call old age—in other words, when the energy with which they started is spent. Some have energy enough to carry them over the full century; others have only sufficient to keep them going for ninety, eighty, seventy, sixty or fewer years. Now, early baldness is a sure sign, with some exceptions, that the energy is likely to fail sooner than in the average man. But all kinds of baldness have not this significance. Sometimes the loss of hair arises from scalp disease caused probably by microbes. The warning baldness is that kind which commences about the temples and on the crown of the head and gradually eats its way over the scalp until only a circular fringe of hair is left.

Blue nails, or blue hands, betoken weak or obstructed circulation. They are a warning against overexertion of any kind. The obstruction may occur from disorder of several organs in the body. But most commonly the blueness indicates that the heart is not up to the mark.

Yawning is a somewhat similar warning. It is a sign that the steam has run down and that it is time to go to bed or perhaps to go into the open air. When you sit in a close room, the lungs do not receive sufficient of the vital gas, oxygen. The yawn is then a desperate effort of the lungs to properly aerate the blood, and it warns you to open the windows or to leave the room. When you are out of bed too long or when you have done an unusually hard day's work, the waste products of your body are present in excessive quantity. Then the yawn is a warning to you to lie down and rest.

Most people have a great horror of getting a "stroke" or fit of apoplexy. It is not by any means as unpleasant as the toothache, but the suddenness of it is what appalls. There is really no suddenness about it, however. No disease gives such early warning. A "stroke" is a very simple occurrence and not at all horrible. It results from two or three causes, but the most common one is this: A little artery in the brain wears out and lets some blood escape, which clots, presses on the brain and paralyzes whatever part of the body is governed by the piece of brain pressed upon. Now this artery wears out only in common with other arteries of the body. In some people they all become what is called atheromatous, or hard and brittle. At the same time they become tortuous or twisted. We can see these hard and tortuous arteries on the temples, and then we know it is not safe to do anything which will congest the brain, lest the one little artery there, which is especially liable to give way, shall let the blood escape. Likewise warning is often given by the tiny arteries of the eye. They break and let out little traces of blood, which can easily be seen, but a cold or sleepless night may do the same. When these signs occur—and they occur months and years before the stroke—do not get excited or angry, no matter how great the provocation, do not rush to catch an omnibus or in any way overexert yourself, and do not dine too heartily. By taking the warnings given by nature you will insure yourself against this pleasantest way of leaving the world and be sure of dying of cholera or smallpox or some other respectable disease.—London Mail.

GERMAN ARMY OFFICERS.

The Abject Deference Shown Them by Civilians Is Amazing.

The respect and deference shown to the German army officer on duty and off duty by his countrymen are wonderful to see, according to a London writer. "Civilians, even compatriots of distinction, on entering the dining room bow to him with formal humility. He acknowledges the obeisances only with a rigid glare of haughty indifference, though he is politely conscious of the coming and going of ladies. The German civilian does not appear to be surprised at or to resent being contemptuously ignored by him, but recognizes him and looks up to him as a superior member of a superior race and continues to make his obeisances, however loftily they are ignored.

"But, while the officer is unable to see the civilian at whom he is looking point blank, he never misses observing the entrance and acknowledging the salute of another of his own race. He rises from his seat and stands stiff and erect while the newcomer advances and exchanges formal bows and greetings, and as he recovers the erect position from the bow he brings his heels together with a sharp parade click and waits until his superior has taken a seat before he resumes his own."

There were tremendous ceremonies in eating and drinking, too, especially in drinking. "Each table group lifted their glasses invariably together, as if at the word of command, taking their time apparently from the senior present. Having seized their glasses together and raised them together and simultaneously drunk, they would simultaneously finish and then, holding their glasses before them, would with great ceremony bow to one another before replacing them on the table. It did not matter whether they were drinking beer or claret or the German champagne, which seems to be the especially smart thing to take, there was the same ceremony. When a senior officer went out of the room, all the juniors present rose to stiff attention and bowed as he passed. When a junior rose, he made the round of the table on his way to the door and bowed separately, with a spur jingling heel click every time to every other officer."

PICKINGS FROM FICTION.

It isn't hard to judge human nature—if you let the other man do the talking.—"The Great White Way."

When we undertake to compromise with the devil, his majesty always asserts his ability to grab the whole thing.—Shacklett.

Mrs. Wiggs was a philosopher, and the sum and substance of her philosophy lay in keeping the dust off her rose colored glasses.—"Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch."

There is nothing in the world as harmless and as utterly joyous as man's conceit. The woman who will not pander to it is ungracious indeed.—"The Spinster Book."

The past gives us regrets, the present sorrow, the future fear; at eighteen one adores at once; at twenty one loves; at thirty one desires; at forty one reflects.—"Her Grace's Secret."

A man I knew once—'e's dead now, poor chap, and three widows mourning for 'im—said that with all 'is experience wimmin was as much a riddle to 'im as when he fust married.—"Light Freights."

Searching For Knowledge.

"I say, pa," began little Clarence Callipers, with the rising inflection of one who earnestly desires to acquire important information, "what"—

"Oh, I don't know!" replied his long suffering sire wearily.

"Yes. But the question I wanted to ask isn't foolish, pa."

"H'm! If it isn't foolish, you may ask it. But, remember, just one question, and no more."

"Well, pa, there are two of 'em that I want to ask. One is, Which is the smartest, the man who knows enough to know that he don't know much or the man who knows enough to look as if he knew everything? The other is, If the end of the world was to come and the earth be destroyed while a man was up in a balloon, where would he land when he came down? And, pa, I don't know which one of 'em to ask."

Shakespeare's Anachronisms.

The very head and front of all offenders in the perpetration of anachronisms was Shakespeare himself. He speaks of cannon in the reign of John, whereas cannon were unknown until a century and a half later; of printing in the time of Henry II.; of clocks, and striking clocks at that, in the time of Julius Cæsar; he makes Hector quote Aristotle and Coriolanus refer to cats and Alexander; he introduces a billiard table into Cleopatra's palace; he dowers Bohemia with a sea coast and makes Delphos an island.

"No," answered the Chicago friend; "we thought it over and concluded that a quiet divorce would be in so much better taste."—Washington Star.

Death of Mrs. Chas. Thompson.

On last Thursday afternoon Selma, wife of Chas. Thompson died of consumption. The funeral occurred on Sunday. She was only twenty years of age and leaves her husband and two small children to mourn her untimely death. She has been ailing for a long time and her death was not unexpected. The fatal disease which carried her off seems to be hereditary in her family as her father died of the same cause when she was but two years old.

The bereaved husband requests the Spectator to publicly express his thanks to the many friends and neighbors whose help and sympathy were given him during her last illness and to Rev. Gooderham for kindly christian services when the remains were consigned to the grave.

Guarding Precious Books.

There are a few hundred books in the Congressional Library at Washington which are never to leave the confines of the building. No senator or representative has influence enough to break this iron rule. The books are doubly guarded by being placed in a fire-proof safe built into the walls of the nearest approach to a fire-proof building in the United States. If people realized the value of "Golden Grain Belt" beer as a health producer, tonic for workers, they would guard it even more carefully. No home is complete without it, no table well spread unless it includes this delicious brew. Order of your nearest dealer or be supplied by Alex. Thompson, Crookston, Minn.

—If you want to buy a house and lot, or rent a house call on Gigstad & Burkee.

The Wedding Procession an Elaborate and Noisy Affair.

A marriage procession among the Arabs is a very elaborate affair. The camel which bears the bride is decorated with bright henna dye on his neck and shoulders, while there are verses from the Koran inscribed on the hangings. His uncouth legs are often swathed with bright cloths, his head bedecked with plumes and small mirrors, while his back is resplendent with bright colored bits of tinsel, which glisten against a patchwork of many hued cloths. A hood or cage conceals the bride, and no doubt adds to the discomfort of the cramped ride on the beast. There are attendants, and last of all the musicians, chiefly drummers, who attract the crowds by their incessant pounding on small but high keyed instruments.

If the journey to the groom's home is a short one, it is lengthened by stops at frequent intervals, and all the while the lover must not show any eagerness to welcome her, no matter what his feelings may be. The Arab may be affectionate, but he cannot with dignity betray emotion. Among the lower classes buffoons accompany the procession with performing bears or other wild animals, and when the bride is wealthy largess is distributed along the route in the form of clothes or coin. When the groom's tent or fixed home has been reached, the bride is expected to show great reluctance about entering it, and in some cases she has to be lifted by the husband over the blood of a sheep he has just slain.—Woman's Home Companion.

A Magnificent Vessel.

In 263 B. C., Archimedes devised a marvelous ship for Hiero of Syracuse. Her three lofty masts had been brought from Britain, whereas our ships' masts are of iron or obtained from New Zealand or from Vancouver Island. Luxuriously fitted sleeping apartments abounded, and one of her banqueting halls was paved with agate and costly Sicilian stone. Other floors were cunningly inlaid with scenes from the "Iliad." Stables for many horses, ponds stocked with live fish, gardens watered by artificial rivulets and hot baths were provided for use or amusement.—Chambers' Journal.

Longevity.

The span of life is gradually expanding. We live longer and get more out of it than our grandfathers did. Whether the cause of this is a better knowledge of natural law or more skillful surgery we will not undertake to say. At any rate, people think this a pretty good world to live in and want to stay here as long as they can comfortably. The man with 100 birth anniversaries behind him is not such a remarkable fellow after all.—New York Herald.

Cause For Grievance.

"When you refused me, you promised always to be my friend, and now you are as cold as an iceberg."

"But I didn't think you were going to stop proposing."—Life.

His Cigar Lighter.

Wigg—I saw Skinnum light a cigar with a twenty dollar bill.

Wagg—I'll bet it wasn't receipted.—Philadelphia Record.

When you get tired of work, you will realize that you have reached the time of life when you have no place to play.—Atchison Globe.

Don't think for a moment that you have met all the idiots there are in the world.—Chicago News.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—For several years after my last child was born I felt a peculiar weakness, such as I never had experienced before, with severe pains in the ovaries and frequent headaches.

"I tried the doctor's medicines and found it money worse than wasted. A friend who had been cured through the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound advised me to try it. I did so, also your Sanative Wash, and I must say I never experienced such relief before. Within six weeks I was like another woman. I felt young and strong and happy once more.

"This is several years ago, but Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is my only medicine. If I ever feel bad or tired a few doses brings instant relief."—MRS. FRANCIS PODMORE.

A Trappist Monk's Prayer.

Many letters come to the monastery announcing the death of relatives of the monks; these are seen by the abbot only, and at chapter he may simply announce: "The mother of one of our members is dead; let us pray for her soul." Never, to his dying day, does the bereaved Trappist learn that he was praying for his own mother.—John Ball Osborne, in Lippincott's.

"Speaking of James J. Hill," said a St. Paul man, at the Holland House, the other evening, "I can tell you a story of him.

"It was away back in the '80s, when the late lamented Harry Ives was Mr. Hill's private secretary, and Mr. Hill was giving away pigs of purest breed to the farmers of the Northwest, in order to encourage stock-raising along the line of the Great Northern road, and thus building up traffic. The state fair was in progress in St. Paul, when, one September morning, Ives opened Mr. Hill's mail and found a letter from a farmer which read as follows:

"'Mr. J. J. Hill: Dear Sir.—I went to St. Paul and to the fair, as you told me. I looked for you at your office, and also at the fair grounds. I found plenty of hogs of your species, but could not find you anywhere.'"—New York Times.

New Style Monograms.

The old-style plain-letter monogram is being superseded, and the woman who would be thought artistic and up-to-date in dainty trifles is using the new monogram, somewhat after the Japanese style. The more subtle the design the better it is liked. The idea is to have something graceful in outline, well balanced in parts and altogether artistic, a monogram perfectly clear when once deciphered, but which, to the casual observer seems to be merely a pleasing, fanciful sketch or symbol, rather than a combination of letters.—February Woman's Home Companion.

"And you say the spring is on top of this hill?" he asked, incredulity in his voice. "Why is it not in the valley, where it belongs, or on the hillside? Why is it perched on the summit in such an unusual and inaccessible place?"

The woman laughed, merrily, watching the sunlight glistening on the bright tin pail the man was carrying.

"I do not know," she replied, "except that it chose to be there. It is another of nature's freaks, I suppose."

She paused a moment, plucking a bunch of wild grape blossoms from a vine that hung over the path. Then she waved the bunch of blossoms towards the shimmering sheen of green and yellow stretched, like a vast Oriental rug, beneath them.

The path, at last, swerved suddenly to the right and, circling a large bowlder which poised airily on the very edge of the declivity, ended at the brink of a tranquil pool.

Amid the tangled grass upon the bank the woman sank to rest. Her straw hat dropped from her head as she reclined upon the mold, and the sunlight, dripping through the leaves, fell asleep amid the copper of her hair.

The man sat down the pail and, leaning against a tree, stood in silence, watching the glory of her tresses.

"And so I have came," he said, finally, "I have come these hundreds of miles, only to find you changed—so changed."

"Am I changed?" she asked, suddenly raising her eyes from the cool shadows of the spring.

"So changed," he repeated; "so changed."

Involuntarily, almost unconsciously, he reached out his hands to her in a gesture of appeal as though yearning to clasp her in his arms and draw her back into the olden sweetness; into the gentle, natural simplicity that had been hers in the days when he first had loved her.

"How am I different?" she asked, after a moment of silence.

"I hardly know," he replied, slowly, "only, only there used to be a warmth in your eyes that has vanished, Hazel. Do you remember when you used to stand at your father's gate and watch me come up the lane in the long summer evenings, back there in the Iowa hills? Your face used to actually shine in welcome and your eyes—your eyes glowed like the stars."

The woman laughed.

"Why," she replied, "not an hour ago, Walter, you said that my eyes sparkled like the stars. Surely they could not have changed much, then."

"Yes," the man said, "your eyes do sparkle like the stars, but it is like the sparkle of the stars in winter, Hazel—bright, but cold and cheerless. Then—back there in Iowa—they glowed, rather than sparkled—glowed like the stars in an August night—softly, subduedly, warmly. There is a vast difference in the glimmer of the stars in summer and in winter, did you ever notice it? In summer they are less distinct, but they seem so kind, so tender, so near. We feel like we could almost reach out our hands and touch them. But in winter they are more brilliant, more like gigantic diamonds. They are beautiful, but they are not—not—sympathetic, that is the word. And, as we gaze at them we are impressed with a sense of vastness, with a realization of the great distances that stretch between them and us. And, somehow, they impart to us a feeling of loneliness."

"And do my eyes affect you that way, now?" she asked.

"Almost," he replied. "They are bright, but they have lost something—not lustre, nor yet beauty, but—feeling, I guess that is what it is."

"Then," said the woman, haughtily, "perhaps I had best turn my gaze in some other direction. I am very sure I do not wish to make you lonely or melancholy."

"Hazel!" The man spoke sharply, commandingly. "I did not travel half way across the continent for the purpose of presenting myself as a target for the arrows of sarcasm."

"Oh," exclaimed the woman, in mock surprise, "you came simply to deliver a lecture on astronomy and, incidentally, make a few remarks on the subject of personal attractiveness—was that it?"

"Why is it perched on the summit?"

For several moments the man remained silent, nervously biting the end of his small, black mustache, and gazing, perplexedly, at the other's averted face. When he again spoke, a tremble was in his voice.

"Hazel," he said, "I came here to show you that distance or time has not tarnished my love for you. I came here that you might redeem the pledge you gave me that night in June, five years ago, under the maples in Iowa. I came here expecting to find you with the same old welcome; the same old smiles; the same old love for me. But—I—I—"

"You have been disappointed?" she asked, without looking up from the motionless water of the pool.

"I have been disappointed," he replied.

The woman dug her heel in the soft earth, a faint flush spread slowly over her face and her lips parted, once or twice, before she spoke. Finally she said:

"And you do not believe I love you?"

"I do not believe you love me," the man repeated. "At least, I do not believe you love me as you once did."

For an instant the woman raised her eyes to those of the man. There were the twin glimmers of defiance and denial in them. But the man, blind with passion, saw only the gleam of defiance. Then her eyes wandered to the valley outspread, like a panorama, before them, and she remained silent, conscious that the man broke the stillness.

"Forgive me, Hazel."

"Hazel," he asked, very softly, "do you—love me as you did?"

Her eyes flashed darkly into his.

"There is a doubt in your mind that no simple words of mine can ever remove," she replied. "You have presumed to pass judgment upon me before I have been given even the formality of a trial, and now you ask, you expect me to plead guilty to the indictment!"

"And you——"

"Refuse to give you an answer. I prefer to adopt the policy most wisely followed by the accused the world over—silence."

"Then," he said, warmly, "since you do not deny the accusation it must be true."

The woman raised her eye-brows slightly and made a sudden swinging upward, as much as to say, "As you please, sir." But she did not speak.

Her continued silence irritated the man as no words could have done. He bit his lip and his face grew red and white by turns. Her head was bowed slightly, so that the sunlight, glistening on her hair, gave it the appearance of a crown of burnished copper. The beauty of it dazzled him, and, with anger and pain throbbing in his heart, he turned away, filled the bucket at the spring, and started slowly down the path, leaving her sitting silently under the trees, gazing after him, her face flushing and her eyes flashing.

When he reached the bottom of the hill, the man placed the pail of water on a bench beside the door of her home and passed on, through the yard, to the road beyond. And then, with a savage swing, he started toward the town, two miles away.

Not once did he glance back. But had he done so, he would have seen the woman running as fast as possible down the winding, fern-choked path, her hands outstretched toward him, a gleam of sorrow and remorse upon her face, the light of affection in her eyes, and a name—his name—upon her lips.

But, never pausing, never once slackening his pace, he pushed onward, the sting of life's bitterest sorrow in his heart.

At a bend in the road, where a white cottage stood between two giant poplars, a little girl sat upon a fence post reading from a gorgeously colored book. And as the man walked past, he heard the childish treble faltering over the words:

"Jack and Jill went up the hill
To fetch a pail of water.
Jack fell down and broke his crown,
And Jill came tumbling after."

"And Jill came tumbling after," the child repeated; "and Jill came tumbling after."

Suddenly the man paused and, turning, looked back—far up the road to where a house nestled at the base of a hill.

"Yes," he said to himself, "Jack did fall down. I wonder—I wonder if she came tumbling after. I—I've acted a fool. I'll go back."

He found her leaning over the gate watching him as he came up the road, her lashes all glistening with grief's dew, but her face shining in welcome, and her eyes glowing softly, tenderly, warmly, like the stars in an August night. He took her hands in his and she smiled up into his face.

Fluctuations in Silver.

There have been great fluctuations in the value of the Mexican silver peso since July last. Bankers and others attribute the cause largely to uncertainty as to the course of our government in the use of the peso in the Philippines. In July, 1.96 pesos would purchase an American dollar, but it became understood that American money was soon to become the current money of the Philippines, and the value of silver declined until in November, 1901, it required $2.34 Mexican silver to purchase an American dollar.

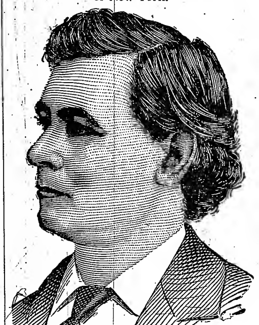
A Remarkable Case Reported From the State of New York.



CONGRESSMAN HOWARD, OF ALABAMA.

House of Representatives,
Washington, Feb. 4, 1899.

The Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, Ohio:

Gentlemen:—"I have taken Peruna now for two weeks, and find I am very much relieved. I feel that my cure will be permanent. I have also taken it for la grippe, and I take pleasure in recommending Peruna as an excellent remedy to all fellow sufferers."

M. W. HOWARD.

Congressman Howard's home address is Fort Payne, Ala.

MOST people think catarrh is a disease confined to the head and nose. Nothing is farther from the truth. It may be that the nose and throat is the oftenest affected by catarrh, but if this is so it is so only because these parts are more exposed to the vicissitudes of the climate than the other parts of the body.

Every organ, every duct, every cavity of the human body is liable to catarrh. A multitude of ailments depend on catarrh. This is true winter and summer. Catarrh causes many cases of chronic disease, where the victim has not the slightest suspicion that catarrh has anything to do with it.

The following letter which gives the experience of Mr. A. C. Lockhart is a case in point:

Mr. A. C. Lockhart, corner Cottage St. and Thurston Road, Rochester, N. Y., in a letter written to Dr. Hartman, says the following of Peruna:

"About fifteen years ago I commenced to be ailing, and consulted a physician. He pronounced my trouble a species of dyspepsia and advised me, after he had treated me about six months, to get a leave of absence from my business and go into the country. I did so and got temporary relief. I went back to work again, but was taken with very distressing pains in my stomach.

"I seldom had a passage of the bowels naturally. I consulted another physician with no better results. The disease kept growing on me until I had exhausted the ability of sixteen of Rochester's best physicians. The last physician advised me to give up my work and go south after he had treated me for one year.

"I was given a thorough examination with the X-ray. They would not even determine what my trouble was. Some of your testimonials in the Rochester papers seemed to me worthy of consideration, and I made up my mind to try a bottle of Peruna. Before the bottle was half gone I noticed a change for the better. I am now on the fifth bottle, and have not an ache or pain anywhere. My bowels move regularly every day, and I have taken on eighteen pounds of flesh. I have recommended Peruna to a great many and they recommend it very highly. I have told several people that if they would take a bottle of Peruna, and could then candidly say that it had not benefited them, I would pay for the medicine."

A. C. LOCKHART.

Mr. W. P. Peterson, of Morris, Ill., says:

"I was nearly dead with catarrhal dyspepsia and am now a well man, better, in fact, than I have been for twenty years or more.

"Since I got cured by your Peruna I have been consulted by a great many people."—W. B. Peterson.

SOME LIVES POSSIBLY LOST

NEW SETTLERS GO TO THEIR CLAIMS UNPREPARED FOR SUCH WEATHER.

Fargo, N. D., March 17.—The storm which has prevailed over the Western part of the state since Friday night struck Fargo in full force early yesterday morning and was continued the entire day.

The temperature has fallen to 10 degrees below zero and the wind has attained a high velocity. At intervals the snow was blown through the air in typical blizzard style, but at this writing the air is more clear and the temperature is falling. All trains on the transcontinental lines are tied up. Saturday's No. 11 and yesterday's Nos. 3 and 11 on the Northern Pacific are in the local yards. Saturday morning's No. 3 is at Jamestown and four east-bound Northern Pacific passenger trains are at Mandan and Dickinson.

The Worst Trouble

is between Valley City and Bismarck. Four or more freights are tied up in snow drifts between those points and the two rotaries and numerous snowplows have accomplished little or nothing at clearing the track. The high wind has kept the snow going so fast that the cuts fill up right behind the rotaries. The three passenger trains in the Fargo yards are kept well heated and the pullman passengers, with a number of day passengers, are remaining aboard. The Great Northern has had nothing through from the coast since Friday morning, and Saturday's and yesterday's west-bound trains are reported in the Barnesville yards. Both the Northern Pacific and Great Northern are running local trains from here east on schedule time and little trouble is anticipated in reaching the Twin Cities.

New Settlers Will Suffer.

Warnings of the storm were sent out forty-eight hours in advance, and as the temperature has not been extremely low, little apprehension is felt regarding the safety of the people of the state. Those who will fare worst are the recent immigrants, some of whom arrived last week and have had no opportunity to prepare for this kind of weather. A few are known to have gone onto their claims with nothing but tents and board shanties and with an extremely limited supply of fuel. Advices from the northwest of the state say old settlers are driving over the country rounding up the tenderfeet to see that none are frozen. The storm is less intense now in the western section, and it is thought the worst is over.

Mountains of Snow.

Devils Lake, N. D., March 17.—The blizzard which began Friday afternoon continues. No storm approaching it has occurred within the past six years. All railroad and other traffic is entirely abandoned.

Some Lives Possibly Lost.

Bismarck, N. D., March 17. — After forty-eight hours the furious blizzard which has raged over this section of the state shows some signs of abatement. The storm was the most severe in this section for fifteen years, and traffic and business of all kinds have been entirely suspended. It is impossible to state what the damage is until reports are received from the outlying country, and communications of any kind is now impossible. It is feared there will be great loss of livestock and some lives may have been sacrificed.

LOSSES ON THE RANGES.

Many Cattle and Sheep in South Dakota Probably Perished.

Aberdeen, S. D., March 17.—The blizzard which set in Friday afternoon is still raging, with no signs of abating. Trains are more or less delayed, and business is at a standstill. It is the worst storm for several years.

Pierre, S. D.—The storm which has prevailed since Friday night is the worst of the winter. Mail on stage lines into the city has been stopped. The temperature is about zero. It is probable that there have been heavy losses of cattle and sheep.

Severe in Wisconsin.

Black River Falls, Wis., March 17.—The storm here yesterday was the worst of the winter.

Sparta—The worst blizzard of the season has prevailed over this section for the past twenty-four hours and is still raging.

La Crosse — The thermometer here registered zero yesterday and the mercury is still falling. A high wind is blowing, and the small buildings and trees have been wrecked in all parts of the city. Trains on all lines are delayed several hours.

FUNERAL OF GOV. ALTGELD.

All Classes Join in Paying a Final Tribute to the Dead.

Chicago, March 17.—Representatives of all classes of people in the State of Illinois joined yesterday in a final tribute of respect to ex-Gov. John P. Altgeld, who was buried in Graceland cemetery. In accordance with the wishes of Mrs. Altgeld there was no military display. For two hours in the morning before the casket was sealed a steady stream of people viewed the body as it lay in state in the public library building. Along the line of march, which extended from the library to Lincoln Park, the streets were crowded with men, women and children in whose hearts Mr. Altgeld had found a place. The funeral procession, which started at 11 o'clock, was headed by a platoon of police. The funeral car, with its escort of active and honorary pall bearers, was followed by carriages containing the members of the family, and after these came Gov. Yates and his staff, members of the legislature, the Cook county judiciary, members of the county board, county officials and city officials.

FARMERS IN DESPERATE WAY.

Feel Pangs of Hunger, Yet Refuse Offers of Assistance.

Forsythe, Mo., March 17.—Hundreds of farmers in the Ozark hills of Southern Missouri and Northern Arkansas whose crops failed during last summer's drouths, 'are living in a desperately poor way on short rations.' It is estimated that probably 10 per cent of the population in the district noted has felt the bitter pangs of hunger this winter. Offers of aid have been refused. The chief distress now comes from a lack of seed for the spring planting. This is being relieved by the distribution of seed purchased by the governor of Arkansas with money personally borrowed from the banks. A member of the Missouri State board of charities who has just investigated the situation at the request of Gov. Dockery, will recommend that the Missouri delegation in congress send what government seed they can.

THREATS OF ABDUCTION.

They Lead a Pittsburg Man to Remove His Family to New York.

Pittsburg, March 17.—The Dispatch yesterday published the following: "Repeated threats to abduct his three children unless a ransom of $25,000 was left in a certain spot and a warning that murder would follow the placing of detectives on the case have caused Alexander R. Peacock, former vice president and general sales agent of the Carnegie company, to remove his little family temporarily from his Lexington avenue home to the Holland house, New York. The case was put in the hands of detectives and it is said the arrest of the guilty parties is now practically certain."

MAD AND VIOLENT

SOLDIERS FROM THE PHILIPPINES WHO ARE HOPELESSLY INSANE.

MEN SNARL LIKE WILD BEASTS

INDULGENCE IN FILIPINO "VINO" AND OTHER DRINKS THE CAUSE.

PITIABLE IN THE EXTREME

MALADY WILL NOT RESPOND TO ANY TREATMENT YET DISCOVERED.

Chicago, March 17.—A car of insane soldiers passed through here yesterday. There were eighteen in number and they are being sent from the Philippines to the soldiers' hospital at Washington. Every one of the eighteen is violently and incurably insane. Their wild haggard faces peered menacingly through the windows of the coach, their manacled hands wildly threatened the onlookers and their fiendish shrieks and laughter echoed through the depot. Few of them were apparently diseased in body. The maniacs were in charge of a squad of soldiers armed with clubs. The guards said in reply to questions that a consignment of a score or two

Scores of Maniacs

from the Philippines was by no means unusual. The affliction is due principally to indulgence in the Filipino "vino" and other harmful liquors sold in Manila, aggravated by the heat. The malady is of a violent and persistent nature and will not respond to any treatment that has yet been discovered. As the train pulled into the station yesterday afternoon there was a sound as of a menagerie approaching. The imprisoned men were chattering, snarling, moaning and whining like wild beasts and the noise was Terrifying to the Spectators.

Depot employes and trainmen who passed the car, not knowing of the presence of the maniacs, were greatly frightened when they heard a snarl of rage and then looked up into fiendish faces, which had their lips drawn back and teeth exposed. One unwitting man fainted with horror and fright and was compelled to receive medical aid. The condition of the maniacs was pitiable in the extreme. All were absolutely mad and violent. Every one of them wore leg irons and handcuffs, and some were in straight jackets and bound to their seats in the car. Most of them are young men.

FLOOD WARNINGS SENT.

Heavy Rains in Georgia Cause Rapid Rise in Rivers.

Atlanta, Ga., March 17.—Heavy rains Saturday in Northern and Middle Georgia yesterday caused the Atlanta weather bureau to send flood warnings to Eufaula, Ala., and West Point and Columbus, Ga., predicting a rapid rise in the Chattahoochee. North Alabama was deluged as were portions of South Georgia and Northern Florida and streams in those sections of the South are out of their banks. At Albany, Ga., the Flint river, which rose at the rate of a foot an hour, has not yet reached the maximum height expected. The rainfall there in the past three days is nearly twelve inches. Many sewers burst and houses in the low-lying quarter of the town were surrounded by water for several hours. The river is still rising and all creeks north of Albany are out of their banks. The tracks of the Central of Georgia and the Plant system between Albany and Thomasville are reported under water in several places. Washouts have been reported in several places.

MILES TURNED DOWN.

Had Plan to End War in Philippines Without Further Loss.

Washington, March 17. — The Post says: Lieut. Gen. Nelson A. Miles of the army, made a specific request to the war department to be sent to the Philippines, and in connection therewith submitted a plan by which, in his opinion, the war could be brought to an end without further loss of life to either side. He proposed to employ methods similar to those used by him so successfully in his Indian campaigns. Secretary Root, after due consideration, denied Gen. Miles' request, and disapproved the plan submitted. The papers, so indorsed by the secretary, were sent to the White House, and the president subsequently concurred in the secretary's opinion. The final indorsement, disposing of the matter, is said to bear date March 5, 1902.

PIPE OF PEACE NO GOOD.

Man Who Moved a House Too Fast Shoots Friend With Whom He Has Been at Outs.

Halstad, Minn., March 17. — Martin Sunseth, a farmer living near this village, shot, probably fatally, John Hage during a carousal at the farm of John Hetland. Some time ago Hage entered into a contract with Sunseth to have the latter remove a house. Sunseth set to work and finished the job in so short a time that Hage felt he had paid too much for the work. A strained feeling ensued between the two men from that time on. Recently a reconciliation was effected and in order to solemnize the event in an appropriate manner Sunseth bought a keg of beer and invited several friends for the evening. It seems that all parties drank freely and before they dispersed Hage began to revive several old grievances and made an attack on Sunseth, who opened fire and wounded him in the breast. Sunseth gave himself up to the authorities and is now awaiting trial. Much feeling has been created by the affray and the trial is awaited with interest.

DANGER FROM WOLVES GROWING.

North Dakota Ranchmen Fear That Protracted Winter Will Add Great Dangers.

Williston, N. D., March 17.—Ranchmen and farmers are greatly alarmed over the unusual number of wolves on the ranges. The coulies and hillsides serve as hiding places in daytime, while at night large packs are seen roving over the prairie and slinking in the neighborhood of corrals. The settlers are at a loss to explain the condition, and assert that the breed was never so thick before. Many losses are reported from the ranches and in many instances it is dangerous to venture out at night. It is feared that should the winter continue much longer a serious condition will threaten the cattlemen in the sparsely settled counties of the West.

INDICATIONS OF A BIG GORGE.

Missouri River at Chamberlain Dwindles Until It Is Not More Than Fifty Feet Wide.

Chamberlain, S. D., March 17. — The water in the Missouri river yesterday afternoon rapidly began to subside and at 10 o'clock last night the river at this point was practically dry, being but a small shallow stream, not more than fifty feet across. This condition is unprecedented, and is presumed to be owing to a serious gorge above this point. The breaking of the gorge may create havoc in bottom lands along the river.

Sioux Falls, S. D., March 17.—A banking institution at Alpena has deposits amounting to $60,000 and the cash reserve of the institution is $43,000. Nothing could speak more plainly of the excellent financial condition of the business men, the farmers, the dairymen and the stockmen of that place and vicinity. There is no demand for money, hence the large cash reserve in the bank.

GIRLS FIGHT DUEL

LOVE FOR A PART-BLOOD INDIAN AROUSES GREEN-EYED MONSTER.

AIR RIFLES THE WEAPONS USED

FIGHTERS SUPPOSED THEY WERE USING REAL WINCHESTER RIFLES.

ONE PLUNKED ON THE CHEST

RECONCILIATION FOLLOWS WHEN IT IS FOUND THERE IS NO WOUND.

Fenlon, Wis., March 17.—A duel between two girls, in which airguns were used as weapons, was the feature of the year at this village. The two fighters supposed they were using real Winchesters, but the girl seconds substituted popguns for the more deadly weapons, and the feud for the love of a part-blood Indian, whom the maids adored, ended in reconciliation.

Miss Della Shorest of Philadelphia, whose father owns large tracts of land in the pine district near here, came to Wisconsin for the winter.

A Milwaukee girl, Evelyn Mahoney, was at Mellen, a lumber town near here, for the winter also. Jim Short, a guide, who is about one-eighth Indian, has been piloting the girls about the woods in their efforts to learn to use snowshoes, skis and other woods equipments.

Both Girls Came to Love

the handsome young guide. They met two weeks ago and a horsewhip was used by the Philadelphia maid. As a result a meeting was arranged Saturday morning in a clearing. The seconds decided there should be no bloodshed, air rifles were secured from Ashland, and the two city girls told they were just alike and of the latest pattern. The Philadelphia girl fired when the Milwaukee maid was about to pull the trigger. Miss Mahoney felt the blow on her chest and fell. When she found that the airgun bullet had not touched the skin she was ready for a reconciliation. So was the other girl, who thought she was a murderess.

Sullbardeo, Houston, Tex., seriously injured about head. Those hurt were thrown from the street car by the shock of the collision and were caught between the freight car and the trolley car. The blame has not been placed.

CLOSE CALL FOR A TRAIN.

Immense Structure Falls Upon the Track Just as the Last Coach Had Passed.

Toledo, Ohio, March 17.—A remarkable disaster occurred in this city yesterday afternoon. The big plant of the Toledo Metal Wheel company, which employs from 600 to 800 men, stands alongside the Lake Shore railway. Yesterday afternoon, just as a west-bound passenger train passed the building the structure collapsed and fell across the tracks, barely missing the rear coach. Two seconds earlier and every occupant of that coach would have been killed. The loss will be heavy. It is supposed by architects that the continual passing of trains caused the walls to weaken until they collapsed.

The Legislature

Proceedings of the Week in the ..... State Law Mill . . .

In the Senate.

St. Paul, March 10.—The conference committee report on proposed constitutional amendments was adopted in the senate Saturday forenoon with but one dissenting vote. There was no objection to the added provision empowering the legislature to establish a mortgage registry fee.

The house refused to concur when the new bill was presented after passing the senate, and its conference committee was reappointed. The senate reappointed its committee and a session was held in the afternoon, at which minor changes were made in the bill.

The remaining sections of the Anderson tax bill embracing the administrative features relating to real estate formerly contained in the report of the state tax commission, were adopted Saturday by the senate. The work of the senate is represented by a mass of amendments, but none affects the principles of the bill.

After spending the entire afternoon in considering the measure the senate decided to defer action until Monday morning, when the bill will be continued as a special order and brought up for passage. There is no opposition in the senate and its enactment is not doubted.

In the House.

Representative Alford Saturday tried to have his bill divesting the state board of control of any authority over the state university, state normal schools, and the schools for the blind and deaf, placed at the head of general orders. After considerable discussion the motion was lost by a vote of 43 to 49.

Representative Johnson had recommended for passage by the committee of the whole his bill making an appropriation for the Louisiana Purchase exposition.

Senator Daly's resolution instructing the railroad and warehouse commission to inquire into passenger rates in Minnesota and to try to secure a rate of not less than 2 cents per mile or more than 2 1-2 cents per mile, first-class, passed the house.

In the Senate.

St. Paul, March 11.—The senate and the house yesterday passed the constitutional amendment bill permitting an income tax on credits and upon earnings, with $1,000 exempt; an inheritance tax, a registry fee on mortgages and the option of three methods of taxing public service corporations.

In the senate the passage of the bill was secured on a vote of 46 to 11, after a sharp fight. In the house the bill passed almost without debate by a vote of 99 to 3.

The board of control fight was reopened in the senate by a bill introduced after a hard fight, to take from the board of control the financial management of the state university, leaving the institution under the exclusive control of the board of regents. The bill was passed by a vote of 35 to 25.

In the House.

The financial officers of the state university must remain under the direction of the state board of control another year. The senate bill divesting the board of control of all authority over that institution encountered a storm of opposition when it reached the house yesterday, and after some discussion the motion to suspend the rules made by Representative Roberts was withdrawn, and the bill was allowed to take its regular course, which meant its death, for yesterday was the last day for passing bills.

The Pennington bill for a tax on foreign corporations was passed with only 2 dissenting votes.

Sherman Smith's bill to raise the personal property exemption from $100 to $200, the present constitutional limit, was lost, commanding only 52 votes of the requisite 60.

In the House.

St. Paul, March 12.—The legislature, or more strictly, a fraction of it, assembled yesterday morning in a frolicsome mood, preliminary to the final adjournment at noon. A number of the members drew their salaries last Saturday night and did not come back.

The house spent its hour and a half session in discussion of the resolution to appropriate compensation to the reporters for the extra session. The resolution, with the amount placed at $50, was passed under suspension of the rules, and Messrs. Roberts, Pugh and Bush were appointed to wait upon the governor to inform him that the house had finished.

The governor sent back greetings and good wishes.

In the Senate.

The senate wound up all its business at an early hour and was ready for adjournment long before noon, the time set in the joint resolution of the house and senate.

Senator Miller succeeded in getting his resolution passed calling on the attorney general to examine into the combination of the Duluth & Iron Range and the Duluth, Mesaba & Northern railroads as to whether they should be proceeded against as an illegal merger.

The usual committees were appointed to wait on the governor and house and inform him, and then the senate was ready to adjourn. A recess was taken until 12 o'clock, there being hardly a dozen senators present when the motion was at that time put and carried to adjourn sine die.

St. Louis, March 15.—A bench warrant charging Edward Butler, a prominent local politician, with offering a bribe, has been issued on the order of the grand jury. The charge is based on testimony connecting Butler with the passage of the garbage bill of 1901.

Butler surrendered and was later released on bail.

Home for Minister Wu.

Washington, March 15.—The Chinese government has decided to have a permanent home here for its legation and Minister Wu Ting Fang yesterday recorded a deed by which there is transferred to the Chinese imperial government a building site in the northwestern section of the city.

Willing to Help.

This sounds like a vaudeville joke with a special setting. Representative Sibley of Pennsylvania is bald, very bald, in fact. Not long ago he was entertaining in his Washington home a little girl, who found her host's shiny bald pate a subject for frequent and studious examination. One evening, when the child was reclining on a rug at the congressman's feet, a bright thought seemed to strike her.

"Mr. Sibley," she inquired, "would you have a small rabbit painted on your head?"

"Why a rabbit, my dear?"

"Because," returned the artless miss, "it would be a little hare."—Brooklyn Eagle.

English as She Is Spoke.

One of the latest games, bilo, is thus explained by the Grants:

"First, you buy a bicycle; that's where the bi comes in; then you get a polo stick, and that is the lo part of it."

Presently a rival university will further corrupt the word into "billers," and then where are the philologists? On the same principle, we have heard mixed hockey, in which men and women play, called "mixers," a corruption, perhaps, of the portmanteau mixey.—London Globe.

This Is Simply Wonderful.

Champion, Mich., March 17th—Mrs. A. Wellett, wife of a local photographer, had a remarkable experience recently.

Mrs. Wellett tells the story this way: "I could not sleep, my feet were cold, my limbs cramped, I had an awful hard pain across my back. I had to get up three or four times every night. I was very nervous and fearfully despondent. I had very little appetite.

"After I had suffered in this way for five years, I began to use Dodd's Kidney Pills. When I had taken a few pills you ought to have seen what came from my kidneys. It looked like a spoiled egg, only darker.

"I kept on using Dodd's Kidney Pills till I was cured. Now I can sleep well and do not have to get up in the night. I have no pain in my back or limbs, and I feel better than I have for years."

What He Was Told.

"Say," said the funny man, as he paused in front of the depositors' window in a down-town bank, "are you the paying teller?"

"Yes," was the reply. "What can I do for you, sir?"

"Oh," said the funny man, "I merely wished to ask what you tell."

"I tell people who have no business here to trot along to the furthest extremity and be seated," rejoined the weary clerk.—Chicago News.

Never Hit Him.

Judge—What did you hit this man with, anyway?

Prisoner—I didn't hit him wit' anything, yer honor.

Judge—But look at him. He's in a horrible condition. Surely, you didn't do that with your fists?

Prisoner—No, yer honor. I ketched 'im by the heels an' bumped 'im against a brick wall a few times. But I didn't hit 'im wit' anything wanst.—Chicago Record-Herald.

Usually the Way.

"Now that we have a fine big house at last," he said, "what are your plans for the future?"

"Why, we'll spend our summers at the summer resorts, our winters at the winter resorts, and make a dash over to Europe in the spring and fall," she answered promptly. "That's the right thing to do when one gets a fine, big house, isn't it?"—Chicago Post.

A Political Advantage.

"She doesn't seem to have any trouble in keeping a servant girl."

"No; her husband is the political boss of the ward."

"What has that got to do with it?"

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of Testimonials.

WEDNESDAY, MAR. 19, 1902.

Oh where, oh where has our Congressman gone?
Oh where, oh where can he be?

That is the question that is now bothering the people of this district and also raising quite a commotion at Washington, D. C.

Frank M. Eddy is lost, strayed, stolen or in hiding somewhere. But nobody seems to know where he is, or why he is where he is.

Telegraphic reports state that Mr Eddy has not been seen in Washington since Feb. 17th. At that time he obtained a 30-days leave of absence, but failed to return within the given time. Some say that he is in Europe, and others are of the opinion that he is simply in hiding somewhere. Nobody knows.

Could it be possible that he has been foully dealt with? Or, could it be possible that he has received a nice little "hand-out" and retired to some obscure place where he can enjoy, as he so well knows how, the morsels that drop into the hands of a clever and unscrupulous politician who has succeeded in reaching a place where he can touch the pocket books of the plutocrats?

If he will only have the good grace to stay away, we will try not to be misrepresented in Congress again.

LATER.—It is announced that Mr. Eddy has been discovered in Norway and his leave of absence extended. He is said to be drumming up immigration on behalf of a syndicate.

Opposed to Progress.

Afghanistan's new ruler announced in his inaugural that he will prevent the introduction of railroad, telegraphys, European trade and education by missionaries. China's great wall is a monument to the uselessness of this kind. The law of the human race is progress or decay. Progress in personal strength and habpiness is made by a regular use of "Golden Grain Belt" beer for it is brewed from the purest barley malt and haps. Drink it regularly and it will do you good. Order of your nearest dealer or of Alex. Thompson, Crookston, Minn.

CHARLESTON "LOST."

An Episode of the Telegraph After the Great Earthquake.

How powerfully the imagination may be stimulated by a story told in dots and dashes is illustrated by an episode of the Charleston earthquake, relates L. C. Hall. At the moment of the final shock every wire connecting Charleston with the outside world was instantly "lost." And as no other tidings could be had from the doomed city it was as if in an instant it had been swept from the face of the earth. And for many hours Charleston remained literally dead to the world.

The next morning before the average citizen had time to collect his wits the telegraph people had started out gangs of linemen to get the wires in working order. Operators in the principal offices within a radius of several hundred miles were set to calling "C. N." For a long time there was no response, but at last on the wire which I had in charge a slight answering signal was felt rather than heard—faint and flickering, like the first sign of returning life. From that moment my watch was, if possible, more diligent. For an hour or more I called, "Adjusted," and used every effort to revive the feeble pulse. I could fancy myself working desperately to resuscitate a half drowned man. Again I felt the flickering signal, and then once more all signs of life faded away. Finally as the wires were gradually cleared of debris the current began to strengthen, and then came the answering "I—I! C N." weak and unsteady, but still sufficiently plain to be made out.

To me it sounded like a voice from the tomb, and I shouted aloud the tidings that Charleston was still in existence. Quickly the sounder was surrounded by a throng of excited telegraphers. The Morse was broken and unsteady at first, then the current grew stronger—the patient was growing better—and for a long time we listened to the labored clicking, until at last the worst was known. And at the end of the recital a great sigh went out from the hearts of all of us, as if literally in our presence a long buried city had been exhumed.—McClure's.

NATURAL HISTORY.

Camels are the only animals that cannot swim.

A seal has been known to remain twenty-five minutes under water.

The starfish has no nose, but can smell with the whole of its under side.

The greyhound, which can cover a mile in 1m. 28s., is the fastest of quadrupeds.

Nearly all bottom sea fishes have the power of changing color at will, like chameleons.

A sea anemone, taken from the Firth of Forth in 1828, lived and flourished in captivity until 1887.

Horses, giraffes and ostriches have the largest eyes of land creatures, cuttlefish of sea beasts.

Grizzly cubs born in captivity are almost impossible to raise. Of twenty-three born at Cincinnati only one lived.

The Eskimo dog will eat almost any of the dried fruits. The sour or acid fruits, as the orange, lemon, lime, shaddock, etc., as well as the sour plums and the bitter olives, are rarely eaten.

To protect itself from the rain the orang outang crooks its arms over its head. The hair on the orang's upper arm points downward, while on the lower arm it points upward, the apparent purpose being to shed the rain like a thatch.

Why Did They Abandon Pompeii?

At a period when newspaper discussions were rather vapid, despite the accredited appearance of the sea serpent and the arrival of the large potato, Max Nordau in an Austrian journal propounded a problem that should lead to useful inquiry:

Why was it that the inhabitants of Pompeii did not return to their homes after the destruction of the city?

Of the 30,000 inhabitants a few hundreds at most seem to have lost their lives. The eruption of Vesuvius lasted only a few days. The deposit of lava and ashes was not very thick. The houses might have been easily repaired. Many of them stand to this day. They were beautiful houses, many of them, richly appointed and containing valuables of great price. Had the Pompeiians no love of home, or were they too superstitious, or did their terror at the eruption make them believe the disaster might come again?

Drinking Water in the Navy.

For many years after the close of the civil war water was not generally distilled in vessels of the navy except on long voyages. Later on medical statistics showed that in ships where distilled water only was used there was almost an entire freedom from dysentery and enteric fevers, while these disorders were more or less common in vessels that used water purchased in different ports. Gradually the practice of distilling water for drinking purposes became general, and now shore water is seldom purchased, the distilling plants of our ships being ample for all demands.—Argonaut.

Creeds and Trades.

Certain creeds seem to monopolize certain industries. Practically all British manufacturers of cocoa, for example, are Quakers. Then, in London at any rate, a very large percentage of cigar merchants and all the best known manufacturers of Christmas cards are Jews. Whenever a Welshman comes to London to seek his fortune it is long odds on his making a pile either in the draper's or drug store business. Irishmen, probably owing to the fact that they lack the money making instinct, flock to journalism.—London Tatler.

HE FILLED THE BUCKET.

A Story of Grant When He Was a "Pleb." at West Point.

There is a story told of General Grant when a pleb. He had just entered on his first day in "pleb." camp. A first classman who had noticed the boy's strong build intimated to him it would be a pleasure to have him call immediately at the senior's tent. Grant went. There is a rule at West Point, which was a rule then as well, that any cadet who asks another to perform menial labor for him shall be dismissed from the service. The first classman knew too much to ask his pleb. visitor outright to do anything of the kind, but here is the way he went at it:

"I presume, Mr. Grant, that you have lived on a farm, and, this being the case, you have had undoubtedly a good opportunity to note the effect of the sun's rays on certain objects. Now, if you had left a water bucket that was innocent of holding a single drop of the fluid out in the sun from its rising to its setting, what do you think, sir, would be the particular effect upon that particular water bucket?"

"I think," said Grant, "that it would get warped and leaky."

"Very good, Mr. Grant. You show erudition beyond your years. Now, if you will notice my water bucket, you will see that it is as dry as a chip. Now, by the further exercise of your knowledge, Mr. Grant, can you tell me by what means I may prevent the warping and leaking of my bucket?"

"Have it filled," said Grant.

"Very good again, Mr. Grant, but note that you said 'have it filled,' not 'fill it.' That necessarily means that some one must fill it for me. You have shown so much acumen that I fear to violate your prescription either in letter or in spirit, which I should do if I presumed to carry the bucket to the water tank myself."

Grant filled the bucket.

PROTECTION OF WORDS.

A Plea For a Rest For Our Familiar Quotations.

In these days when everybody is writing and everybody seems to succeed would it not be well to start a society for the protection of words and phrases? Many of these are so brutally overworked by the amateur. The winged words, the words that burn, the thoughts that breathe, the telling phrases, do they not clamor loudly for a rest? That very sentence affords an illuminating example of what I mean. How apt, how vivid, how expressive it would be if all its epithets had not lost their vitality through overwork! To the sated reader the whole sentence is but the echo of an echo. It not merely means nothing, but it is robbed even of its sound and fury.

The greenhorn that complained of "Hamlet" that it was too full of quotations unconsciously expressed a great fact through the medium of a bull. In a wrongheaded way he pointed out that constant reiteration has reduced the grandest passages in the language to mere commonplaces. Give our familiar quotations a rest. Lay to sleep our household words. Let fortune for awhile cease to favor the brave. Let us feign that the poet is made. Let a man who would steal another's thunder be arrested for felony. Let us win no more golden opinions. Let the favored few withdraw to some select seclusion and the countless thousands to some dry eyed privacy.

Thus may nouns, adjectives and phrases, after a long rest, reawaken with the freshness of the morning upon them, their original meanings recreated, energetic, effective, brilliant, as on the day when they were first conceived and brought forth.—Era.

Thought She Was a Calf.

When Mme. Schumann-Heink was thirteen, her father was transferred to Gratz, where a singing teacher, Marietta von Leclair, recognizing the young girl's talent, offered to give her singing lessons without compensation. For two years she studied nothing but solfeggios. Then she began learning songs. She had a very deep contralto without any high notes at that time. One day a caller, hearing her sing Schubert's "Der Tod und das Madchen" in an adjoining room, said to her teacher, "I did not know that you taught young calves."

"She is not a young calf," replied Marietta von Leclair. "Some day she will be a great singer."—Gustav Kobbe in Woman's Home Companion.

The Antiquity of Wheat.

The Chinese cultivated wheat 2,700 years before the beginning of the Christian era, always considering it as a gift direct from heaven. Scientific agriculturists are of the opinion that it was widely known and cultivated by prehistoric man. At the present time it is the principal bread corn of the leading European nations and is fast supplanting the use of maize, or Indian corn, in the American states. The Egyptians attributed its origin to Isis and the Greeks to Ceres.

The Dinner Ordeal.

When a man invites a friend on the street to go home with him to dinner, the nearer they get to the house the more absentminded and timid he becomes until his attitude when they meet his wife is a positive apology.—Atchison Globe.

Ostentatious Display of Wealth.

Tim—Dat Muggsy kid makes me tired.

Sal—Why?

Tim—Aw, he got a nickel sumhow, and ever' feller he meets he asts him ef he kin change it.—Boston Post.

Hon. C. G. Rapp returned on Friday from St. Paul where he has been attending the extra session of the legislature and performing his duties as a member of that body.

Ove Flaten of Granite Falls, Minn., was here yesterday in behalf of the Creamery association regarding the necessary machinery for the skimming station to be located in Wyandotte.

Dick Kivel arrived here on Thursday after a winter season spent in the woods. He assisted himself around with a cane because of a crushed foot which he got in the pineries and which kept him confined for a while in the Crookston hospital.

A new orchestra composed of Nelson Lundstrom and Peterson has been formed here. The instruments are guitars and violin and the music they render is really good. In future it will not be necessary to import music for dances or other social entertainments as the new orchestra is thoroughly qualified to give first-class music.

Card of Thanks.

Through the SPECTATOR we desire to express our sincere thanks to the many friends and neighbors who kindly aided us and extended their sympathy during the illness and after the death of our beloved daughter Tena, who died at our home in Sanders township on Friday the 14th,

Mr. and Mrs. Anders Anderson.

Death of Miss Tina Anderson.

At the residence of her parents, in Sanders township, Miss Tina Anderson died on Friday afternoon of inflammation of the bowels. The deceased was only 23 years of age and was ever a favorite with all who knew her. Her illness lasted only about ten days. All that medical skill could accomplish was done to relieve the malady, but without avail. The funeral services occurred Monday at 3 o'clock from the Synod church, Rev. Aastad, of Thief River Falls, officiating.

Must Pay The Note.

Before Judge Gigstad and a jury the case of J. K. Hannay vs Solomon Swenson was tried in the village hall on last Friday and resulted in a verdict for the plaintiff.

The case is somewhat peculiar. It seems that about three years ago a travelling medecine vendor, giving his name as "Dr." B. A. Hardin, called at the residence of Mr. Swenson and finding him suffering from some disease, offered to cure him for $35. Mr. Swenson did not take kindly to the idea, and at first refused to have anything to do with "Dr." Hardin. However, a little persuasive eloquence induced him to sign what he claims was a blank note, which was subsequently sold to Mr. Hannay by the "Doctor." When Mr. Hannay tried to collect the amount of the note payment was refused. The case on Saturday was the result and Mr. Hannay was awarded a verdict for the full amount with costs.

Kruse's Wife Leaves Him.

Telegraphic dispatches from Minneapolis state that Mrs O. F. Kruse on last Wednesday took her three children and forsook her husband and home in Minneapolis. According to the dispatches Kruse returned from work Wednesday evening and found his supper waiting for him on the table but his wife and children were not there. He made an examination of the premises and discovered that his trunk had been broken open, and he immediately entered a complaint with the police alleging that his wife had absconded with the children and $500 in currency which she took from his trunk.

So far as we have been able to learn from immediate acquaintances of the family here, it is very doubtful if Mr. Kruse had such an amount of money at this time. Mrs. Kruse some time ago had divorce papers made out alleging that her husband was an habitual drunkard and did not support his family. Kruse promised to be good and his wife withdrew the divorce proceedings.

Mrs. Kruse run a boarding house here and in that way managed by hard work to maintain the family. Kruse worked at the mill and was easily able to spend all he earned, also what he could procure from his wife's earnings.

It seems to be the unanimous opinion of those who know them that Mrs. Kruse, if she got the $500, did not get any more than she should have, according to the work she has done to earn it. Mrs. Kruse has the sympathy of this entire community where she has lived for years and all hope that she may successfully escape from the net which her dissipated husband would weave around her.

Go to McAndress' for a Fontella—the best 5-cent cigar

The bloomer social held in the village hall last Friday evening was a success considering the bad storm. Not so many were there as would have been had the weather been favorable but all present enjoyed themselves and were pleasantly surprised to find the bloomers consisted of a button hole bouquet of blooming paper roses.

Grant Van Sant was here Thursday from St. Paul looking after his extensive real estate interests in the vicinity. He was accompanied by a few friends who were also interested in the local real estate market.

FORGET FEAR OF MAN

DEER KNOWN TO SEEK PROTECTION AT FARM HOUSES.

Two Remarkable Instances That Are Vouched for—One Animal Displayed Intelligence That Was Almost Human—Gratitude of a Fawn.

"Some time ago," said a Sullivan county citizen, "the Sun published an item about a young deer, pursued by dogs, that bounded into a Maine village and virtually sought protection of a boy in the street. That might seem to be an amazing story, but to any one who has lived where wild deer abound and has observed their nature it is an incident by no means uncommon.

Every woodman knows that although the wild deer is the most timid of animals and dreads intensely the sight or scent of man, the female deer, when wounded, and pressed by hunter or hound, or when pressed closely and as yet unhurt, will seek the protection of human beings or their habitations. Buck fawns will also seek such protection, but no buck that has come to the dignity of horns will show such a disposition; at least none to my knowledge has ever done so.

"The strange part of this disposition on the part of does and fawns is that they plainly ask for the protection they seek. The most striking instance of this I ever knew was that of the splendid doe that sought refuge from danger at the hamlet of Cooley, in Sullivan county.

"A. G. Welch of that place, was eating his supper when he saw the doe come bounding from the woods into his dooryard. He hurried to the door, and the doe trotted straight to him and would have entered the house, but Welch was so startled that he slammed the door in the deer's face.

"The deer then went to a window and looked appealingly through. The animal was panting heavily, and was plainly very tired, but the door was not opened for it to enter, and it departed.

"From Welch's place the doe went to Melvin Carley's, about half a mile away. Carley was sitting in his kitchen, and hearing a noise, looked up an saw the deer standing at a window, rubbing the pane with its nose, and looking longingly in at Carley, who, being an experienced hunter, knew at once that the deer was fleeing from dogs or hunters.

"He went out and the deer followed him, or rather walked close by his side to the barn, where he locked it up. Once in the barn, the deer lay down, so nearly run to death had it been. It had been shot in the back and on the leg.

"Carley fed the deer and doctored its wounds, and when it was sound and well again he offered it its liberty, but the grateful beast refused to take it, and is still in Carley's possession, although its rescue occurred two years ago.

"I know of an instance in which a fawn pursued by dogs, ran into a farmhouse and jumped into the lap of the farmer's wife, who was peeling apples in the kitchen. That fawn remained on the farm and became such a pet that when she disappeared one fall there was great lamentation in the family and a good reward was offered for her recovery.

"As no trace of her could be found, it was at last concluded that she had been killed by some ruthless person. But this was not the case, for the doe reappeared one day in the following spring with a pretty little spotted fawn by her side, and there was great rejoicing.

"The fawn was a buck fawn and along in the next summer it went away and never came back. The doe however, never left the farm again, and died on it, at a good old age."—New York Sun.

Throwing the Slipper.

The fashion of throwing a white satin slipper after the bridal pair as they depart for their new home after the wedding ceremony is over is supposed to have originated among the peasants of southern France.

There the bride is conducted to her new home by her friends, while her husband is made to halt a couple of hundred yards from the house. Supposing there is a rejected suitor, he now arms himself with an old sabot and flings it with his best aim at the bridegroom as he runs full speed toward the house. With the throwing of the old shoe all bad feeling which may have hitherto been felt are put away.

English Court Out of Mourning.

The English court has gone out of mourning for Queen Victoria. The royal household has likewise, for the first time in forty years, gone out of mourning for the late prince consort. From the time of the latter's death until the anniversary of Queen Victoria's demise last month, the domestics and gentlemen of the royal household have never been seen without a black mourning band around their left arm, and black, too, was the invariable dress of the ladies in attendance on the late sovereign. These emblems of woe have now disappeared.

Where the House Acted Hastily.

The house does funny things sometimes. It passed a bill the other day establishing a lighthouse on the coast of North Carolina. The second section of the bill provided that the "act approved March 3, 1901, be, and the same is hereby repealed." The act thus wiped off the statute books at one fell swoop was the sundry civil appropriation bill, which appropriated millions and millions of dollars for the expenses of the government. In the senate the bill was amended so as to be less sweeping in its effect.—Washington Post.

The Present New York Rage.

The rage for little turn-over collars in different colors of linen, embroidered in the same or contrasting colors, has spread among all classes and conditions of women. Cashiers in restaurants, work on them between taking in money, and yesterday a woman was embroidering one on an elevated train with as much unconcern as if she were in her own home.—New York Press.

Worldly Knowledge.

"Why is it," asked the person in search of information, "that a hatchet is so often used as a symbol of truth? Has it any other origin than the George Washington story?"

"O, yes" replied the cynical person. "A hatchet is suggestive of truth because you are likely to do a great deal of mischief with it unless you handle it with care."—Chicago Tribune.

Root Tubercles of Alfalfa.

The question of root tubercles on leguminous plants is one that has combined with it several other questions. One of the most important of these questions is whether or not plants can draw food from the depths of the soil. It has generally been held by investigators that the deep rooting legumes draw their food largely from far below the surface layers of soil. More recently a good many thinkers on these subjects have expressed the belief that the lower roots do nothing but take up water and that the food supplies are drawn from the surface soil. Some experiments with alfalfa last year in Italy seem to militate against this idea. The result of these experiments showed that the alfalfa roots were abundantly provided with root tubercles the first year of cultivation. Very few were found on the roots of two-year-old plants, and none at all on three-year-old plants. The experimenters infer that the plant makes use of atmospheric nitrogen only during its first year's growth, or until the roots have obtained sufficient length to obtain the necessary nitrogenous food materials from the deeper soil.

Sewage Farms in Europe.

The municipality of Vienna has under consideration a project for the disposal and utilization of the sewage of the city which at present is discharged into the Danube. In England so-called sewage farms are now quite common in connection with the smaller cities, and the plan has been adopted by both Berlin and Paris, but to all of the systems in use there is more or less objection, and even with the best of them there is much room for improvement. The scheme under consideration in Vienna consists in the application of a method developed by Herr Noebel of Posen, by which the liquid part of the sewage will be utilized for the double purpose of irrigation and enrichment. It is intended to convey the sewage in pipes to an extensive plain of poor land which suffers from lack of water, due to inadequate rainfall, over which it is not to be carried in trenches, but the surface of the land is to be irrigated by sprinkling the sewage water over it. It is said that by this plan the land will not be over-saturated, as it frequently is on the sewage farms at Berlin and Paris. The system is stated to have been already in use at Posen with satisfactory results.

Very Intensive Forage Culture.

A report of some very intensive operations in agriculture comes from San Bernardo, in Spain, relative to the production of maize, barley and oats for forage. The crop was grown under irrigation on a field of about seven and a half acres. The field had received 110,000 pounds of barnyard manure, 1,465 pounds of Thomas slag, 1,100 pounds of nitrate of soda, and 374 pounds of superphosphate per hectare (about two and a half acres). The corn grew to an average height of over 13 feet and yielded about 40 tons of forage per acre during a favorable season. The corn was sown early in April and cut about August 1st. The second crop of corn was then grown and harvested by November 1st. Following this, barley or oats was sown, which was cut for green forage the following spring, before the preparation of the land for the first corn crop.

The Cow and Her Milk.

Prof. Clinton D. Smith, after five years' investigation of the milk question, publishes the following conclusions: "1. A cow yields as rich milk as a heifer as she will as a mature cow. 2. The milk is as rich in the first month of the period of lactation as it will be later, except perhaps during the last few weeks of the milk flow, when the cow is rapidly drying off. 3. There is little difference in seasons as to the quality of the milk. While the cows are at pasture the milk is neither richer nor poorer, on the average, than the milk yielded when the cows were on winter feed. 4. The milk of a fair-sized dairy herd varies little in composition from day to day, and radical variations in this respect should be viewed with suspicion."

Exporting Finnish Butter.

The French consul at Helsingfors reports that in order to encourage the export of Finnish butter, and to assist the dairy industry of the country to compete successfully against foreign competition on the British markets, especially that of Denmark, Sweden, and Siberia, the senate of Finland has resolved to grant a considerable subsidy to the Finnish Steamship company "Finska Angfartygs Aktiebolaget." This company is to maintain a regular steamer service between Finland and Great Britain for a term of five years, commencing from November 1 of the current year, for which the company is to receive a money grant of 60,000 Finnish marks (about $11,850) and a yearly subsidy of 120,000 Finnish marks (about $23,700).—The Dairy.

How long a time after mating are the eggs fertile? This is a much discussed question. Experiments seem to show that a few eggs are fertile two days after mating, but that the best results are obtained a week after mating. That is, the eggs that are laid about a week after the male is put into a breeding pen prove to be more generally fertile than at any time before that. This was when the male was kept continually with the females through the entire test.

Wheat Receipts in Canada.

The Lawyer Was Foxy.

Judge Roger S. Greene, for many years chief justice of Washington Territory, was eminent not only for his legal attainments, but also for the accuracy of his scholarship and scrupulously correct use of language. A mispronunciation was an offense that he could not permit to pass unnoticed.

In arguing a case before him one day, an attorney cited Browne on Carriers, pronouncing the name of the author Brown-ey. The judge interrupted the argument, to give him the correct pronunciation, which he accepted for the moment, but soon relapsed into the error, whereupon the judge again interrupted him with:

"Mr. ——, that author's name is not pronounced Browney, but Brown. As in the case of many similar words, the final 'e' is silent. There is an 'e' at the end of my name, but you would not call me 'Greeny,' would you?"

"That depends," instantly replied the lawyer, "on how your honor decides this case."—New York Times.

Men of Affairs
One may sail the seas and visit every land and everywhere will find, that men of affairs, who are well informed, have neither the time nor the inclination, whether on pleasure bent or business, to use those medicines which cause excessive purgation and then leave the internal organs in a constipated condition. Syrup of Figs is not built on those lines. It acts naturally, acts effectively, cleanses, sweetens and strengthens the internal organs and leaves them in a healthy condition.
If in need of a laxative remedy the most excellent is Syrup of Figs, but when anything more than a laxative is required the safe and scientific plan is to consult a competent physician and not to resort to those medicines which claim to cure all manner of diseases.
The California Fig Syrup Co. was the first to manufacture a laxative remedy which would give satisfaction to all; a laxative which physicians could sanction and one friend recommend to another; so that today its sales probably exceed all other laxatives combined. In some places considerable quantities of old-time cathartics and modern imitations are still sold, but with the general diffusion of knowledge, as to the best medicinal agents, Syrup of Figs has come into general use with the well-informed, because it is a remedy of known value and ever beneficial action.
The quality of Syrup of Figs is due not only to the excellent combination of the laxative and carminative principles of plants, known to act most beneficially on the system, with agreeable and refreshing aromatic liquids, but also to the original method of manufacture. In order to get the genuine and its beneficial effects one should always note the full name of the Company—California Fig Syrup Co.—printed on the front of every package.

WHAT IT MEANS

REMARKABLE POSSIBILITIES OPENED BY THE RAILWAY MERGER.

NORTHWEST WILL PROFIT BY IT

ENORMOUS TRADE WITH THE ORIENT WHICH LIES WITHIN OUR GRASP.

NOT TO DESTROY COMPETITION

POTENTIAL BENEFICENCE OF THE ECONOMIC FORCES CALLED INTO PLAY.

Mr. J. J. Hill was recently reported by the New York Journal of Commerce as having said that the two mammoth ships he is building for the Asiatic trade could be operated in successful competition with foreign ships in spite of the higher wages paid to American seamen if our navigation laws permitted a better selection and control of crews. The reason for this confidence is plain. It is because he has applied to the construction of his vessels the same principles which have made the "Hill methods" of organizing transportation famous as one of the great money-saving inventions of the age—the simple principle that the bigger the trainload the less the cost of hauling it per ton per mile. He has made his ships bigger than any now afloat in the expectation that they will carry full cargoes and that it will cost but little more to operate them thus filled than smaller ships carrying a fraction of the tonnage.

These ships will carry cargoes at much lower freight rates than have heretofore prevailed, and are, therefore, the pioneers in the development of the Asiatic trade which will eventually require a larger fleet of similar ships. But to fill even these for regular trips will require the massing at the Pacific ports where they are to be loaded of a much larger volume of exports to Asia than has heretofore been offered. The traffic of the Great Northern alone would not suffice to sustain them. These ships are a constituent part of the arrangements whereby the Great Northern, the Northern Pacific and the Burlington systems are to be operated in harmony, and subsidiary to the same general end. The momentous significance of these arrangements can only be appreciated when it is understood that their purpose is to make these two great transcontinental railroads the chief highway of the commerce of this country and of the world with Asia. It is to carry out in the whole vast field of intercontinental traffic the same principle of concentration which Mr. Hill applies to his carloads and his ship's cargoes—to so increase the tonnage volume by concentration on this Northern route as to reduce its cost by land and sea, and thus—following the law that commerce always flows along the lines of least resistance—turn into this cheaper channel on the shorter lines of latitude the main stream of the commerce of the world. The full carload is thus the unit of power in a gigantic scheme of commercial concentration which will pour a new and more abounding flood of commercial and industrial energy into the six states which it has been recently sought to array against it.

The lawyers and politicians who have been fretting and fuming about the supposed effects of the so-called merger on local freight rates have been oblivious to the grandeur and potential beneficence of the economic forces called into play by this scheme, and which will insure a much greater reduction of local and transcontinental freight rates as a necessary consequence of an immensely increased volume of traffic than would otherwise be possible.

Our local statesmen are not to be blamed for the narrow local view they have taken of this question, or for their inability to take in the broad horizon of its world-wide relations. For but few who have not studied the question have any conception of the enormous trade with the Orient which lies within the grasp of American enterprise, but which for lack of an effective organization of our commercial power we have heretofore permitted other nations, and chiefly Great Britain, to appropriate. For the seven years ending with and inclusive of 1898 not an American steamship entered a Philippine port. Since the treaty of peace we have done better, but the major part of that traffic is still borne in English vessels. In the fifty-two years from 1848 to 1900, inclusive, the United States lost in their traffic with the Philippines over $275,000,000 in trade balances against us, or enough to have paid all the expenses of the Spanish war. And this does not take into account the Philippine goods carried to English or German ports and transshipped to this country.

In twenty years the United States has heretofore paid out over the counters of London, Berlin and Paris over a billion and a half of gold due Asiatic nations for trade balances. If this amount of money had been saved to the American people it would have bought out the steel trust and the Northern Securities company at their capitalized figures. In the ten years ending June 30, 1900, we have lost $120,000,000 in Chinese trade alone, exclusive of the trade of Hongkong, which is a warehouse for all China, under British auspices. And our ships have not carried 1 per cent of the foreign trade of China or of the port of Hongkong. The latest accessible tables of the treasury department concerning our sea trade show that of our imports from Asia in 1899, $74,000,000 came by way of the Atlantic ports and only $32,600,000 from the Pacific ports. Of our exports, $29,600,000 went from Atlantic ports and only $18,700,000 by way of Pacific coast ports, which means that 65 per cent of our trans-Pacific trade does not come to us by the way of the Pacific at all, but rather by the way of European ports, being transshipped at Liverpool and Hamburg for New York or Philadelphia. The total trade of China in 1899 was $121,600,000. Only $17,000,000 of this was carried in American bottoms.

Yet one line of steamships like that projected by Mr. Hill would very soon double that total and would put into Manila, Shanghai, Hongkong and other Chinese and Japanese ports agents for American trade that would soon make themselves felt in the interest of our manufacturers. The current of commercial exchanges thus established between the United States and the Orient would grow and widen until it draw into its swelling tide the tributary streams of every state in the Union and of every country in the world. All along the course of this great highway of the world's commerce this broad and deep current will set in motion the wheels of commercial and industrial activity. But it is mainly in Minnesota, whose chief cities, standing at the head of the great interior lines of water transit, are the terminal headquarters and gateways of these great systems of transcontinental railway, that its influence will be felt in making them far greater marts of trade than if they depended on the narrower range of tributary country around them. It will tend to make them the emporia for the distribution of the products of the Orient through the Mississippi valley. It will lift these cities and this state to a commanding position among the interior states and cities of the continent.

When the lawyers and politicians get to thinking about this matter in its larger relations they will probably come to the conclusion that there is something besides a question of local politics in this matter of the so-called merger—that it does not mean, as they imagine, the extinction of competition, but such a marshaling of commercial forces and such an organized concentration of commercial power as will enable this great system of transportation, traversing the northern belt of the temperate zone, which nature has marked as the chief path of commerce throughout the world, to enter into successful competition with the rival systems which are endeavoring to attract this great tide of transmundane commerce to more southern latitudes, and that, whatever technical objections the lawyers may find or fancy they find in "the mint and cummin" of the statutes, it is in conformity with that great economic law, to which all statutes must ultimately yield the right of way, that through concentration lies the only road to the highest economic efficiency—to lower costs and lower prices.—St. Paul Pioneer Press.

WOUND IN THE BACK.

Leads to the Identification of a Train Robber.

Guthrie, Okla., March 22.—Federal officers have identified J. L. Edwards, arrested in El Reno on a charge of practicing fraud before the government land office. Edwards is an alleged Iowa outlaw who was once shot in the back during an attempt to hold up a train. By the wound Edwards was identified when the jailer took him to the bath. He is alleged to have collected $10,000 in forging relinquishments to homesteads in the new country. The Iowa authorities have been informed.

SLAVONIC COMBINE.

Russian Generals Taking the Lead in a Widespread Movement.

St. Petersburg, March 22.—Official pan-slavists represented by Generals Komaroff and Ignatieff, the most warlike section of Russian conservatism, have formed with Bulgaria and other nationalities an inter-Slavonic committee, dedicated to the organization into a single body of the local patriotic associations throughout the whole Slavonic world. Congresses will be held in the capitals of the Slavonic states and pan-slavism fostered in every possible way.

SENATORS FOR LIFE.

Proposition for Utilizing the Services of Ex-Presidents.

Ruhlin had the better of the go as far as it went. He repeatedly rushed Maher to the ropes.

BIG FIRE IN WINNIPEG.

Freight Sheds of the Canadian Pacific Are Burning.

Winnipeg, Man., March 22.—The large Canadian Pacific freight sheds in this city are on fire, and indications point to their total destruction. The blaze originated in the offices in the east end of the building. The loss will be enormous, as the sheds are stored with large consignments of goods for Western merchants and settlers' effects.

Vatican Thieves Sentenced.

Rome, March 22.—The trial of the persons accused of the recent theft of a large sum of money from the pope was concluded yesterday. Francois Scotto, the originator of the theft, was sentenced to eight years imprisonment and Angelique Scotto, the receiver of the stolen money, to eighteen months' imprisonment. The two others accused were acquitted.

MAY DROP MILES

ENFORCED RETIREMENT OF THE GENERAL AMONG THE PROBABILITIES.

PRESIDENT DISCUSSES THE CASE

DECLARES THAT HE IS TIRED OF THE FRICTION IN THE ARMY.

CABINET TAKES MATTER UP

SHOULD RESPECT SUPERIORS AS HE WOULD BE RESPECTED.

Washington, March 22.—The statements made by Gen. Miles before the senate committee on military affairs were discussed by the president yesterday with a number of his callers. There is little doubt that these statements ultimately will lead to Gen. Miles' retirement by the president.

In discussing the matter with his callers, among whom were senators and representatives, the president took the position that the lieutenant general of the army should entertain toward his superiors the same respect that he would expect and demand from his subordinates.

It is significant that long after the cabinet meeting adjourned Secretary Root and the attorney general were closeted with the president. The president is known to have stated that he was tired of the

Friction in the Army,

and whether or not it is decided that Gen. Miles' statement was a privileged one, he will at no distant day take action looking to his retirement. The printed testimony of Gen. Miles has not yet been made public and it is understood that a great deal of what the general said will not appear in the record. Members of the committee say the report published was correct in substance in every particular. At the same time these senators do not agree that Gen. Miles can be punished for his utterances before the committee, whether they appear in the record or not. Of course, the committee could take no action to prevent the retirement of Gen. Miles. That, under the law, is purely an executive act and needs no confirmation or approval of the senate.

MANSIONS ARE WRECKED.

Brownstone Fronts Undermined by a Tunnel.

New York, March 22.—Park avenue, this city, yesterday was again the scene of an accident which, while it entailed no loss of life, caused a property loss of considerable proportions.

The brownstone fronts of several four-story private houses on the east side of the avenue sank because of the undermining of the foundations by excavations for the rapid transit tunnel. The first serious cave-in occurred when the sidewalk and area way of No. 53 Park avenue sank to a considerable depth, leaving the front wall with no support and exposing the cellar. The houses on either side of No. 53 were also rendered unsafe. Later in the afternoon there occurred a further settling of the walls and sidewalks and the residents on the east side of the block were ordered by the police to leave their homes.

The tunnel along Park avenue, where the trouble occurred, is bored through solid rock. Seams of rock for a distance of about sixty feet commenced to slide in a lateral direction into the tunnel Wednesday night. It was believed, however, that no great damage would be done, until to-day, when the first cave-in occurred.

FIRST STUDENT FRACAS.

Melee at South Dakota University Results in Disfigurements.

Vermillion, S. D., March 22.—The desperate battle between the freshmen and seniors of the state university here yesterday was the first of the kind in the history of the institution. The freshmen were victorious, but their blood mingled with that of the vanquished seniors in decorating the campus and the sidewalks leading to the drugstores and rooms of the combatants. Noses suffered greatly, but the clothing of half a hundred of the live-score mixed in the melee looked as if the wearers were specially dressed for a hard-times party.

COAL MINERS DO NOT ALL AGREE.

Expectations of Adjustment Are Not Fulfilled.

Shamokin, Pa., March 22.—Contrary to expectations the convention of Districts Nos. 1 and 2, United Mineworkers of America, yesterday failed to reach a determination concerning the grievance of the anthracite coal miners. Many of the delegates had expected an adjournment and definite action not later than yesterday, but the discussion of the scale committee report was more protracted than anticipated, and its adoption entire had not been accomplished at the hour of adjournment yesterday afternoon.

BIG DEAL IN STAMPS.

Our Purchase of $25,000 Worth at the Chicago Postoffice.

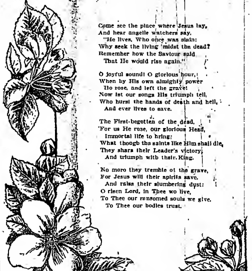
Chicago, March 22.—A record-breaking sale of postage stamps is reported by the Chicago postoffice. The sale was 1,000,000 stamps, on which the purchaser gave a check for $25,000. In one package were 500,000 4-cent stamps, and in the other the same number of 1-cent stamps. This is the largest individual purchase of stamps in the history of the Chicago postoffice.

EMBEZZLEMENT IS CHARGED.

Former Township Treasurer Thrown Into Jail.

Menominee, Mich., March 22.—Former Treasurer Louis Beauchamp of Spalding township was brought from his home in Wilson by Sheriff Stiles and placed in the jail here, charged with the embezzlement of $9,314.22. Beauchamp was elected in April, 1899, and served two consecutive terms. He was arraigned and placed under a $2,500 bond to appear on April 4.

Hymn of the Day



Come see the place where Jesus lay,
And hear angelic watchers say,
"He lives, Who once was slain:
Why seek the living 'midst the dead?
Remember how the Saviour said
That He would rise again."

O joyful sound! O glorious hour,
When by His own almighty power
He rose, and left the grave!
Now let our songs His triumph tell,
Who burst the bands of death and hell,
And ever lives to save.

The First-begotten of the dead,
For us He rose, our glorious Head,
Immortal life to bring;
What though the saints like Him shall die,
They share their Leader's victory,
And triumph with their King.

No more they tremble at the grave,
For Jesus will their spirits save,
And raise their slumbering dust:
O risen Lord, in Thee we live,
To Thee our ransomed souls we give,
To Thee our bodies trust.

Songs of Poets In Joyous Mood

Immortal Minds Have Recognized the Significance of the Day.

The solemn festival in honor of the resurrection has given inspiration to many poets to whom the joyfulness of the occasion; the coming of the light after darkness, of flowers springing from dead earth, of the raising up of buried hope into gladness, and of the perfection of virtue leaping out of sin—has appealed powerfully by one form of imagery if not by another.

That greatest of latter-day poets, Robert Browning, in "Easter Day" writes of the amazement that will come to doubters:

From repose
We shall start up, at last awake,
From life, that insane dream we take,
For waking now, because it seems.

Where is the Christian to whose sympathy those lines will not appeal in conjunction with others following them:

With darkness, hunger, toil, distress,
Be all the world a wilderness!
Only let me go on, go on,
Still hoping ever and anon
To reach one end, the Better Land.

Christina Rossetti, who has justly been called the poetess of death, never seemed to hymn her joys without enhancing their value by a recollection of past sorrow, yet her poem, "Resurrection Eve," is begun by the sentiment—

He resteth, weep not.

And she would have us note how the

Gray hours of morning, ere the day's dawning,

are

Brightened by gleams
Of the sunbeams—
By the foreseeing
Of resurrection,
Of glorious being,
Of full perfection,
Of sins forgiven
Before the face
Of men and spirits,
Of God in heaven,
The resting place
That he inherits.

James Russell Lowell concludes with the following verse, a poem which he entitled "Godminster Chimes," and wrote in aid of a chime of bells for Christ Church, Cambridge:

Oh, chime of sweet Saint Charity,
Peal soon that Easter morn
When Christ for all shall risen be,
And in all hearts new-born!
That Pentecost when utterance clear
To all men shall be given
When all shall say "My Brother" here,
And hear "My Son" in heaven!

Sir Lewis Morris adds a modern voice to the strain of Easter melody by the musical lines:

That is the joy of life,
Joy bought by sacrifice,
Pleasure for hopeless sighs,
And rest for strife.
The earth is no more, as it was at first,
By some strange spell accurst;
A mystery has passed a mystery,
A boundless hope has bid new heaven and earth to be—
Rise, happy earth, arise,
Thy wintry darkness done
To greet the new-risen sun.
Oh, soul, arise!
The joy which stirs the world let it wake
thee;
A symbol of thy risen life is born.
Awake, arise! this is the very morn;
A mystery has been a mystery!

If Wadsworth, that poet so dearly beloved by countless hearts, has failed to record in any special poem his feelings about the festival of Easter, there are lines in the "Excursion" concluding the fifth book of that work which can scarcely be excelled as thoughts with which to encourage meditation upon the mysterm of the Resurrection:

Life, I repeat, is energy of love
Divine or human; exercised in pain,
In strife and tribulation, and ordained,
Is so approved and sanctified to pass
Through shades and silent rest to endless
joy.

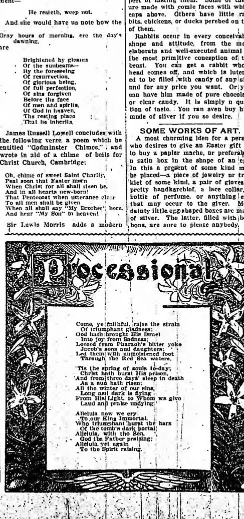
FOR EASTER GIFTS.

Chocolate eggs are as much in demand this Easter as ever. These are made in all conceivable shapes, perfectly plain or much ornamented with white frosting. They are most attractive as well as being good to eat, so that when one gets tired of looking at them they have the delightful prospect of tasting them. Some of these are made with comic faces with white caps above. Others have little rabbits, chickens, or ducks perched on top of them.

Rabbits occur in every conceivable shape and attitude, from the most elaborate and well-executed animal to the most primitive conception of the beast. You can get a rabbit whose head comes off, and which is intended to be filled with candy of any size and for any price you want. Or you can have him made of pure chocolate or clear candy. It is simply a question of taste. You can even buy him made of silver if you so desire.

SOME WORKS OF ART.

A most charming idea for a person who desires to give an Easter gift is to buy a papier mache, or preferably, a satin box in the shape of an egg. In this a present of some kind may be placed—a piece of jewelry or trinket of some kind, a pair of gloves, a pretty handkerchief, a lace collar, a bottle of perfume, or anything else that may occur to the giver. Most dainty little egg-shaped boxes are made of silver. The latter, filled with bonbons, are sure to please anybody.



Come, ye faithful, raise the strain
Of triumphant gladness;
God hath brought His Israel
Into joy from Sadness;
Loosed from Pharaoh's bitter yoke
Jacob's sons and daughters;
Led them with unmoistened foot
Through the Red Sea waters.

'Tis the spring of souls to-day;
Christ hath burst His prison,
And from three days' sleep in death
As a sun hath risen;
All the winter of our sins,
Long and dark is flying
From His Light, to Whom we give
Laud and praise undying.

Alleluia now we cry
To our King Immortal,
Who triumphant burst the bars
Of the tomb's dark portal;
Alleluia, with the Son,
God the Father praising;
Alleluia yet again
To the Spirit raising.

TWO DOCTORS FLY

DEATH OF A YOUNG LADY AT A SANITARIUM CAUSES SENSATION.

PERFORM CRIMINAL OPERATION

PERITONITIS SETS IN AND DEATH FOLLOWS IN A SHORT TIME.

POLICE CAPTURE THE NURSE

BUT THE DOCTORS HAVE IMPORTANT CASES ELSEWHERE.

New York, March 24.—Marie C. Norris of Lake Waramaug, New Preston, Conn., died on Saturday afternoon in Dr. Francis Gray Blinn's "sanitarium" at 165 West Forty-seventh street under such suspicious circumstances that the police of the West Forty-seventh street station were called in by the woman's parents. Dr. Blinn and a nurse in his employ fled from the house. The nurse was arrested at 3 o'clock yesterday morning, but the police are still looking for her employer.

Benjamin and Harriet C. Norris, the young woman's parents, own a small summer hotel at Lake Waramaug. She was an only daughter, was thirty-five years old and unmarried. On Thursday night she told her parents that she had decided to in Danbury, and left home early on Friday morning. She came here, reaching Dr. Blinn's sanitarium about noon.

Mr. Norris first knew that his daughter was not in Danbury on Saturday noon, when he received a telegram signed "Marie" stating that she was ill with appendicitis at 165 West Forty-seventh street. Norris and his wife took the next train to this city. They had telegraphed to W. H. Bonyange, a lawyer at 149 Broadway, who had spent the summer at their hotel, and he met them at the Grand Central station. They reached there at 9 o'clock on Saturday night. Their daughter had died in the afternoon.

Found Her Dead.

The Norrises, with Lawyer Bonynge, went at once to Dr. Blinn's. There they met the physician, the nurse, Bertha Craig, and Dr. W. H. Oyler. The nurse told them that Miss Norris was dead. Dr. Blinn called Mrs. Norris into his private office and started to explain the case.

"I don't want to hear it alone," said Mrs. Norris. "My husband and lawyer are with me. Call them and let them hear, too."

Dr. Blinn told them all that he was very sorry, but he had an important case which would call him out for an hour. He would be back at 11 o'clock, he said, and he and hat and went out. Late last night he had not returned. A few minutes later Dr. Oyler announced that he would go, too, and he went home. Then Nurse Craig volunteered to look for both physicians and she left the house. Lawyer Bonynge said that it was all very strange and that he would notify the police. He went over to the West Forty-seventh street station, where he got Capt. Donohue and Detectives Fitzgerald and Dale.

Grabbed Up His Coat

Capt. Donohue had the woman's body removed to the police station and later sent it to the morgue where an autopsy was made by Coroner O'Hanlon. The woman, he said, died of peritonitis following a criminal operation.

RUSSIAN SOLDIERS SHOOT TO KILL.

Attempt to Release Strike Leaders Results Disastrously.

Tiflis, Russia, March 24.—The Official Caucasus Gazette reports a strike among the men employed at the Rothschild petroleum works at Batoum, on the Black sea. According to this newspaper 300 strikers last Friday went to the police station and demanded the release of the ringleaders, who had been arrested the previous day. This demand was refused. The strikers reassembled the following day, attacked the jail and attempted to release the prisoners. They fired at the soldiers who were guarding the prison. The latter in return fired on the mob. Thirty of the rioters were killed and one soldier was wounded.

OUTLAWS SLAY WHEN OPPOSED.

Man Killed, Wife Shot, and Daughter Beaten Insensible With an Ax.

Oklahoma City, Okla., March 24.—Frank Hartman was killed, his wife seriously wounded, and his daughter was beaten with an axe and left for dead by two outlaws who attempted robbery at the Hartman home, five miles east of Noble last night. The men rode up to the house and demanded money. Hartman showed fight and was shot to death. The wife and daughter came to his aid and the elder woman was shot in the head and the daughter was beaten. Neither woman regained consciousness to give the alarm for several hours, when all trace of their assailants had been lost.

Crew's Fate Unknown.

Charleston, S. C., March 24.—An unknown steamer reported afire by the crew of the Oregon inlet life saving station in North Carolina has been identified as the oil steamer Maj. Barrett. It is thought some passing vessel rescued the crew, though no definite information to this effect has been received here.

NEGRESS SHOT AT A DANCE.

Jealous Colored Man Seriously Wounds a Woman.

Lead, S. D., March 24.—Edward Stewart shot Daisy Smith twice with a revolver in a Lead dance hall. Both shots took effect, one in the left hand and the other in the arm and breast. The latter is regarded as dangerous by the physicians. Stewart is in the county jail at Deadwood. They are both colored and the shooting is the result of a jealous quarrel.

TELEPHONE BETWEEN TRAINS.

Michigan Man Demonstrates Feasibility of His Invention.

Grand Rapids, Mich., March 24.—Benson Bidwell has successfully demonstrated here the feasibility of telephoning from a moving electric car without regard to the speed attained or the noise incident to the moving car. In the presence of several prominent men Mr. Bidwell, the inventor, and his brother, Charles F. Bidwell, made the demonstration with marked success. They used three cars, which were put at their service by the Grand Rapids Railway company, and the passengers on the cars had no difficulty in talking from one car to the other no matter how fast the cars were going. Mr. Bidwell in an interview said: "Our plans are to equip steam railways with this system of 'phones,' whereby any train on the line will be at all times in talking connection with the train dispatcher and with every other train on the road. The utility of the system can be better understood when I explain that these same telephone wires can be used for all telegraph purposes required of two telegraph wires by the railway company, even to having the telegraph instruments in the cars, and the same operator who has charge of the telephone can do the telegraphing."

KILLED BY AN EXPLOSION.

Fire in a Farmhouse Sets Off Some Dynamite.

Houghton, Mich., March 24.—A terrible explosion of dynamite occurred near Oskar, eight miles north of here, yesterday, resulting in the death of two men and serious injury to another. The scene of the explosion was in the house of John Boullard. The building caught fire while the family was at church, and when the heat became intense two boxes of dynamite which were stored away for blowing up stumps, exploded. Jenkala and Kellanen were killed by being struck by flying timbers. They were neighbors of Boullard and met death while fighting the flames.

ARRESTED AT CHURCH DOOR.

Man Charged With Forgery and Fraudulent Use of the Mails.

Pittsburg, March 24.—As he was walking out of a church yesterday at Wilkinsburg, Lewis Strayer, an insurance agent employed by the Prudential Life Insurance company of this city, was arrested by a city detective and Postoffice Agent O'Brien on a charge of forgery and using the mails for fraudulent purposes. He confessed to having forged at least one check and the detectives think he is one of the leaders of a gang who have literally flooded this city and New York with bogus checks of amounts ranging from $15,000 to $75,000. Heretofore Mr. Strayer has been a respected citizen of Wilkinsburg.

KENTUCKY MAN DIES GAME.

With a Bullet in His Heart He Takes a Last Shot at His Slayer.

Henderson, Ky., March 24.—A fatal shooting occurred at Corydon, this county, yesterday, in which Green W. Pritchett was killed and John Below, a farmer, fatally wounded. Bad blood existed between the two men over business, and when they met on the streets yesterday Pritchett shot Below and Below shot Pritchett. With a bullet through his heart Pritchett fired a third shot at Below, but missed. He then fell and expired. Pritchett was one of the wealthiest men of the section. He was an extensive land owner and tobacconist. The coroner's verdict exonerated Below.

STRIKE MAY BE AVOIDED.

Pennsylvania Coal Miners Are Having Cautiously.

Shamokin, Pa., March 24.—From an official source it was learned yesterday that an effort will be made to-day to adjourn the joint convention of Districts No. 1, 7 and 9, United Mineworkers of America, without committing the delegates to a strike declaration. At a meeting which began at 11 o'clock Saturday night and continued until yesterday morning the special committee appointed Saturday formulated a resolution which the leaders hope will satisfy both radical and conservative delegates.

WRECKED BY LANDSLIDE.

Two Men Are Killed and Six Coaches Completely Destroyed.

Charlottesville, Va., March 24.—A passenger train on the Southern railroad was wrecked by a landslide at Covesville, fifteen miles south of here yesterday morning. The train was forty minutes late and running at no unusual rate of speed. The engine was ditched and six coaches completely destroyed by fire. The loss of mail was the greatest in the history of Southern railroading. Nickolas Down, a Pullman car porter, and also an unknown tramp were killed.

ST. HILAIRE SPECTATOR.

VOLUME XXI. ST. HILAIRE, MINNESOTA, WEDNESDAY, MARCH 26, 1902. NUMBER 36.

WHAT IT MEANS

REMARKABLE POSSIBILITIES OPENED BY THE RAILWAY MERGER.

NORTHWEST WILL PROFIT BY IT

ENORMOUS TRADE WITH THE ORIENT WHICH LIES WITHIN OUR GRASP.

NOT TO DESTROY COMPETITION

POTENTIAL BENEFICENCE OF THE ECONOMIC FORCES CALLED INTO PLAY.

Mr. J. J. Hill was recently reported by the New York Journal of Commerce as having said that the two mammoth ships he is building for the Asiatic trade could be operated in successful competition with foreign ships in spite of the higher wages paid to American seamen if our navigation laws permitted a better selection and control of crews. The reason for this confidence is plain. It is because he has applied to the construction of his vessels the same principles which have made the "Hill methods" of organizing transportation famous as one of the great money-saving inventions of the age—the simple principle that the bigger the trainload the less the cost of hauling it per ton per mile. He has made his ships bigger than any now afloat in the expectation that they will carry full cargoes and that it will cost but little more to operate them thus filled than smaller ships carrying a fraction of the tonnage.

These ships will carry cargoes at much lower freight rates than have heretofore prevailed, and are, therefore, the pioneers in the development of the Asiatic trade which will eventually require a larger fleet of similar ships. But to fill even these for regular trips will require the massing at the Pacific ports where they are to be loaded of a much larger volume of exports to Asia than has heretofore been offered. The traffic of the Great Northern alone would not suffice to sustain them. These ships are a constituent part of the arrangements whereby the Great Northern, the Northern Pacific and the Burlington systems are to be operated in harmony, and subsidiary to the same general end. The momentous significance of these arrangements can only be appreciated when it is understood that their purpose is to make these two great transcontinental railroads the chief highway of the commerce of this country and of the world with Asia. It is to carry out in the whole vast field of intercontinental traffic the same principle of concentration which Mr. Hill applies to his carloads and his ship's cargoes—to so increase the tonnage volume by concentration on this Northern route as to reduce its cost by land and sea, and thus—following the law that commerce always flows along the lines of least resistance—turn into this cheaper channel on the shorter lines of latitude the main stream of the commerce of the world. The full carload is thus the unit of power in a gigantic scheme of commercial concentration which will pour a new and more abounding flood of commercial and industrial energy into the six states which it has been recently sought to array against it.

The lawyers and politicians who have been fretting and fuming about the supposed effects of the so-called merger on local freight rates have been oblivious to the grandeur and potential beneficence of the economic forces called into play by this scheme, and which will insure a much greater reduction of local and transcontinental freight rates as a necessary consequence of an immensely increased volume of traffic than would otherwise be possible.

Our local statesmen are not to be blamed for the narrow local view they have taken of this question, or for their inability to take in the broad horizon of its world-wide relations. For but few who have not studied the question have any conception of the enormous trade with the Orient which lies within the grasp of American enterprise, but which for lack of an effective organization of our commercial power we have heretofore permitted other nations, and chiefly Great Britain, to appropriate. For the seven years ending with and inclusive of 1898 not an American steamship entered a Philippine port. Since the treaty of peace we have done better, but the major part of that traffic is still borne in English vessels. In the fifty-two years from 1848 to 1900, inclusive, the United States lost in their traffic with the Philippines over $275,000,000 in trade balances against us, or enough to have paid all the expenses of the Spanish war. And this does not take into account the Philippine goods carried to English or German ports and transshipped to this country.

In twenty years the United States has heretofore paid out over the counters of London, Berlin and Paris over a billion and a half of gold due Asiatic nations for trade balances. If this amount of money had been saved to the American people, it would have bought out the steel trust and the Northern Securities company at their capitalized figures. In the ten years ending June 30, 1900, we have lost $120,000,000 in Chinese trade alone, exclusive of the trade of Hongkong, which is a warehouse for all China, under British auspices. And our ships have not carried 1 per cent of the foreign trade of China or of the port of Hongkong. The latest accessible tables of the treasury department concerning our sea trade show that of our imports from Asia in 1899, $74,000,000 came by way of the Atlantic ports and only $32,600,000 from the Pacific ports. Of our exports, $29,600,000 went from Atlantic ports and only $18,300,000 by way of Pacific coast ports, which means that 65 per cent of our trans-Pacific trade does not come to us by the way of the Pacific at all, but rather by the way of European ports, being transshipped at Liverpool and Hamburg for New York or Philadelphia. The total trade of China in 1899 was $121,600,000. Only $17,000,000 of this was carried in American bottoms.

Yet one line of steamships like that projected by Mr. Hill would very soon double that total and would put into Manila, Shanghai, Hongkong and other Chinese and Japanese ports agents for American trade that would soon make themselves felt in the interest of our manufacturers. The current of commercial exchanges thus established between the United States and the Orient would grow and widen until it drew into its swelling tide the tributary streams of every state in the Union and of every country in the world. All along the course of this great highway of the world's commerce this broad and deep current will set in motion the wheels of commercial and industrial activity. But it is mainly in Minnesota, whose chief cities, standing at the head of the great interior lines of water transit, are the terminal headquarters and gateways of these great systems of transcontinental railway, that its influence will be felt in making them far greater marts of trade than if they depended on the narrower range of tributary country around them. It will tend to make them the emporia for the distribution of the products of the Orient through the Mississippi valley. It will lift these cities and this state to a commanding position among the interior states and cities of the continent.

When the lawyers and politicians get to thinking about this matter in its larger relations they will probably come to the conclusion that there is something besides a question of local politics in this matter of the so-called merger—that it does not mean, as they imagine, the extinction of competition, but such a marshaling of commercial forces and such an organized concentration of commercial power as will enable this great system of transportation, traversing the northern belt of the temperate zone, which nature has marked as the chief path of commerce throughout the world, to enter into successful competition with the rival systems which are endeavoring to attract this great tide of transmundane commerce to more southern latitudes, and that, whatever technical objections the lawyers may find or fancy they find in "the mint and cummin" of the statutes, it is in conformity with that great economic law, to which all statutes must ultimately yield the right of way, that through concentration lies the only road to the highest economic efficiency—to lower costs and lower prices.—St. Paul Pioneer Press.

WOUNDED IN THE BACK.

Leads to the Identification of a Train Robber.

Guthrie, Okla., March 22.—Federal officers have identified J. L. Edwards, arrested in El Reno on a charge of practicing fraud before the government land office. Edwards is an alleged Iowa outlaw who was once shot in the back during an attempt to hold up a train. By the wound Edwards was identified when the jailer took him to the bath. He is alleged to have collected [illegible] in forging relinquishments to homesteads in the new country. The Iowa authorities have been informed.

SLAVONIC COMBINE.

Russian Generals Taking the Lead in a Widespread Movement.

St. Petersburg, March 22.—Official pan-slavists, represented by Generals Kouranoff and Ignatieff, the most warlike section of Russian conservatism, have formed with Bulgaria and other nationalities an inter-Slavonic committee dedicated to the organization into a single body of the local patriotic associations throughout the whole Slavonic world. Congresses will be held in the capitals of the Slavonic states and pan-slavism fostered in every possible way.

SENATORS FOR LIFE.

Proposition for Utilizing the Services of Ex-Presidents.

New York, March 22.—In a letter addressed to John Bigelow, published in the Tribune, Charles Francis Adams of Boston, indorses at length the recently discussed proposition for a constitutional amendment to utilize the services of ex-presidents of the United States by making them senators-at-large for life.

MAHER KNOCKED OUT.

Gus Ruhlin Disposes of Him in Two Rounds.

Philadelphia, March 22.—Gus Ruhlin and Peter Maher met at the Industrial Athletic club last night for a six-round go, and in the latter part of the second round Maher went down and out from a hard left on the jaw. Ruhlin had the better of the go as far as it went. He repeatedly rushed Maher to the ropes.

DIAMOND BROOCH.

The Kaiser's Token of Appreciation Given to an American Singer.

Berlin, March 22.—Geraldine Farrar, the young American prima donna who recently sang before the kaiser, has been presented by his majesty with a magnificent brooch, consisting of a letter "W" set in diamonds, surmounted with a wreath of sapphires and a crown of diamonds and rubies.

BIG FIRE IN WINNIPEG.

Freight Sheds of the Canadian Pacific Are Burning.

Winnipeg, Man., March 22.—The large Canadian Pacific freight sheds in this city are on fire, and indications point to their total destruction. The blaze originated in the offices in the east end of the building. The loss will be enormous as the sheds are stored with large consignments of goods for Western merchants and settlers' effects.

ENFORCED RETIREMENT OF THE GENERAL AMONG THE PROBABILITIES.

PRESIDENT DISCUSSES THE CASE

DECLARES THAT HE IS TIRED OF THE FRICTION IN THE ARMY.

CABINET TAKES MATTER UP

SHOULD RESPECT SUPERIORS AS HE WOULD BE RESPECTED.

Washington, March 22. — The statements made by Gen. Miles before the senate committee on military affairs were discussed by the president yesterday with a number of his callers. There is little doubt that these statements ultimately will lead to Gen. Miles' retirement by the president.

In discussing the matter with his callers, among whom were senators and representatives, the president took the position that the lieutenant general of the army should entertain toward his superiors the same respect that he would expect and demand from his subordinates.

It is significant that long after the cabinet meeting adjourned Secretary Root and the attorney general were closeted with the president. The president is known to have stated that he was tired of the

Friction in the Army,

and whether or not it is decided that Gen. Miles' statement was a privileged one, he will at no distant day take action looking to his retirement. The printed testimony of Gen. Miles has not yet been made public and it is understood that a great deal of what the general said will not appear in the record. Members of the committee say the report published was correct in substance in every particular. At the same time these senators do not agree that Gen. Miles can be punished for his utterances before the committee, whether they appear in the record or not. Of course, the committee could take no action to prevent the retirement of Gen. Miles. That, under the law, is purely an executive act and needs no confirmation or approval of the senate.

MANSIONS ARE WRECKED.

Brownstone Fronts Undermined by a Tunnel.

New York, March 22.—Park avenue, this city, yesterday was again the scene of an accident which, while it entailed no loss of life, caused a property loss of considerable proportions.

The brownstone fronts of several four-story private houses on the east side of the avenue sank because of the undermining of the foundations by excavations for the rapid transit tunnel. The first serious cave-in occurred when the sidewalk and area way of No. 55 Park avenue sank to a considerable depth, leaving the front wall with no support and exposing the cellar. The houses on either side of No. 55 were also rendered unsafe. Later in the afternoon there occurred a further settling of the walls and sidewalks and the residents on the east side of the block were ordered by the police to leave their homes.

The tunnel along Park avenue, where the trouble occurred, is bored through solid rock. Seams of rock for a distance of about sixty feet commenced to slide in a lateral direction into the tunnel Wednesday night. It was believed, however, that no great damage would be done, until to-day, when the first cave-in occurred.

FIRST STUDENT FRACAS.

Melee at South Dakota University Results in Disfigurements.

Vermillion, S. D., March 22.—The desperate battle between the freshmen and seniors of the state university here yesterday was the first of the kind in the history of the institution. The freshmen were victorious, but their blood mingled with that of the vanquished seniors in decorating the campus and the sidewalks leading to the drugstores and rooms of the combatants. Noses suffered greatly, but the clothing of half a hundred of the five-score mixed in the melee looked as if the wearers were specially dressed for a hard-times party.

COAL MINERS DO NOT ALL AGREE.

Expectations of Adjustment Are Not Fulfilled.

Shamokin, Pa., March 22.—Contrary to expectations the convention of Districts Nos. 1 and 2, United Mineworkers of America, yesterday failed to reach a determination concerning the grievance of the anthracite coal miners. Many of the delegates had expected an adjournment and definite action not later than yesterday, but the discussion of the scale committee report was more protracted than anticipated, and its adoption entire had not been accomplished at the hour of adjournment yesterday afternoon.

BIG DEAL IN STAMPS.

One Purchase of $25,000 Worth at the Chicago Postoffice.

Chicago, March 22.—A record-breaking sale of postage stamps is reported by the Chicago postoffice. The sale was 1,000,000 stamps, on which the purchaser gave a check for $25,000. In one package were 500,000 4-cent stamps, and in the other the same number of 1-cent stamps. This is the largest individual purchase of stamps in the history of the Chicago postoffice.

EMBEZZLEMENT IS CHARGED.

Menominee, Mich., March 22.—Former Treasurer Louis Beauchamp of Spalding township was brought from his home in Wilson by Sheriff Stiles and placed in the jail here, charged with the embezzlement of $9,314.22. Beauchamp was elected in April, 1899, and served two consecutive terms. He was arraigned and placed under a $2,500 bond to appear on April 4.

Remember how the Saviour said
That He would rise again."

O joyful sound! O glorious hour,
When by His own almighty power
He rose, and left the grave!
Now let our songs His triumph tell,
Who burst the bands of death and hell,
And ever lives to save.

The First-begotten of the dead,
For us He rose, our glorious Head,
Immortal life to bring;
What though the saints like Him shall die,
They share their Leader's victory,
And triumph with their King.

No more they tremble at the grave,
For Jesus will their spirits save,
And raise their slumbering dust:
O risen Lord, in Thee we live,
To Thee our ransomed souls we give,
To Thee our bodies trust.

Songs of Poets In Joyous Mood

Immortal Minds Have Recognized the Significance of the Day.

The solemn festival in honor of the resurrection has given inspiration to many poets to whom the joyfulness of the occasion, the coming of the light after darkness, of flowers springing from dead earth, of the raising up of buried hope into gladness, and of the perfection of virtue issuing out of sin—has appealed powerfully, by one form of imagery if not by another.

That greatest of latter-day poets, Robert Browning, in "Easter Day" writes of the amazement that will come to doubters:

From repose
We shall start up, at last awake,
From life, that insane dream we take,
For waking now, because it seems.

Where is the Christian to whose sympathy those lines will not appeal in conjunction with others following them:

With darkness, hunger, toil, distress,
Be all the world a wilderness!
Only let me go on, go on,
Still hoping ever and anon
To reach one end, the Better Land.

Christina Rossetti, who has justly been called the poetess of death, never seemed to hymn her joys without enhancing their value by a recollection of past sorrow, yet her poem, "Resurrection Eve," is begun by the sentiment—

He resteth, weep not.

And she would have us note how the

Gray hours of morning, ere the day's dawning,

are

Brightened by gleams
Of the sunbeams—
By the foreseeing
Of resurrection,
Of glorious being,
Of full perfection,
Of sins forgiven
Before the face
Of men and spirits,
Of God in heaven,
The resting place
That he inherits.

James Russell Lowell concludes with the following verse, a poem which he entitled "Godminster Chimes," and wrote in aid of a chime of bells for Christ Church, Cambridge:

Oh, chime of sweet Saint Charity,
Peal soon that Easter morn
When Christ for all shall risen be,
And in all hearts new-born!
That Pentecost when utterance clear
To all men shall be given
When all shall say "My Brother" here,
And hear "My Son" in heaven!

Sir Lewis Morris adds a modern voice to the strain of Easter melody by the musical lines:

That is the joy of life,
Joy bought by sacrifice,
Pleasure for hopeless sighs,
And rest for strife.
The earth is no more, as it was at first,
By some strange spell accurst;
A mystery has passed a mystery,
A boundless hope has bid new heaven and earth to be—
Rise, happy earth, arise,
Thy wintry darkness done
To greet the new-risen sun,
Oh, soul, arise!
The joy which stirs the world let it wake
thee;
A symbol of thy risen life is born.
Awake, arise! this is the very morn;
A mystery has been a mystery!

If Wadsworth, that poet so dearly beloved by countless hearts, has failed to record in any special poem his feelings about the festival of Easter, there are lines in the "Excursion" concluding the fifth book of that work which can scarcely be excelled as thoughts with which to encourage meditation upon the mystery of the Resurrection:

Life, I repeat, is energy of love
Divine or human; exercised in pain,
In strife and tribulation, and ordained,
Is so approved and sanctified to pass
Through shades and silent rest to endless
joy.

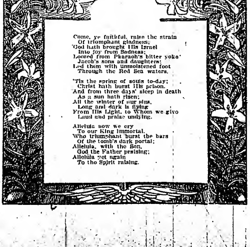
FOR EASTER GIFTS.

Chocolate eggs are as much in demand this Easter as ever. Those are made in all conceivable shapes, perfectly plain or much ornamented with white frosting. They are most attractive as well as being good to eat, so that when one gets tired of looking at them they have the delightful prospect of tasting them. Some of these are made with comic faces with white caps above. Others have little rabbits, chickens, or ducks perched on top of them.

Rabbits occur in every conceivable shape and attitude, from the most elaborate and well-executed animal to the most primitive conception of the beast. You can get a rabbit whose head comes off, and which is intended to be filled with candy of any size and for any price you want. Or you can have him made of pure chocolate or clear candy. It is simply a question of taste. You can even buy him made of silver if you so desire.

SOME WORKS OF ART.

A most charming idea for a person who desires to give an Easter gift is to buy a papier mache, or preferably, a satin box in the shape of an egg. In this a present of some kind may be placed—a piece of jewelry or trinklet of some kind, a pair of gloves, a pretty handkerchief, a lace collar, a bottle of perfume, or anything else that may occur to the giver. Most dainty little egg-shaped boxes are made of silver. The latter, filled with bon bons, are sure to please anybody.



Come, ye faithful, raise the strain
Of triumphant gladness,
God hath brought His Israel
Into joy from Sadness;
Loosed from Pharaoh's bitter yoke
Jacob's sons and daughters;
Led them with unmoistened foot
Through the Red Sea waters.

'Tis the spring of souls to-day;
Christ hath burst His prison,
And from three days' sleep in death
As a sun hath risen;
All the winter of our sins,
Long and dark is flying
From His Light, to Whom we give
Laud and praise undying.

Alleluia now we cry
To our King Immortal,
Who triumphant burst the bars
Of the tomb's dark portal;
Alleluia, with the Son,
God the Father praising;
Alleluia yet again
To the Spirit raising.

TWO DOCTORS FLY

DEATH OF A YOUNG LADY AT A SANITARIUM CAUSES SENSATION.

PERFORM CRIMINAL OPERATION

PERITONITIS SETS IN AND DEATH FOLLOWS IN A SHORT TIME.

POLICE CAPTURE THE NURSE

BUT THE DOCTORS HAVE IMPORTANT CASES ELSEWHERE.

New York, March 24.—Marie C. Norris of Lake Waramaug, New Preston, Conn., died on Saturday afternoon in Dr. Francis Gray Blinn's "sanitarium" at 165 West Forty-seventh street under such suspicious circumstances that the police of the West Forty-seventh street station were called in by the woman's parents. Dr. Blinn and a nurse in his employ fled from the house. The nurse was arrested at 3 o'clock yesterday morning, but the police are still looking for her employer.

Benjamin and Harriet C. Norris, the young woman's parents, own a small summer hotel at Lake Waramaug. She was an only daughter, was thirty-five years old and unmarried. On Thursday night she told her parents that she had decided to in Danbury, and left home early on Friday morning. She came here, reaching Dr. Blinn's sanitarium about noon.

Mr. Norris first knew that his daughter was not in Danbury on Saturday noon, when he received a telegram signed "Marie" stating that she was ill with appendicitis at 165 West Forty-seventh street. Norris and his wife took the next train to this city. They had telegraphed to W. H. Bonynge, a lawyer at 149 Broadway, who had spent the summer at their hotel, and he met them at the Grand Central station. They reached there at 9 o'clock on Saturday night. Their daughter had died in the afternoon.

Found Her Dead.

The Norrises, with Lawyer Bonynge, went at once to Dr. Blinn's. There they met the physician, the nurse, Bertha Craig, and Dr. W. H. Oyler. The nurse told them that Miss Norris was dead. Dr. Blinn called Mrs. Norris into his private office and started to explain the case.

"I don't want to hear it alone," said Mrs. Norris. "My husband and lawyer are with me. Call them and let them hear, too."

Dr. Blinn told them all that he was very sorry, but he had an important case which would call him out for an hour. He would be back at 11 o'clock, he said, and he and hat and went out. Late last night he had not returned. A few minutes later Dr. Oyler announced that he would go, too, and he went home. Then Nurse Craig volunteered to look for both physicians and she left the house. Lawyer Bonynge said that it was all very strange and that he would notify the police. He went over to the West Forty-seventh street station, where he got Capt. Donohue and Detectives Fitzgerald and Dale.

Grabbed Up His Coat

Capt. Donohue and the woman's body removed to the police station and later sent it to the morgue where an autopsy was made by Coroner O'Hanlon. The woman, he said, died of peritonitis following a criminal operation.

RUSSIAN SOLDIERS SHOOT TO KILL.

Attempt to Release Strike Leaders Results Disastrously.

Tiflis, Russia, March 24.—The Official Caucasus Gazette reports a strike among the men employed at the Rothschild petroleum works at Batoum, on the Black sea. According to this newspaper 300 strikers last Friday went to the police station and demanded the release of the ringleaders, who had been arrested the previous day. This demand was refused. The strikers reassembled the following day, attacked the jail and attempted to release the prisoners. They fired at the soldiers who were guarding the prison. The latter in return fired on the mob. Thirty of the rioters were killed and one soldier was wounded.

OUTLAWS SLAY WHEN OPPOSED.

Man Killed, Wife Shot, and Daughter Beaten Insensible With an Ax.

Oklahoma City, Okla., March 24.—Frank Hartman was killed, his wife seriously wounded, and his daughter was beaten with an axe and left for dead by two outlaws who attempted robbery at the Hartman home, five miles east of Noble last night. The men rode up to the house and demanded money. Hartman showed fight and was shot to death. The wife and daughter came to his aid and the elder woman was shot in the head and the daughter was beaten. Neither woman regained consciousness to give the alarm for several hours, when all trace of their assailants had been lost.

Crew's Fate Unknown.

Charleston, S. C., March 24.—An unknown steamer reported afire by the crew of the Oregon Inlet life saving station in North Carolina has been identified as the old steamer Maj. Barrett. It is thought some passing vessel rescued the crew, though no definite information to this effect has been received here.

NEGRESS SHOT AT A DANCE.

Jealous Colored Man Seriously Wounds a Woman.

Lead, S. D., March 24. — Edward Stewart shot Daisy Smith twice with a revolver in a Lead dance hall. Both shots took effect, one in the left hand and the other in the arm and breast. The latter is regarded as dangerous by the physicians. Stewart is in the county jail at Deadwood. They are both colored and the shooting is the result of a jealous quarrel.

TELEPHONE BETWEEN TRAINS.

Michigan Man Demonstrates Feasibility of His Invention.

Grand Rapids, Mich., March 24.—Benson Bidwell has successfully demonstrated here the feasibility of telephoning from a moving electric car without regard to the speed attained or the noise incident to the moving car. In the presence of several prominent men Mr. Bidwell, the inventor, and his brother, Charles F. Bidwell, made the demonstration with marked success. They used three cars, which were put at their service by the Grand Rapids Railway company, and the passengers on the cars had no difficulty in talking from one car to the other no matter how fast the cars were going. Mr. Bidwell in an interview said: "Our plans are to equip steam railways with this system of 'phones,' whereby any train on the line will be at all times in talking connection with the train dispatcher and with every other train on the road. The utility of the system can be better understood when I explain that the same telephone wires can be used for all telegraph purposes required of two telegraph wires by the railway company, even to having the telegraph instruments in the cars, and the same operator who has charge of the telephone can do the telegraphing."

KILLED BY AN EXPLOSION.

Fire in a Farmhouse Sets Off Some Dynamite.

Houghton, Mich., March 24.—A terrible explosion of dynamite occurred near Oskar, eight miles north of here, yesterday, resulting in the death of two men and serious injury to another. The scene of the explosion was in the house of John Boullard. The building caught fire while the family was at church, and when the heat became intense two boxes of dynamite which were stored away for blowing up stumps exploded. Jenkala and Kellanen were killed by being struck by flying timbers. They were neighbors of Boullard and met death while fighting the flames.

ARRESTED AT CHURCH DOOR.

Man Charged With Forgery and Fraudulent Use of the Mails.

Pittsburg, March 24. — As he was walking out of a church yesterday at Wilkinsburg, Lewis Strayer, an insurance agent employed by the Prudential Life Insurance company of this city, was arrested by a city detective and Postoffice Agent O'Brien on a charge of forgery and using the mails for fraudulent purposes. He confessed to having forged at least one check and the detectives think he is one of the leaders of a gang who have literally flooded this city and New York with bogus checks of amounts ranging from $15,000 to $75,000. Heretofore Mr. Strayer has been a respected citizen of Wilkinsburg.

KENTUCKY MAN DIES GAME.

With a Bullet in His Heart He Takes a Last Shot at His Slayer.

Henderson, Ky., March 24. — A fatal shooting occurred at Corydon, this county, yesterday, in which Green W. Pritchett was killed and John Below, a farmer, fatally wounded. Bad blood existed between the two men over business, and when they met on the streets yesterday Pritchett shot Below and Below shot Pritchett. With a bullet through his heart Pritchett fired a third shot at Below, but missed. He then fell and expired. Pritchett was one of the wealthiest men of the section. He was an extensive land owner and tobacconist. The coroner's verdict exonerated Below.

STRIKE MAY BE AVOIDED.

Pennsylvania Coal Miners Are Moving Cautiously.

Shamokin, Pa., March 24.—From an official source it was learned yesterday that an effort will be made to-day to adjourn the joint convention of Districts No. 1, 7 and 9, United Mineworkers of America, without committing the delegates to a strike declaration. At a meeting which began at 11 o'clock Saturday night and continued until yesterday morning the special committee appointed Saturday formulated a resolution which the leaders hope will satisfy both radical and conservative delegates.

WRECKED BY LANDSLIDE.

Two Men Are Killed and Six Coaches Completely Destroyed.

Charlottesville, Va., March 24.—A passenger train on the Southern railroad was wrecked by a landslide at Covesville, fifteen miles south of here yesterday morning. The train was forty minutes late and running at an unusual rate of speed. The engine was ditched and six coaches completely destroyed by fire. The loss of mail was the greatest in the history of Southern railroading. Nicholas Down, a Pullman car porter, and also an unknown tramp were killed.

FLORENCE BURNS FREED.

Discharged by Jury for Lack of Evidence.

New York, March 24. — Florence Burns, who for five weeks has been under arrest, accused of the murder of Walter T. Brooks in the Glen Island hotel on the night of Feb. 11, was discharged from custody by Justice Mayer. The justice decided the prosecution had not made out a case against the girl.

BOTH KNEW IT WAS LOADED.

Schoolboy Instantly Killed by Charge From Pistol.

Fosston, Minn., March 24. — Philip Gaubats, a pupil of the public schools, was shot and instantly killed by his cousin. The shooting was pure accident. Both boys were playing with a loaded gun and in an effort to remove a shell the weapon was discharged.

Big Sale of Lands.

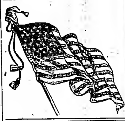
WEDNESDAY, MAR. 26, 1902.



The Minneapolis Journal says: It has just begun to occur to the friends of Alexander McKinnon, who are booming him for congress in the ninth district, that Mr. McKinnon is now a resident of Minneapolis. While this does not bar him from representing the district, it would be apt to prove a serious handicap with the voters. Mention of Mr. McKinnon appears to have been made without his aid or consent.

OLD FAMILIES OF VENICE.

Their Fortunes Are Dissipated and Their Palaces Sold.

Very few of the fine old palaces of Venice belong to the descendants of the families who built and originally occupied them. Very little of the enormous wealth for which Venice was celebrated in the fifteenth century remains. The most of it has been dissipated by the descendants of the men who made it, the same as in England, France and other countries. The rich men of Venice today are an entirely new class of people, whose names do not appear in the Golden Book, which contained a list of the patrician families in Venice who were invited to festivities at the palace. This book was instituted in 1315 and thenceforth until the Austrian occupation was the index and standard of nobility by which all claims to precedence were decided.

Occasionally the grand council, by a vote, rewarded the gallantry or public services of some citizen of humble birth by directing that his name be inscribed upon its pages. None but those whose names were in the Golden Book could use the golden stairs when they entered a doge's palace, and when this right was conferred it was equivalent to an order of nobility in another country. There is one notable exception to the decay of the ancient families, and he is Count Grimani, who traces his lineage back to one of the most famous of the doges, whose portrait, painted by Titian, hangs in the council chamber of the doge's palace. The Grimani palace is on the Grand canal, near the Rialto bridge, and is celebrated for its finely sculptured capitals.

Many of the rich men in Venice today are Jews. They practically control the banking business and manufacturing. They own the fine houses of historical interest and the best paying estates on the mainland in the neighborhood. The present wealth of Venice is invested not so much in real estate as in banking, manufacturing, flour mills, elevators, gas companies, cotton mills, the manufacture of glass and in steamships upon the Adriatic.—Chicago Herald.

Quaint Plea For a Pension.

All sorts of special pleas have been made in applications for pensions. One of the most ludicrous was made in Portland. When the applicant was asked is he ever served in the army or navy, he said, "No." Asked as to what grounds he based his application on, he said that he was in eastern Oregon when the Indians went on the warpath; that in making for a point of safety he and some other men were attacked by the Indians, one of the other men being killed and another wounded. He escaped on account of the fleetness of his horse, but the encounter caused him such excitement that he had had occasional fits ever since, and on account of the fits he thought he was entitled to a pension.—Portland Oregonian.

Webster and Disraeli.

Disraeli once met Daniel Webster at a time when American statesmen were rarer visitors in England than they now are. "He seemed to me," "Dizzy" reported, "a complete Brother Jonathan—a remarkable twang and all that. He also goes to the lev-ee," added Disraeli, strongly accenting the last syllable. "Dizzy" nevertheless noted the American orator's "fine brow and beetled, deep set eyes," but it was Sydney Smith who declared of him that no man could be so wise as Daniel Webster looked.

Passing of a Star.

"Madam," said the facetious boarder, "this turkey reminds me of a steadily waning dramatic star."

"Well," said the landlady, "I suppose you want somebody to ask you why."

FOOD IN FRUIT SKINS.

Nutritive Qualities In Them Believed to Be a Brain Food.

There are more nutritive qualities hidden in the skins of fruits, cereals and vegetables than the average person is aware of. In fact, the great bulk of the brain building foods are in the skins of the fruits and vegetables we eat.

If, as Sovarin says, "the destiny of nations depends on their food," then the destiny, whether a healthy long life or insanity or suicide of every unit of the United States depends on how he or she is fed.

If the breed so much depends upon food, why should not every person capable of normal thought seek to procure such food as best sustains his or her normality? Brain starvation, through the lack of suitable brain and nerve nourishment in our daily food, is the sole cause of the craving for stimulants to supply, as they do, artificially and improperly what nature has provided in a natural form in the skin of the grape, which contains the best part of the wine; in the skins of all fruits and vegetables, and if not in the skins of the cereals, how comes it that stimulating properties are extracted from them, as the inner kernel, the starch, is devoid of anything other than a heat giver?

It has been proved by chemical analysis and demonstrated by microscopic experiments that the most valuable brain sustaining properties are resident in all skins of cereals, fruits and vegetables, and as an instance of the great difference to the health resultant from partaking or rejecting the skins here is an incident that occurred in India, as told by an Indian officer:

A regiment was stationed in a part of the country where grapes were the chief article of food. The officers, one after another, became so sick as to be invalided as unfit for service, but it being considered remarkable that the troops were all well a commission of inquiry was instituted, when it was found that while every trooper in eating grapes swallowed the skins the officers followed the fashionable habit of rejecting them. It was then ordered that the officers should swallow the skins, which was done, with the result that they immediately recovered.

Thus it will be seen that the skin of the grape, besides being a brain feeder, possesses other healthful and nutritive qualities necessary to the sustenance of the human body. The reason why asparagus, cabbage, string beans, lettuce, spinach and other green vegetables are so wholesome is that the skins are not rejected.—Our Friend.

A Tough Negro.

Stories of brute toughness and Homeric endurance are tenderly preserved in the folklore of the water front—how, for instance, Scipio Flanagan, "the biggest nigger in the business," supported the entire weight of an immense packing case, weighing upward of 1,800, on his prostrate body. The negro held the hand truck to receive the case, which in the hands of half a dozen men was being balanced at just the right angle to slip into place. But it hit the edge of the truck and knocked it away, and the negro unluckily lost his footing and fell flat with the great box on top of him. He shrieked in terror and groaned, it was said, like a siren whistle, but when a gang of fifteen men lifted the thing bodily and pulled him out all he did was to screw his fists into his eyes like a big child, stretch his long limbs grotesquely and return to work. Of course he talked about this feat for many a day.—Frank Leslie's Monthly.

Old Delusions.

It is inexplicable how the old delusion that a man cannot eat one quail a day for thirty days holds its own. Any man can eat one quail a day for thirty days. At Lawrence some years ago Will Upton ate two quails a day for more than thirty days. For the first week or two he starved himself with the idea that he must keep up an appetite. After that he sometimes ate three or four of the birds in a day.

Another old fraud on the public is the belief that a horse cannot pull a sack of sand at the end of a two hundred foot rope. Any cow pony in Kansas will go off on a lope with such a sack.—Kansas City Journal.

The "Big Dipper."

In astronomy the "Big Dipper," so called, is in the constellation of Ursa Major, or the Great Bear. The stars forming the tail of the bear also form the handle of the dipper. The first star in the handle is Benetnasch, the second Mizar, the third Alioth. The other four, which go to form the bowl of the dipper, are Megrez, Phad, Merak and Dubhe. The two last named are called "The Pointers," because they point or guide the eye to the pole star, which is distant 29 degrees. The top bowl stars are 10 degrees and the bottom ones 8 degrees apart.

"It wa'n't warm, but it was peaceful," says the man who lived in the chicken barn because his wife's relatives lived in the house. Thus the satisfaction of the mind transcends in importance the mere comforts of the body.—New York World.

The English Pheasant.

The pheasant in England, if not exactly indigenous, is certainly effectually naturalized and, though originally from the Caucasus, may after a thousand or so years of acclimatization be looked upon as truly British. Tradition has it that the pheasant was brought into Europe by the Argonauts. It was probably introduced into England by the Romans. It certainly preceded the Normans. "Pesant hen and pesant cock" appeared in King Harold's bill of fare. Thomas a Becket is popularly supposed to have dined off a pheasant the day he was murdered.

In the time of Edward I. the price of a pheasant was fourpence, while woodcock (it makes one's mouth water) were but 3 farthings a pair. Two hundred years later pheasants had risen to twelvepence apiece and woodcocks to a penny, while snipes could still be had at threepence a dozen.

As long ago as the time of Henry VIII. the pheasant, as it still does, apparently led to a "tip," though on a somewhat lower scale than now. "Rewardes for bryngyng of p'sents" appears in L'Estrange's "Household Book:" "It'm to Mr. Asheley svnt for bryngyng of a fesaunt cocke and iiij. woodcocks ye XVIIJth daye of Octobre, in reward iiijd."—Fortnightly Review.

Japanese Porcelain Repairs.

In the manner of repairs those wonderful followers of principle and truth in art, the Japanese, have a lesson to teach us. When a Japanese connoisseur breaks some precious piece of pottery or porcelain, he does not throw it away with disdain, neither does he try to deceive the casual observer into the belief that it is unbroken. Instead, he has it joined together, generally with gold lacquer, in such a fashion that the fracture is boldly shown and commented on, as it were, by the frank exposition of the method by which it is made good. Curious enough, a distinctly new and charmingly decorative effect is in most cases added by these irregular gold lines, while the sense of craftsmanship is tickled by the marvelous skill exhibited by the repairer in thus welding together the two dissimilar materials. Truth is preserved at no loss of artistic beauty. Indeed, once more it is made clear that the two may always walk hand in hand.—Connoisseur.

Old Moon Beliefs.

The health, growth and development of children and animals were years ago supposed to be influenced by the moon. If the sign was right at the time of birth, they would be well formed and intellectual, but if it was wrong there was no telling what sort of creatures they would become. Every worthless fellow, every dog, rooting hog, fence jumping cow or kicking horse was believed to have been born under an unfavorable phase of the queen of night. Queer people or those who were of hateful disposition were children of the dark moon, with the sign below the heart.

First National Convention.

On May 20, 1835, what was probably the first national nominating convention in the history of the country met in Baltimore. It was attended by 600 men, a majority of whom were residents of Maryland. The convention was called by General Jackson. It was called a year ahead of the presidential campaign in order that time might be taken by the forelock in behalf of General Jackson's political protege, Martin Van Buren.—Gunton's Magazine.

Not to Be Learned.

A dignified bishop while passing along a London street heard three vegetable peddlers engaged in a rather blasphemous argument.

Intending to rebuke them, he said to one of the offenders, "My good man, where did you learn to swear like that?"

"Lord luv yer, guv'nor," replied the brawny peddler, clapping him genially on the shoulder, "ye can't learn it! It's a gift!"

Classical Cannibal.

"But why," asked the subchief of the cannibal isles, "do you insist upon having the man who fell while leading the charge against us served up at the banquet this evening? He seems to be hard as nails."

"Huh!" answered the chief of the cannibal isles. "I read in a book of poetry left by our last meal that 'the bravest are the tenderest.'"—Baltimore American.

Don't Sneer.

Never bring a human being, however silly, ignorant and weak—above all, any little child—to shame and confusion of face. Never, by petulance, by suspicion, by ridicule, even by selfish and silly haste—never, above all, by indulging in the brutal pleasure of a sneer, crush what is finest and rouse up what is coarsest in the heart of any fellow creature.

Three Hard Words.

There are three short and simple words, the hardest to pronounce in any language (and I suspect they were no easier before the confusion of tongues), but which no man or nation that cannot utter can claim to have arrived at manhood. These words are, "I was wrong."—Lowell.

The Fly In the Ointment.

Probably the worst thing about marrying a widow is the fact that somewhere in her cupboards and boxes she keeps her widow's veil to be in readiness in case she needs it a second time.—Atchison Globe.

Increased Insurance Rates.

All of the Fire Insurance companies have sent out circular letters to all their agents announcing an increase of 25 per cent on certain classes of property. This has been done because of the unprecedented fire waste of the past few years and applies to nineteen of the western states, including Minnesota. The increased rates are now in effect and are on the following classes of property:

On mercantile stocks in all buildings except such as are occupied as dwellings above grade floor.

Frame store buildings.

Manufacturing risks and other special hazards, including cold storage risks, and lumber yards and grain elevators.

This advance does not apply to risks equipped with approved standard sprinkler system, nor to any of the above named classes that have been rated under approved schedules within one year. When any risks belonging to the classes named shall have been rated by such approved schedules the new rates shall apply in lieu of the twenty-five per cent increase.

About thirty-five companies have been forced out of business by the great fire losses during the past three years, which would go to show that the increased rate was decidedly necessary.

Recommends New School House.

A. W. Rankin, State inspector of graded schools, was here on Friday and inspected the local school. He expressed himself as well pleased with the conditions and said he had no improvements whatever to suggest so far as the conducting of the school was concerned. He did, however, suggest that a new school house should be built of much larger capacity and on a different plan. He outlined a building of four large rooms, heated by hot air, and with a hall way along one side, and pointed out that a building on that plan could easily be added to at any time. He estimated that a building such as he described could be completed for about $1,500. If his figures are correct it would look as though we should be able to have the new building.

Go to McAndress' for a Fontella—the best 5-cent cigar.

A Bouquet for Rapp.

In its political columns the Minneapolis Journal hands Hon. C. G. Rapp the following neat and well merited compliment:

"The Red Lake Falls Courier suggests S. A. Swanson of that city for the demo-pop senatorial nomination in the sixty-first. With Dr. Watson of the same burg after the republican nomination, it will be busy times in Red Lake county. By the way, what is the matter with C. G. Rapp of St. Hilaire? He is a man of whom the district had no reason to be ashamed, either this winter or last."

If Charlie should decide to enter the contest, it is probable that under the new primary election law he will show some of the slate making politicians which way the bear passed.

—If you want to buy a house and lot, or rent a house call on Gigstad & Burkee.

Queer Job for Soldiers.

The funniest thing Kaiser Wilhelm ever did was to order two regiments of infantry from the garrison at Konigsburg to his game preserves at Roming ea, where 2,000 officers and soldiers were kept busy for three weeks fighting not the Russians, nor French, but merely a lot of little caterpillers which had swarmed over his majesty's trees and shrubbery. Fighting men and men in general should drink "Golden Grain Belt" beer to make them strong and healthy. It is pure, fresh and delicious and should be in every home. Order of your dealer or be supplied by Alex. Thompson, Crookston, Minn.

It pleases the user and all who are near him. The "J. B." cigar.

Good Hearted Busybodies.

There are thousands of good people in this world who, having very little trouble in managing their own affairs, spend their leisure hours in making plans for their neighbors and constitute themselves self appointed general managers of other men's lives.

Anything more positively aggravating than the disclosures of these schemes can hardly be conceived when they are made to reticent, thinking persons who are using every effort to control the circumstances which surround them to the best advantage. To have concentrated every energy to the amendment of adverse influences and then have some eager, energetic friend come upon you suddenly and ask you, much as if waking you from a lethargy, "Why don't you do thus and so?" is a severe test of your temper and your affection for the speaker.

But, after all, it was kindly meant, and these good hearted busybodies, whose "fad" is the regulating of their friends' families, meant to lend you a helping hand. We are taking away what stands to them in the place of a full purse and the use of an uplifting lever when we refuse to listen.—New York Post.

A Riddle Making Epoch.

There have been epochs at which riddle making has been more especially in vogue, and such epochs would appear to occur at seasons of fresh intellectual awakening. Such an epoch there was at the first glimmering of new intellectual light in the second half of the seventh century. This was the age of Aldhelm, bishop of Sherborne, the first in the roll of Anglo-Latin poets. He left a considerable number of enigmas in Latin hexameters, and they have been repeatedly printed.

Aldhelm died in 1709. Before his time there was a collection of Latin riddles that bore the name of Symphosius. Of this work the date is unknown. We only know that Aldhelm used it, and we may infer that it was then a recent product. The riddles of Symphosius were uniform in shape, consisting each of three hexameter lines.—Cornhill Magazine.

Dumas, Father and Son.

A story is told about the two Dumases, father and son, which illustrates the pleasant relations between the two. The son had written his first successful novel, and the father wrote him a letter of congratulation, which he began in the formal manner of "Dear Sir." This letter throughout read as though addressed to a total stranger and merely thanked the author for the pleasure the book had given him. Dumas fils answered in this manner:

Sir—I thank you most heartily for your kind letter. Praise from you is especially appreciated by me, as I have always heard of you as the most enthusiastic admirer of my father, who also makes some pretension of being a novelist.

The Highest Balloon Altitude.

Dr. Bersen and Dr. Suring of the Berlin Meteorological institute reached in a balloon ascent the highest altitude on record. They first went up to the height of 30,000 feet, losing consciousness for brief intervals. In spite of the risk they continued to ascend to 33,-700 feet, when one of them became completely unconscious and could not be aroused. The other aeronaut, after making a great effort in opening the valve to descend, also became insensible, and neither of them recovered till the balloon dropped to 10,000 feet, at the end of an hour's time.

Marriage In Arabia.

With the Arab a first cousin of the gentler sex holds an option on the young man, and if he desires to wed outside of the family he must first renounce her and secure his release. The next in line is his deceased brother's widow. As Arabia and Turkey are polygamous countries there is often a chance to provide for several who may have first claims on the bridegroom.—Woman's Home Companion.

Why He Never Tired.

He had taken pains when he applied for work to assure the farmer that he never got tired. When his new employer went to the field where he had put the man at work, he found him lolling on his back under a tree.

"What does this mean?" asked the farmer. "I thought you were a man who never got tired?"

"I don't," said the hired man calmly. "This doesn't tire me."

A Strong Hint.

A little girl went into a neighbor's house one day, and some apple parings lay on a plate on the table. After sitting awhile she said. "I smell apples."

"Yes," the woman replied, "I guess you smell these apple parings on the plate."

"No, no," said she, "'taint them I smell. I smell whole apples."

Distinctly Original.

Clara—But were the places described in Tom's book at all like the real places and did the men and women act and talk like real people?

Edith—Mercy, no! The book is distinctly original. That is the charm of it, you know.—Boston Transcript.

CHANGE OF LIFE.

Some Sensible Advice to Women by Mrs. E. Sailer.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—When I passed through what is known as change of life, I had two years' suffering,—sudden heat, and as quick chills would pass over me; my appetite was variable and I never could tell for a day at a time how I would feel the next day. Five bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound changed all that, my days became days of health, and I have enjoyed every day since—now six years.

MRS. E. SAILER,
President German Relief Association,

"We have used considerable of your Vegetable Compound in our charitable work, as we find that to restore a poor mother to health so she can support herself and those dependent upon her, if such there be, is truer charity than to give other aid. You have my hearty endorsement, for you have proven yourself a true friend to suffering women."—MRS. E. SAILER, 750½ Hill St., Los Angeles, Cal.—$5000 forfeit if above testimonial is not genuine.

No other person can give such helpful advice to women who are sick as can Mrs. Pinkham, for no other has had such great experience—her address is Lynn, Mass., and her advice free—if you are sick write her—you are foolish if you don't.

Nurses' Experience.

Medical men say that a good nurse in a difficult case is better than medicine, but when we can get a good nurse and good medicine, the patient stands a much better chance of recovery. The few words of advice given below by nurse Eliza King, are well worthy the attention of all readers:

"I have constantly used St. Jacobs Oil in the various situations I have occupied as nurse, and have invariably found it excellent in all cases requiring outward application, such as sprains, bruises, rheumatic affections, neuralgia, etc. In cases of pleurisy it is an excellent remedy—well rubbed in. I can strongly recommend it after several years' use and experience. It should be in every household."

Sister CAROLINA, St. Andrew's Hospital, writes: "I have found St. Jacobs Oil a most efficacious remedy in gout; also in sprains and bruises. Indeed, we cannot say too much in its praise, and our doctor is ordering it constantly."

PEACE IN SIGHT?

BOER OFFICIALS UNDER FLAG OF TRUCE CONFER WITH KITCHENER.

BRITISH HOPES ARE RAISED

CAN SEE NOTHING BUT ANOTHER ATTEMPT TO NEGOTIATE FOR PEACE.

BOER POSITION IS HOPELESS

CLOSELY PRESSED BY BRITISH COLUMNS AT RHENOSTER KOP.

Pretoria, March 24.—Acting President Schalkburger, F. W. Reitz, ex-secretary of state of the Transvaal, and Commandants Lucas, Meyer and Kregh, with their secretaries and attendants, arrived here March 22 at 2:04 p. m. on a special train from Balmoral, about fifty miles east of here. They came into Balmoral under a flag of truce.

Upon arrival Mr. Schalkburger and his party drove immediately to Lord Kitchener's headquarters, where he had an interview with the British general. The Boers afterward proceeded to the railway station and entrained at 5 o'clock for Kroonstad, where they will go out under a safe conduct. For a week past Mr. Schalkburger and his colleagues have been stationed at Rhenoster kop, north of Balmoral, where they have been closely pressed by the British columns. Dispatch riders entered Balmoral Friday night and notified the British of the approach of Mr. Schalkburger and his party.

It is reported that the Boer position at Rhenoster kop had become almost hopeless and that Mr. Schalkburger once narrowly escaped capture.

To Negotiate for Peace.

London, March 24.—The news that the wandering Boer "government" had entered the British lines is regarded as having but one meaning, namely, that another attempt is being made to negotiate peace. The fact that the censor passed the news of this movement is accepted as confirmation of this opinion. Nothing is actually known here of the intentions of Messrs. Schalkburger, Reitz, Meyer and Krogh. It is possible they have only sought permission to traverse the British lines in order to consult with Mr. Steyn and the Boer generals, Dewet and Delarey. But whatever their object, the news has been welcomed in London as pointing to the possibility of peace. Some correspondence which was captured a short time ago when Mr. Steyn narrowly escaped capture proved that he and Mr. Schalkburger were anxious to conclude peace. No extravagant hopes, however, are being built on the outcome of the movements of Mr. Schalkburger and his companions, chiefly because it is feared that Delarey, in the flush of his recent success, will refuse to be a party to any negotiations.

Overtures From British.

Brussels, March 24.—The Petit Bleu, referring to the arrival at Pretoria of Messrs. Schalkburger, Reitz, Meyer and Krogh, says it believes that Mr. Schalkburger's move is in response to fresh British overtures for peace, made out of gratitude for the release of Gen. Methuen, and predicts that these overtures will lead to no results unless Boer independence is guaranteed.

CZAR AND AMEER FLIRT.

Russia Sends Troops Into Neighborhood of Afghanistan on Receipt of Messages.

London, March 24.—A dispatch to the Daily Mail from St. Petersburg says there is good ground for believing that the ameer of Afghanistan has recently shown a leaning toward Russia, which may have important results in the future. The Russian government recently received very important telegrams from Turkestan, which the ameer's plenipotentiary sent to the governor general. The latter's precise mission is not known, but immediate instructions were issued to two Caucasian regiments to proceed to Central Asia.

ELECTION ANNULLED.

Gorki Must Appear to Answer for Political Offenses.

St. Petersburg, March 24—It has been officially announced here that the election of Maxime Gorki to be an honorary member of the academy of sciences has been annulled. Gorki has been summoned to appear before a tribunal to answer for political offenses. Gorki was banished from the Russian capital years ago and the newspaper with which he was connected was suppressed.

Presidents of Nicaragua and Costa Rica May Confer on Canal.

Managua, Nicar., March 24.—President Zelaya has accepted an invitation from the president of Costa Rica, Senor Iglesias, to visit Limon, Costa Rica, in order to confer on matters pertaining to the proposed Nicaragua canal. The acceptance of this invitation is contingent upon the passage by the United States senate of the Nicaragua canal bill. The date for the proposed visit has not yet been decided upon.

WORST ON RECORD.

Two Thousand Deaths Daily From the Plague in Lahore.

London, March 24.—A dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph company from Lahore says that the plague mortality has reached 2,000 daily. The outbreak, which is the worst on record, is attributed to the policy of non-interference in caste customs.

NO ASIATIC DANGER.

Russian Government Grants Alexeieff Leave of Absence.

London, March 24.—A dispatch to the Morning Post from Berlin says that Admiral Alexeieff, commander-in-chief of the land and sea forces in Russian East Asia, has been granted leave of absence for several months. This is construed as proof that the situation in the Far East is regarded at St. Petersburg as being free from any likelihood of complication.

Burn of a Mob.

Natchez, Miss., March 21.—John Woodward, the negro murderer of Leonard Calvitt, a white planter at Union Point, La., was lynched yesterday within Concordia parish prison. Entrance was gained to the jail by the mob claiming they had a prisoner from Catahoula parish.

Killed by Falling Tree.

Barron, Wis., March 21.—Charles Knowlton, a prominent farmer of Clinton, was killed by being struck on the head by a tree he had cut down in the woods.

WANTED TO GO UP TOWN.

Story Told by Lew Dockstader of an Absent-Minded Man—He Was Not Hurt.

"Speaking of absent-minded men," said Lew Dockstader, "one day last week I saw the worst case that has ever come under my notice. A middle-aged man ran up the down-town side of the Thirty-third street station on Sixth avenue and thrust a $1 bill through the window. There was a train in the station at the time, and the man rushed past the ticket-chopper, carefully dropping his 95 cents in the box. Waving his ticket in the air, he made a dash for the train. As he put his foot on the platform of the car the gate was shut in his face, knocking him sprawling upon his back as the train rolled away. The ticket-chopper and several others on the platform rushed to his assistance and helped him to his feet.

"'Never mind, sir,' said the chopper; 'here comes another train,' after being assured that the anxious passenger was not injured.

"'Oh, it don't make much difference, after all,' answered the middle-aged party; 'I wanted to go up town, anyhow.'

"Now, if that isn't the limit," said Mr. Dockstader, "I want to know what is."—New York Times.

A Very Strong Letter.

La Farge, Wis.—Wm. T. Payne of this place has written a rather startling letter to the papers. He says:

"I was in great pain across my back for four weeks, and was taking medicine from a doctor all the time but it did not do me any good.

"I bought a box of Dodd's Kidney Pills, and had not taken more than four or five doses when I noticed that they were doing me good.

"They helped me right along, and I kept on using them till I had used four boxes, when the pain left me altogether. One box of Dodd's Kidney Pills has done me more good than five dollars' worth of doctor's medicine.

"This remedy has certainly worked wonders in my case, and I feel it my duty to give it the credit due."

Big Industries Built up on Small Articles.

Few people realize the wants and requirements of the eighty millions of people in the United States. Who would think that it requires over a million dollars capital to carry on the package dye business in this country, and that there are twelve different factories in the United States that manufacture package dye? One of the largest package dye factories in the world is that of the Putnam Fadeless Dye Co., Unionville, Mo. In this factory alone over three million packages are put up every year. When you know that each package colors from 3 to 6 pounds of goods, or that the output of Putnam Fadeless Dyes alone will color from 9 to 18 million pounds and that it would require more than 800 cars to haul this amount of dyed goods, you will realize the magnitude of this seemingly small business.

DEATHS IN MANILA

CHOLERA CLAIMS THREE VICTIMS AND FRESH CASES ARE REPORTED.

AN EPIDEMIC IS NOT FEARED

RIGID SANITARY PRECAUTIONS THOUGHT TO HAVE AVERTED IT.

MOROS MAKE SOME TROUBLE

ATTACK A FORCE OF AMERICANS AND CAPTURE TRANSPORTATION.

Manila, March 24.—Five new cases of cholera and three deaths from the disease were reported here yesterday. Five persons who are suspected of having the disease are under observation at Malolos, Province of Bulacan.

The general situation regarding cholera is considered to be encouraging. The health authorities believe that their rigid precautions have averted an epidemic.

As Gen. Chaffee did not want the men of the Third infantry to run the risk of cholera as a result of contact with the city, that regiment has already been taken aboard the United States transport Grant, which will sail for San Francisco one week ahead of the scheduled time.

Brig. Gen. G. W. Davis, stationed at Zambonaga, Mindanao, reports that a detachment of the signal corps consisting of seventeen men had been attacked by 200 Moros near Paran Paran, Mindanao. One of the signal corps men was killed. The Moros captured the transportation of the detachment, including four pack mules.

The governor of La Union province reports that out of a population of 100,000 persons only 22 are confined in the municipal jails. Not a hostile shot has been fired in the province in twenty-two months. Foreigners travel everywhere and meet with no molestation.

BIG STRIKE IMMINENT.

Demand of Lowell Millworkers for More Pay Is Refused.

Lowell, Mass., March 24.—Lowell is threatened with one of the greatest strikes in its history as a result of the communication sent to the textile union by the mill agents in reply to the official demand of that body for an advance in wages for the textile operatives of the city. The communication was read at the meeting of the textile council yesterday afternoon and was a positive unconditional refusal of the demands. It was not a joint note, but each agent answered for himself. The language, however, was identical. The increase demanded was to have gone into effect to-day, but because of the delay in the reply the various unions represented in the central body have not had an opportunity to express their views on the new aspect of the situation, so it has been decided to postpone final action until a meeting Wednesday evening next. Meantime special meetings of the unions will be held and a vote will be taken on the question of a strike. An informal vote was taken yesterday and it was said that three-fourths of the number present favored a strike, the others reserving their decision until Wednesday night.

JAMES WILCOX FOUND GUILTY.

North Carolinian Sentenced to Expiate With Life Murder of Sweetheart.

Elizabeth City, N. C., March 24.—James Wilcox was found guilty of the murder of Nellie Cropsey. The jury, after being out thirty hours, brought in a verdict of guilty in the first degree. The prisoner heard the verdict without apparent emotion. When the verdict had been received Judge Jones said: "It is sadder for me than for you, Mr. Wilcox. The jury found the facts, I gave the law. You have had a fair trial. Part of the public were afraid to give it to you. The judgment of the court is that the prisoner be removed to jail and be hanged dead by the neck on April 25."

SEES DELAY AT ST. LOUIS.

Gov. Dockery of Missouri Predicts Postponement.

St. Louis, March 24.—Gov. A. M. Dockery of Missouri has joined the ranks of the doubting Thomases who prophesy that the Louisiana Purchase exposition will not be held in 1903. In a letter to a contemplating exhibitor recently the governor wrote as follows: "The Missouri board of fair commissioners has taken no action in reference to the creation of departments for the exposition or the appointment of superintendents of such departments. It seems now to me that the fair probably will not be held in 1903, therefore the delay."

FIVE CONVICTS CREMATED.

Make Desperate Attempt to Escape by Burning Their Way Out.

Kosciusko, Miss., March 24.—Five county convicts made an attempt Saturday night to burn their way out of prison, burning the stockade house in which they were confined down over their heads, and cremating themselves. They were all negroes and named as follows: Bob Burt, Phil Newell, Jim Culberson, Amos Rainford and Jim Jones. The prisoners were let out to Robert Campbell, county contractor, whose farm is situated sixteen miles west of this place, and all were charged with minor offenses.

Washington, Ind., March 24.—During a quarrel at the supper table last evening Liberty Kempf, a well known business man, brutally choked his wife. The woman managed to get a revolver and fired five shots at the husband, one bullet penetrating the brain. He died in a few moments. The wife told the story to the police and has not yet been arrested.

Minnesota Will Give $7,000 to McKinley Memorial.

The Minnesota contribution to the McKinley memorial fund is now nearly complete, and Secretary Frank B. Forbes states that the total amount raised in the state will approximate $7,000. The apportionment to the state was $10,000, but the amount raised is fully as much as was expected. Hennepin county has made the largest contribution, and St. Louis county coming next, with $1,534.65. The work of this latter county was done by a company of Duluth business men.

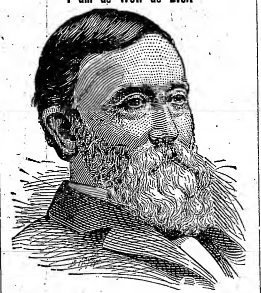
"Pe-ru-na is an Excellent Spring Catarrh Remedy ---I am as Well as Ever."



HON. DAN. A. GROSVENOR, OF THE FAMOUS OHIO FAMILY.

Hon. Dan. A. Grosvenor, Deputy Auditor for the War Department, in a letter written from Washington, D. C., says:

"Allow me to express my gratitude to you for the benefit derived from one bottle of Peruna. One week has brought wonderful changes and I am now as well as ever. Besides being one of the very best spring tonics it is an excellent catarrh remedy."—
DAN. A. GROSVENOR

"I consider Peruna really more meritorious than I did when I wrote you last. I receive numerous letters from acquaintances all over the country asking me if my certificate is genuine. I invariably answer, yes."—Dan. A. Grosvenor.

A Congressman's Letter.

Hon. H. W. Ogden, Congressman from Louisiana, in a letter written at Washington, D. C., says the following of Peruna, the national catarrh remedy:

"I can conscientiously recommend your Peruna as a fine tonic and all around good medicine to those who are in need of a catarrh remedy. It has been commended to me by people who have used it, as a remedy particularly effective in the cure of catarrh. For those who need a good catarrh medicine I know of nothing better."—H. W. Ogden.

Treat Catarrh in Spring.

The spring is the time to treat catarrh. Cold, wet winter weather often retards a cure of catarrh. If a course of Peruna is taken during the early spring months the cure will be prompt and permanent. There can be no failures if Peruna is taken intelligently during the favorable weather of spring.

As a systemic catarrh remedy Peruna eradicates catarrh from the system wherever it may be located. It cures catarrh of the stomach or bowels with the same certainty as catarrh of the head.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

The News Of the Week

From Washington.

It is semi-officially announced that the coming retirement of Pension Commissioner Evans will not be followed by a change in the policy of the bureau.

Brig. Gen. Leonard Wood may be appointed to the vacancy in the grade of major generals created by the retirement of Gen. Otis. Following this promotion he would be eligible for appointment as the successor of Lieut. Gen. Miles, in command of the army.

The Dawes commission has just given out the information that the names of 4,767 Creek Indians and 2,523 Creek freedmen who were listed for enrollment by the Dawes commission and forwarded to the secretary of the interior for his approval have been approved by the secretary and returned to the Dawes commission.

WRECKED BY WIND

INCALCULABLE DAMAGE TO PROPERTY IN PITTSBURG AND VICINITY.

SEVERAL PEOPLE LIKEKY TO DIE

FORTY PERSONS ARE CAUGHT BY WRECKAGE AND MORE OR LESS HURT.

SCORES OF HOUSES UNROOFED

CHURCH BADLY WRECKED DURING THE EASTER SERVICES.

Pittsburg, March 31. — One of the fiercest windstorms ever known in this section struck the city yesterday just before noon and did almost incalculable damage to property and injured many people, some of whom may die from the effects of their wounds. Scores of houses were unroofed, many trees were blown down, mill stacks toppled over and telegraph and telephone wires generally disabled. The most serious accident was the unroofing of the Knoxville Presbyterian church in Knoxville. The church at the time was filled with an Easter congregation numbering about 600 persons. While the minister was in the midst of his sermon a particularly blew over the large chimney and lifted a portion of the roof of the building. The bricks from the chimney crashed through the roof and carried a huge piece of hardwood ceiling measuring about forty by twenty feet, down upon the worshippers in the pews. An indescribable panic ensued and a frantic rush was made for the doors and windows. At least forty persons were caught by the wreckage and more or less hurt. Of this number five may not recover.

Strong Gust of Wind

The towboat Belle McGowan was blown over in the Ohio river and completely wrecked. Her crew was rescued. Jones & Laughlins had fourteen had fourteen of their furnace stacks blown down, necessitating the shutdown of a portion of their plants.

Plays Havoc in Many Towns.

The Noblestown Presbyterian church was also unroofed.

The Forest Oil company had between 200 and 300 derricks blown down in the McDonald region and considerable damage was sustained by its employes.

A freight house was destroyed by fire before an alarm could be turned in either by telegraph or telephone.

Belated reports from near-by towns show that the wind played havoc at every town in its track.

CRUSHED IN THE PULPIT.

Wind Wrecks Part of a Church, Fatally Injuring the Pastor.

Greenville, Pa., March 31.—The Easter services being held in the United Presbyterian church at Jamestown, this county, came to an abrupt ending yesterday. The sky became overcast and a funnel-shaped cloud was seen approaching from the northwest. The congregation became uneasy, but the pastor, Rev. J. M. Jamison continued the services. Suddenly there was a terrific crash and part of the south end to the church crashed in, burying the minister beneath bricks and timbers. The men of the congregation rushed to the pulpit and when the stricken minister was removed from the debris it was found that he had received fatal injuries.

Killed in a Church.

Wellsburg, W. Va., March 31.—The storm which visited the Ohio valley yesterday amounted to a calamity here. The historic Franklin M. E. church, four miles east of this place, is in ruins, its venerable pastor is seriously injured, two members of its congregation are dead and several others wounded. Rev. Mr. Allshouse had reached the peroration in his sermon when suddenly the gable end of the church was blown in. The falling timbers and debris struck him and fell all about him. The congregation was panic-stricken. Many had reached the outside and others were yet in the edifice when the gale lifted the roof off, and it fell among the people.

DAMAGE IN MICHIGAN.

Storm Plays Havoc With Telegraph and Telephone Wires.

Grand Rapids, Mich., March 31.—Reports from Lake Michigan cities and towns show that the heavy storm of Saturday night and yesterday has done a large amount of damage, particularly to telegraph and telephone lines. The lines are all down along the lake shore, and Traverse City, Manistee and Ludington are cut off from outside communication. The lake was so rough last night that the Goodrich and Barry line steamers did not venture out. The temperature fell 15 degrees during the day.

IMMENSE LAKE HAS FORMED.

Result of the Recent Flood in North Dakota.

Bismarck, N. D., March 31.Although a lake of water of great depth still covers the track of the railroad at McKenzie, passengers, mail and baggage are transferred by wagons to a neck of the temporary lake, about a mile and a half north of the tracks, and there ferried across with a gasoline launch and small rowboats. The water over the tracks fell eight inches yesterday, but there is still several feet of water rushing over the tracks. Arrangements are being made to build a temporary track around the submerged section of country, as traffic over the present track may be delayed an indefinite length of time. An immense amount of freight is accumulating at both sides of the washout, which must soon be moved or great loss will be entailed upon the railroad company, in addition to that already occasioned by the delay in traffic. Passengers report the lake thirty miles long by two miles wide and sixteen feet deep in the middle of the lake. It is estimated that three miles of new track and a 600-foot bridge must be built before trains can run again.

WINNIPEG ASKS MUCH.

North Dakota Baseball Schedule is Not Completed.

Fargo, N. D., March 31. — The circuit and schedule of the North Dakota baseball league is expected to be definitely determined at a meeting to be held Tuesday at Grand Forks. The trouble has been over the admission of Winnipeg on the terms suggested by the Manitoba city. The Winnipegers want the teams to play in each town on a guarantee, the home team to pocket all receipts above that. This is all right from a Winnipeg view, but some of the smaller towns do not like the idea and insist on a percentage deal, especially as the railroad fare to Winnipeg will be almost five times as much as for the towns in North Dakota. If some arrangement can be made by which Winnipeg will guarantee the extra mileage the fixed sum idea will be a more popular one.

FLEE FROM FIRE

MATINEE AUDIENCE DRIVEN FROM A THEATER IN A HURRY.

PROMPTNESS AVERTS A PANIC

BUILDING TAKES FIRE WHILE THE THEATER IS PACKED WITH PEOPLE.

EASTER HEADGEAR SACRIFICED

WOMEN DO NOT WAIT TO GET THEIR EASTER HATS AND WRAPS.

Cincinnati, March 31. — The Pike building, on Fourth, between Vine and Walnut streets, in which the Pike opera house is located, was partially destroyed by fire yesterday afternoon. Standing room had been taken at the matinee which was proceeding when the flames broke out. The audience retired in good order, but some women fainted after reaching the street.

The auditorium is on the second floor, with two stairways leading to Fourth street. There is also a stairway from the stage leading to Backer alley in the rear. About 2,000 persons were at the matinee, and the performance of "Sag Harbor" by the Pike Stock company, with Miss Collier and Byron Douglass in the leading roles, had proceeded only ten minutes when the portiers between the corridors and the north aisle Caught Fire.

The prompt efforts of Manager D. H. Hunt and his staff and those on the stage were most successful in averting a panic. The fire started from some unknown cause in the basement store room of the Adams Express company, and extended up through the first floors of the Adams express office and Joffee's grocery to the auditorium. The only thing burned in the auditorium was the portiere, but the volume of smoke indicated a serious fire under the audience. The auditorium was so badly damaged from water that it will not be used any more this season. The Pike stock company lost $10,000 in scenery that was stored in the lower part of the building.

A great portion of the women in the audience fled without their new Easter hats and wraps, and the individual losses will be considerable. The loss on building and contents is placed at $75,000.

VESSEL CUT IN TWO.

Serious Collision in Which Three Men Are Drowned.

Philadelphia, March 31. — With the greater part of her crew of eleven men asleep in their bunks below deck, the little fishing schooner Edna Earl, bound from the sea, was run into and sunk in Delaware bay, off Reedy Island, Del., late Saturday night and three of her crew were drowned. The vessel that sunk the fisherman was the Norwegian steamship Romsdel, from New York for Philadelphia, in ballast, which rescued the surviving members of the crew and brought them to this city. To whom the responsibility for the collision is chargeable has not been determined. Both Capt. Hirsch of the Romsdal and Capt. Kote of the schooner say that all their lights were burning and that they were completely within maritime regulations. The sleeping fishermen were awakened by a crash and rushed up the narrow companionway. All but three of the men managed to reach the deck, Nolen, Smith and Ford being caught by the rush of water and were drowned in the vessel. The blow struck by the Romsdal was so severe that the little schooner was almost cut in half and she sank in less than five minutes.

HE FEIGNED DEATH

MONTANA BOODLER SAID TO BE LIVING PEACEFULLY IN GERMANY.

WAS SELF-CONFESSED GRAFTER

BY A SYSTEM OF BRIBERY HE SECURED $8,000 FROM CONTRACTORS.

SENDS OUT REPORT OF SUICIDE

WIFE REFUSED TO LET ANY ONE SEE THE HUSBAND'S BODY.

Butte, Mont., March 29.—The startling assertion was made in the district court yesterday in connection with the trial of a case growing out of the bribery and scandal over the building of the state educational institutions for Montana that John C. Paulsen, the state architect, who was supposed to have committed suicide in March, 1897, is not dead, but is living at present somewhere in Germany.

By a system of bribery and graft, it is charged, Paulsen obtained from the contractors, J. A. Riddell, C. E. Roach and Charles Sulier, more than $8,000, for which he secured contracts for them, approved their accounts and made large and excessive estimates of work done in their favor.

When the disclosures were made by Riddell's discoveries, who was not a partner to the corruption, Roach made a confession and implicated a number of other people. Paulsen was also, and promised to make restitution. He went to his home in Helena for the purpose of securing the money, and a few hours later word was sent out that he had died, that report being followed by the statement that he had committed suicide. The body was at once placed in a receiving vault by his wife, who had refused to admit any one to the house to see the body.

An insurance company which carried $6,000 on Paulsen's life became suspicious and had a local agent investigate the death. He saw the body in the vault, but stated that Paulsen's face was very lifelike. The insurance was paid and Mrs. Paulsen started for Germany with what was supposed to be the body of her husband.

She is now living in some inland province of that country. Riddell and his attorneys and witnesses at the trial yesterday declared their belief that Paulsen is not dead, and that he had feigned death and afterword made his escape and is alive to-day.

DAKOTA FLOOD MAKES TROUBLE.

Railroad Men Think Through Trains Can Go Over the Coast Lines.

Bismarck, N. D., March 29.—After an all-day trial efforts to transfer passengers across McKenzie slough yesterday were abandoned. Few of the passengers would risk a trip in the skiffs provided by the company and further attempts will be made to-day with a gasoline launch. There is no improvement in the general condition of the blockaded track and the water still overflows it to a depth of several feet.

Fargo—Railroad officials here speak a trifle more hopefully of being able to run coast trains through to-morrow, or at least transfer at flooded points in the western part of the state. Another train was transferred here last night from the Northern Pacific to the Great Northern tracks. East-bound trains that should have left here last evening were held till 3 o'clock in the morning.

BLOCKADE IS RAISED.

Northern Pacific Starts Its First Through Train in Three Days.

St. Paul, March 29. — The Northern Pacific raised its blockade in Western North Dakota last night and sent out at 10:35 the first through train for three days, comfortably filled with passengers for Western points. Reports received at headquarters during the day were that the floods were receding, and that, while the tracks were still under water at many points, operation of trains is possible. It is expected that all trains will be moving on schedule time before to-night.

Bismarck, N. D., March 29.—James Smith, wanted on the charge of murdering Anton Hylinger near Washburn, was captured at a ranch near the scene of the crime and brought back to Washburn by the officials. He crawled to a ranch near by, nearly dead from exposure, and asked for medical attention. There his identity was discovered. He is reported to be seriously ill from cold and exposure.

FIGHT CUMMINS' VETO.

Iowa Senate Sets Time for Consideration of the Veto of Burlington Railroad Bill.

Des Moines, March 29. — The senate yesterday afternoon, by a vote of 23 to 18, made the governor's veto of the Molsberry bill a special order for next Tuesday at 2 p. m. This is considered a victory for the opponents of the veto and the friends of the bill. It is now regarded as possible that they may secure enough votes to pass the bill over his veto.

The house by a vote of 61 to 30 indefinitely postponed the railroad tax bill.

The senate passed the compulsory education bill, and its amendments to the measure were concurred in by the house, on motion of Representative Dunham, the author. The house also concurred in the senate amendments to the Anderson road bill.

DEAD IN THE ENGINE CAB.

Terrible End of a St. Paul Locomotive Fireman, Employed on Burlington.

St. Paul, March 29.—When the Burlington train from Chicago rolled into the Union depot yesterday morning Frederick Grey, the engineer jumped from his lofty seat and noticed for the first time that his fireman, Fred Busacker, was lying motionless on the floor of the cab. Busacker was dead. The top of his head was crushed in, and he had evidently been instantly killed by some bridge or girder while looking out of the window. The engine was one of the large type, and the boiler projecting back into the cab prevented the engineer from seeing the accident. Busacker was twenty-four years old and a single man. His home was on Euclid street, St. Paul.

LIFE PRISONERS ON PAROLE.

They Are Civilly Dead and Cannot Marry Under the Law.

St. Paul, March 29. — Gov. Van Sant has received from Attorney General Douglas an opinion that life prisoners on parole cannot marry or enter into any civil contract. A prisoner on parole is still a ward of the state serving his sentence, and, under the law, he is civilly dead. His capacity for entering into contracts is not restored until he has been granted a full pardon or served out the term of his sentence, and, of course, the term of life imprisonment does not end until terminated by death or pardon. While no names are mentioned, it is understood that the opinion refers to the Younger brothers, as Jim asked the governor for an opinion as to whether he could marry while on parole. It is understood that he wished to marry Alix J. Mueller, who formerly ran a newspaper at Spring Valley, another at Hector, and later was engaged in newspaper work in Montana. Miss Mueller was much interested in securing a pardon for the Younger brothers before their release on parole.

If there is a large quantity of the rock, and it is thought to be there in abundant quantities, Mr. Burris will have property of high value.

Stillwater, Minn., March 29. — Carl Olson, five years old, was accidentally killed at the stone quarry in this city at noon yesterday. The little fellow went to the quarry to meet his father, John Olson, and accompany him home, and while waiting for the noon whistle, was playing in the quarry. A rock, weighing four tons was dislodged from the ledge above by some cause unknown, and crashed down upon the little fellow, crushing him terribly.

Stenmark and John Erickson came to town yesterday with a three-year-old black bear, weighing 146 pounds, which they had killed about four miles east of the Fleming logging road. WEDNESDAY, APR. 2, 1902.

A fellow was arrested up in Winnipeg the other day on a charge of assault and battery preferred by a woman. When the judge asked him why he hit the woman he said he was looking for the key to his room in her stocking and she kicked.

A few days ago, says the Grand Forks Herald, a rather bashful young woman went into a Logan county store carrying three chickens. She inquired the price of chickens and at the same time put them on the counter. The clerk did not know that their feet were tied and asked if they would lay there. She bit her handkerchief and ducked her head and replied: "No, sir. They are roosters."

According to recent figures there are twenty cases of leprosy in this state, eighteen males and two females, all foreign born, and they all contracted the disease outside of the United States. Six are isolated and fourteen at large. One case is in Kandiyohi county, one in Brown, one in Chippewa, four in Hennepin, one in St. Louis, one in Pope, one in Marshall, three in Polk, one in Faribault and one in Watonwan. There are five additional cases in the state, not definitely located.

The Whip Tree.

In the island of Jamaica grows a tree, with the botanic name Daphne lagetto, from the branches of which native workmen make peculiarly strong and excellent whips, which have the handle and lash all of a piece. The handle consists of a part of the stem retaining the bark. For the lash the stem is deprived of bark and then split into strips, which are woven together in a flexible cord six or seven feet in length. The proper taper is afforded by detaching more and more of the strips as the end of the lash is approached.

School Gardens.

Scientific gardening is taught in the national schools of Sweden and in the seminaries for the education of national schoolteachers. There is a school garden in nearly every rural school district in the kingdom. The garden is placed near the schoolhouse, and the children receive practical instruction in the cultivation of plants, berries, flowers, herbs and fruits, the management of hotbeds, greenhouses, etc.

A Sidewalk Prescription.

The busy doctor was hurrying down the street when he was stopped by a man noted for his ability to get "sidewalk" advice.

"I am thoroughly worn out and sick and tired. What ought I to take?" asked the man.

"Take a cab," replied the unfeeling doctor.—New York Times.

Some Remarkable Beliefs.

There are naturalists in this day and age who believe that horsehairs will turn to living snakes, that toads will live for thousands of years in the cavity of a rock without food or water, that the barnacle goose was developed from the shellfish of that name and that the bird called sora is a species of winged frog.

Thumb Rings.

Men's thumb rings are no rarities to collectors. Some of the Roman specimens must have been cumbrous wear, one in the Montfaucon collection, bearing the bust of Trajan's consort, Plotina, measuring over three inches across. Medieval churchmen of high degree did not allow "the largest, first and shortest of the fingers" to go unadorned. A massive gold ring was found upon the thumb of the supposed skeleton of Hilary, bishop of Chichester, who died in 1169, and the recumbent effigy of Bishop Oldham in Exeter cathedral is remarkable for the pressed together thumbs being inclosed by a single ring.

When the shrine of St. Thomas a Becket was robbed of its treasures, the famous archbishop's thumb ring, given to him by the king of France, graced with a ruby the size of a hen's egg, found its way to the thumb of bluff King Hal, and as the humor of the king is always voted just the thing we may be sure the royal hand was not the only one so decked at court. Mayors and aldermen imitated their betters "When I was about thy years, Hal," says the fat knight, "I was not an eagle's talon in the waist. I could have crept into an alderman's thumb ring." —Chambers' Journal.

Building Superstitions.

In remote times a sacrifice of some kind was always offered at the completion of a building, either public or private. Sacrifices were not only offered at the completion of structures of all kinds. The foundations themselves were usually laid in blood, whether the structure was a castle, bridge, cottage or church. Originally—tracing the subject back to heathenish times—the sacrifice was offered to the god under whose protection the building was placed. In Christian times the bloody rite was retained, but was given another significance. In those days it was generally believed that no edifice would stand unless the cornerstone was laid in mortar mixed with blood. Usually the blood was obtained by sacrifice, a dog, a pig, a wolf, a black cock or a goat, and not unfrequently some malefactor's blood was poured out to make the ceremony more impressive.

Clark Russell's Start.

When a young man of one and twenty, Mr. Clark Russell, the well known novelist, was present at the trial of a dozen seamen who had mutinied because the food provided for them was of the most abominable description. He was disgusted to find that the mutineers were actually sentenced to several weeks' imprisonment for refusing to be poisoned with the provisions dealt out to them. From this sprang the idea of a story of mutiny caused entirely by the shipment of bad food for the crew The result was "The Wreck of the Grosvenor," by which Mr. Clark Russell made his name.

A Corkscrew Steeple.

The steeple of the parish church at Chesterfield, England, is often called the "corkscrew" steeple, for it has got quite a big twist. This is due to the action of the sun on the wooden and iron materials, and the warping is more pronounced in the case of Chesterfield church than in any other church in England. Barnstable and Bristol and one or two other places have leaning steeples, but their tendency is decidedly to "lean" and not to "twist." The church at Chesterfield is the nearest rival in the United Kingdom to the leaning tower at Pisa.

An African River.

The Webbe Shebeyli, an African river, is one of the wonders of the Dark Continent. Although it is a large, rapid flowing river, almost as large as the Missouri, and flows for hundreds of miles through a fertile country, it never reaches the sea. About thirty miles before its waters get to the point where they should mingle with those of the Indian ocean the whole stream sinks out of sight into the sands of a desert.

A Hard Law.

A traveler getting outside of St. Petersburg discovered when he tried to re-enter the city that he had left his passport in the bedroom of his hotel. The guards refused to let him pass and refused to send for the passport. "According to you," said he, "the only thing for me to do is to throw myself in the Neva."

"No," said the sentry, "suicide in Russia is strictly against the law."

Her Point of View.

Mrs. Hiram Offen—How long were you in your last place?

Applicant—Oi was there just a month, ma'am.

Mrs. Hiram Offen—A month? What was the trouble?

Applicant—The trouble was, ma'am, that I was took sick, an' Oi couldn't get away anny sooner.—Philadelphia Press.

His Ideal.

"Gracious! You don't mean to say you are going to move out to Bogville?"

"Indeed I am. I consider it an ideal place."

"Huh! You ought to read the papers. There's more sickness there than in any other town in this vicinity."

"I know it. I'm a physician."

A Twofold Surprise.

"Miss Alice," said the nervy young man, "I think I will marry you."

"Indeed? Two very remarkable statements, sir."

"Two! How two?"

"One that you will marry me, the other that you think."—Baltimore News.

The Birth of the Cicada.

Even when warm weather comes again and other cicadas sing gayly from their trees the subterranean exile remains within the ground, daily growing larger and stronger until a second winter has come and gone. Then a stranger restlessness possesses him, and, burrowing steadily upward, he at last emerges from his long retirement on some warm, moist August morning. A rough, horny, earth colored creature he is, with strong hooked feet and bulky body. Clumsy is he also, and, staggering along, he gropes blindly about for some perpendicular object, up which he laboriously begins to climb.

Presently a slight quiver shakes his form, and a little crack opens a-down his back. It seems almost as if his unwonted exertions had actually burst his horny shell as the gaping wound reveals a mass of damp material within. Slowly the split widens, and a broad and massive head equipped with two great shining eyes pushes upward through the opening, and we realize that the birth of a cicada is taking place.—Frank Leslie's Monthly.

Cut Both Ways.

A farmer's boy in Scotland was charged with attempting to steal an article from a shop door. In pleading his case he said he didn't steal the thing—"he was only gaun tae dae it."

Whereupon the judge informed him that to do it and going to do it were all the same and that he would have to pay a fine of 10 shillings or go to jail for ten days.

The boy, not having the money, was allowed to go and get it from a friend. In a little while he was seen standing in the court, and when asked if he had got the money to pay his fine he answered:

"Na, but I was gaen tae dae it, and ye said that gaen tae dae it and dae it were jist the same. I'm thinking yen and me'll be about clear noo."—Pearson's.

Superstitions of Today.

There are villages near the University of Oxford where no notion of medical science has penetrated and where charms are the only recognized cure for disease. A woman who has lately been lecturing in the neighborhood on sanitation found that whooping cough was always treated by spider. The spider was sewed into a piece of muslin and hung on a curtain rod, and the death of the spider meant the end of the cough. Not long ago a child was seized with the illness, and the doctor ordered "poultices on the chest." When he returned, he found that the mother had carefully laid the poultices on the oak chest which stood by the bedside. The remedy appeared to her perfectly natural.

Conscience Stamps.

The postoffice department has a "conscience fund" of its own. Not at all unusual is it for people to use a poorly canceled stamp and then to regret cheating the government out of 2 cents. In order to secure peace of mind the 2 cent culprit will send a good stamp to the department with an anonymous explanation. This stamp is turned over to an official of the files and mails division, who pastes it on a large card and draws a couple of pen marks across it. The effect would be just as good if the repentant canceled the stamp himself.

The Nantucket Dialect.

A family circle in Nantucket was once discussing the use of nautical phrases when the mother said, "Girls, I never use them."

"Yes, thee does, mother."

"Well, watch me and see if I do."

Shortly after she said to one of the children, "There, take this and carry it to Cousin Phœbe and tell her that this squares the yards with us, and thee must send, for it is almost schooltime." —Boston Christian Register.

Fill the New Page With Good.

The improvement to come in any life from the "turning of a new leaf" is not to be based upon the turning of the leaf so much as upon the constant and resolute filling of the new page by dint of unremitting and often strenuous effort. An evil habit is not changed in a moment, but is supplanted by the good which is cultivated into a habit.—Nashville Banner.

German Dolls.

It takes eighty men to make a German doll. Each man makes a small portion of the doll, but it is the same bit all the time, and 1,000 dozen dolls can be made in a day in some of the big factories. After the men finish the body portion of the doll the women's work begins. They paint, dress the dolls and pack them for the market.

How She Knew.

A young lady has just finished playing a selection from "Faust."

Old Lady—How nice! I always did like "Home, Sweet Home."

Young Lady (with a start)—"Home, Sweet Home?"

Old Lady—Yes. Minnie plays it. I can always tell it when she crosses her hands.

His Start.

Ascum—What's that boy of yours doing now?

Poppers—He's got a job in the bank, and he's going to be president of that bank some day.

Ascum—Bright, eh?

Poppers—Well, sir, he can sign his name so nobody on earth can make it out.

Worse Than That.

"I am told, sir, that you spoke of me as a common liar."

"Whoever told you that, sir, must have been trying to break it to you gently. I said you were a whole bureau of statistics."—Chicago Tribune.

It is further ordered, that the damages awarded to the persons and corporations named in the viewers' report herein, in excess of benefits, be paid out of the county treasury of said county on warrants to be drawn and attested by the auditor of said county and signed by the chairman of this board of county commissioners, and delivered to the persons entitled thereto by law.

"HELP!"

By C. E. Corbet.

One bright morning last May a man stopped before an ordinary looking brick house in a certain bustling western city and indicated by his attitude and expression that he was listening. His persistence attracted the attention of the drug clerk down the street, who in the absence of customers was enjoying a smoke on the sidewalk under the awning, so he joined him and also began to listen. The laundryman who came to deliver a package next door sat in his wagon and eyed them silently and ruminatingly for awhile and then came over and inquired what was doing. This small group was gradually increased by the addition of the Weary Willie from down on the corner, the cook from across the street, several chance pedestrians and numerous small boys who were all ears and mouth.

"There's some trouble in here," explained the first individual, to whom everybody looked for enlightenment. "I distinctly heard cries for help, but I hesitate to interfere unless it is really something serious. There! Hear that? It seems to come from up stairs." And all eyes were immediately directed to the second story.

Then borne distinctly on the clear air could be heard the agonized cry: "O gods! Stay, Zoe, stay! What hast thou done?" This was followed by sharp tones of remonstrance; then the low mutterings of two voices and finally silence. The cook looked at the laundryman and nodded her head solemnly.

"The auld spalpeen do be gettin' his deserts," said she. "Many's the time I've heard him a-jawin' of that poor little woman, but Zoe seems to be havin' the upper hand now."

Meanwhile in the front room up stairs, entirely unconscious of the interested group below, so absorbed was he in the delightful mysteries of the histrionic art, there stood a perspiring young man with wild eyes and rumpled hair. Opposite him, reclining in the easy chair, his faded velvet coat plentifully besprinkled with cigarette ashes, sat the professional who listened to the wild paroxysms of passion uttered by the youth with perfect indifference and apparently not the slightest interest. Occasionally he would turn his languid eyes upon the agitated countenance and despairing gestures and remark: "A little more feeling there, my boy; concentrate eccentric attitude of feet and more agony in your voice and face." Thereupon his words and action would be repeated again and again until the critic, roused by his tameness, would jump to his feet and, throwing back his long hair, give the passage with all the fire and extravagance of a true son of Thespis.

But while this process of inspiring dull clay with Promethean fire was going on matters were growing serious down in the street. As over and over again the cry was heard even the cook began to think that perhaps Zoe was a little too severe on her liege lord and that her determined attempts to avenge past wrongs might end disastrously for the belabored party. But the small boy was in his element. There was trouble in the air, and he saw visions of a quick rush of the patrol wagon loaded with bluecoats, for an animated discussion was in progress between the original discoverer and the laundryman as to whether an officer should be called or not. The Willie listened suspiciously and furtively to the development of this plan. The cook turned around completely and was loud in her denunciations of "the hussy" up stairs who was "murthering her auld man," and the clerk smiled complacently to himself in anticipation of a rush order for drugs and restoratives. Suddenly came in thundering tones:

"O gods! Stay, Zoe, stay! What hast thou done! Help! Help! She dies! A jailer, she is gone!"

They looked at each other for an instant. Their worst fears were realized. It was murder and suicide together. The original discoverer sprang toward the front steps, and the laundryman made a bound for a policeman, whereat the Weary Willie shambled unsteadily and hastily round the corner, and the small boy, utterly unmindful and regardless of the tragedy before him, shrieked: "Hi there, Zoe! You're all right. Give him another, Zoe."

But before any of them had gone three steps a fat youth bearing the letters A. D. T. on his cap, who in his leisurely progress down the street had stopped just in time to hear the last cry, called out: "Here, you guys! What's the matter with you? Don't any of you know anything about the dramatic art? That ain't no murder nor nothin'. It's one of them fellows what's learnin' to chase up and down the stage and rescue a girl from a burnin' buildin' and play the whole thing all the time. Huh! You don't know much."

The Weary Willie went on down to the corner, the drug clerk ambled back to his cigar in the shade, whistling nonchalantly, the laundryman drove off without a word, the cook went home and slammed the door, the original discoverer boarded a passing car, and when the bluecoat hove in sight there was nothing more unusual to be seen or heard than a telegraph boy sitting on the stump of a tree whittling a piece of wood.—Chicago Record-Herald.

STATE ROADMAKING.

REPORT OF MASSACHUSETTS HIGHWAY COMMISSION.

Cost of Construction Per Mile—Thickness of Stone on Various Soils—Experiments With Stone and Clay. Repair Expense.

The report of the Massachusetts state highway commission for the year 1900 shows that since its organization in 1893 it has built 296 miles of improved road, about 46 of which were completed in 1900. Roads laid out and nearly completed at the close of the year bring the total up to 316 miles, which is only 24 per cent of the total of 1,334 miles for which petitions have been filed. The petitions came from 274 towns and 25 cities. From 1894 to 1900, inclusive, the legislature has appropriated $3,500,000 for the construction and repair of state highways, but 25 per cent of the total cost of new roads is borne by the counties in which the roads are located. Beginning with the year 1900 the cost of repairs up to $50 per mile per year is assessed upon the several towns; also beginning with the same year the salaries of the commissioners, the engineers, clerks and assistants in their office and travelling and office expenses, amounting to $25,566 in all, were met by a special appropriation outside the $500,000 for construction and repairs.

As to the depth of stone employed in road construction the commission says:

> The commission has estimated that nonporous soils drained of ground water at their worst will support a load of about four pounds per square inch, and, having in mind three figures, the thickness of the broken stone has been adjusted to the traffic. On a road built of fragments of broken stone the downward pressure takes a line at an angle of 45 degrees from the horizontal and is distributed over an area equal to the square of twice the depth of the broken stone. If a division of the load in pounds at any one point by the square of twice the depth of the stone give a quotient of four or less, then will the road foundation be safe at all seasons of the year. On sand or gravel the pressure may safely be placed at 20 pounds per square inch.
> Acting on this theory, the thickness of stone on state roads varies from 4 to 16 inches, the lesser thickness being placed over good gravel or sand, the greater over heavy clay and varying thicknesses on other soils. In cases where the surfacing exceeds six inches in depth the excess may be broken stone, stony gravel or ledge stone, the material used depending entirely upon the cost, either being equally effective.

Good road building gravel is comparatively scarce in Massachusetts. Where employed it has been used as it came from the bank or has been screened, or in some instances it has been crushed and screened and then laid like macadam. Mr. Charles Mills, chief engineer of the commission, says:

> The screened gravel roads are easily maintained, but wear rapidly, and as the cost of resurfacing is nearly as great as the cost of resurfacing a macadam road it does not seem to be economy to continue their construction, except in localities where stony gravel is abundant and broken stone available only at great expense.

Some interesting experimental road work at Truro, in which stone and clay were tried, is described as follows in the report:

> Three years ago an experimental road was built in Truro. This road was of rounded beach stone and clay. It has shown good wearing qualities, but, owing to the shape and size of the stone used, its cost was greater than would result from substituting broken stone for the gravel.
> The experimental mile of road built two years ago in Truro has proved a success and is well worth a description. The subgrade is loose sand. There is practically no surface loam on the land adjacent to the road. The drainage is perfect. There is not much snow or frost during winters, and the traffic is small in volume and light. The subgrade was shaped to the grade and cross section desired, and on this was spread clay, naturally sandy, containing one part of sand to two parts of clay to a depth of two inches. Over this was spread a layer of broken stone three inches in depth, the fragments varying in sizes from one-half to one and one-half inches in diameter. The broken stone was then covered with a layer of clay one inch in depth. A long toothed spike harrow was then dragged back and forth until the clay and broken stone were well mixed, and then the entire surface was watered and rolled with a two ton horse roller. An occasional sprinkling of sand since its completion has prevented the clay from becoming muddy, and the surface is reasonably smooth and free from loose stone.

The average cost of a standard mile of road in Massachusetts was $8,057 for macadam and $7,074 for gravel during 1900. By a standard mile is meant one with a stone or gravel roadway 15 feet wide, with shoulders three feet wide "shaped to the same cross section as the broken stone." It should be noted that these figures include painted guard rails at steep embankments; also culverts of vitrified or iron pipe or of masonry where there is a large volume of water. The commission says that "there are several reasons why the average cost of state roads in Massachusetts is greater than it is in other states." The first one to be cited is the selection for early construction of "the most difficult sections on long petitioned lines." Another reason is the legislative nine hour day in Massachusetts against ten hours in New Jersey and a 20 per cent excess in the cost of labor and teams. In New Jersey, we may add, culverts and bridges over permanent streams are provided at county expense, at least in the eastern part of the state, while guard rails are not usually erected on the state road work.

Concerning Good Roads.

In road building the object is to obtain a roadway with a firm and unyielding surface, one that can stand the wear of passing vehicles without disintegration, and it must also be waterproof, so that rains will run off into the gutter instead of penetrating the surface. A gravelly soil needs less preparation than any other. Roads need not be over 15 feet wide, with 8 inches of cobblestone or broken limestone for foundation and a surface of finer stone as finish. The limestone used for a foundation should be covered with granite to secure best results. All roads should be drained and tiled where necessary.

"Strawing" Sand Roads.

This has proved satisfactory in Denton county, Tex. One portion was strawed and the other clayed, the cost of the former being about one-half that of the latter. It costs about $20 a mile.

WHICH?

Aninee sent for me, and I responded at once.

"What's the matter?"

"Well," she said, with a rush, "I have had four proposals this week."

"That seems a good record. I don't see anything to complain of. I suppose you want my advice as to which to accept?"

"First, there's Jack Forde. We were brought up together, you know." A telltale flush spread over her face. "She cares for him really," I decided. "Well, when one's with Jack one does like him dreadfully. He is so young and high spirited and devoted, I think."

"Next, please."

"Then there's Walter Fielding."

"Don't know him."

"No!" She gave a little sigh. My surmise about Jack must have been wrong. "Well, he paints the most lovely pictures in the world, and I am so happy when I am in his studio. I think I should love to marry a painter. Painters are not conventional, you know, and he thinks I have got pretty feet. It's only the shoe, really. But I do care for him. He's"—

"Proceed, Miss Aninee," I urged. "I, too, have remarked the feet."

"Ah, that's nice of you! Well, Julian Clifford!"

"He's fifty!"

"I know, but he loves me so! He loves me more than all the others put together. And he seems to consider it such an honor that I should care for him, and I can't tell you how wonderful that is to a woman. He has such beautiful grey eyes, too, and he never takes one for granted. I think I love him rather desperately."

"Go on."

A dreamy look crept into her eyes. She hesitated, then gave a little, short, quick laugh.

"This is the one, after all," thought I.

"It's Reginald Mason."

"That prig!"

"Oh, how you're down upon him because he's much cleverer than most of you! There's something in him that fascinates me oddly. He's different from any one else in the world and so witty. Then at the most unexpected moments one catches a note of pathos in his tone, something of a latent sadness which makes one feel one would do anything in the world just to make him happier."

"I congratulate you, Miss Aninee," I said, rising. "Only, which is it to be, because I haven't in the least guessed, as you say they are all so charming?"

"That's the difficulty. I like them all in so totally different a way. You see, there are three kinds of men with regard to matrimony—the man one knows at once one would marry and love forever, the man one thinks one might love and the man one simply couldn't anyhow. Now, unfortunately, my four fiances all come under the second heading."

"Has no one ever come under the first?"

She looked at me for several moments, considering. Then she laughed. "Why, yes, only they never liked me."

"That's a great difficulty, of course, though I should have thought"— Here some afternoon callers sailed into the room, and for some moments we were separated. She came back to me, however, on the appearance of her sister and murmured:

"Do, do suggest something!"

"Give me a week," I said.

"So long?"

"A week!" I repeated, and we said goodby. I met Julian Clifford on the stairs. He was certainly very good looking.

The week duly elapsed, and I heard again from Aninee. "Things much worse," she wrote; "four letters every morning of entreaties for a definite answer; four bouquets every evening. I can't bear it any longer. Tell me, for pity's sake, what to do. They are all awfully kind."

"Dear Miss Aninee," I answered, "I am extremely busy, but meet me tomorrow at the corner of M—— street at 12 o'clock. I have thought of a good plan, only you must have courage; otherwise I cannot help you."

She was there ten minutes late.

"How absurd of you to make me come here!" she said. "And how pale you look, and so smart!"

"Miss Aninee," said I—my voice was slightly trembling—"you see that house?"

"Yes," said she, "but what"—

"That's a justice of the peace's office."

"Oh, dear! Is any of them about? 'Cause I really can't. It's awfully good of you, but I really can't—not even Walter Fielding. And I do care"—

"None of them is about," I said.

"Well?"

I paused a moment. She looked up, a little frightened. "Will you marry me?"

"Dison!"

"Will you marry me now?"

"But, Dison"—

We crossed the road.

"Now?"

"I think you are very unkind. I like a proper wedding with bridesmaids."

"You shall have that after." We were at the door. She turned suddenly white and walked in, with her little head very erect. When we came out—I don't think I have ever seen anything quite so lovely as she looked—she said, "Dison, you came under the first heading." I put her in a cab, and she drove home alone. Three weeks later we were married at St. George's. They were all there.

Saving the Glass.

If you put a spoon in a glass before pouring in the water, the glass will not crack, even if the water is boiling. But if there is no spoon used it takes a new glass to every hot drink.

The Methodist Sunday School scholars rendered a very nice Easter missionary program on Sunday last. It was very interesting to hear them recite and sing so nicely. Modern Woodman Picnic.

The Modern Woodmen Camps of this county were represented by delegates at Red Lake Falls a week ago and it was decided to hold the annual picnic here in June. The date of the picnic will be fixed by the local camp.

There are six woodmen camps in this county and the total membership is about 600. The coming picnic should bring a big crowd to St. Hilaire when it is held as the Woodmen always turn out in large numbers when there is anything going on in their line.

A Map worth Having.

Carl G. Foss representing E. A. Nelson, publisher of the Hallock News and state librarian, is in this vicinity selling a new map of Red Lake county. The map is absolutely correct and up to date in every respect. All subdivisions of land are shown and the name of the present owner printed on each tract. They are put up in two styles, one on strong map paper well mounted and bound with cloth edges, the other on all cloth back finely mounted. These maps sell at $2.50 and $3.50 each and at that price one of them should be in every home and business establishment.

A News Service Without Parallel.

There is ample justification for the claim made by The Chicago Record-Herald that its readers enjoy every day in the week, Sundays included, a news service that is without parallel in range and completeness. The reason is obvious—the combination of the varied and extensive facilities of the two great dailies, The Chicago Record and The Chicago Times-Herald. In addition to the independent news facilities of both papers, The Record-Herald receives the complete news service of the New York Herald and the Associated Press, and when it is considered that its news columns are supplemented by all the special features so popular in The Chicago Record and The Chicago Times-Herald, it will be seen that The Record-Herald holds a unique place among the great newspapers of the United States.

Saw Mill Ready for Work.

The repair work on the machinery in the saw mill was all completed last week. On Saturday the machinery was put in motion and several logs were sawed. At the same time the lath and shingle department was tested and a few bunches of lath turned out in first class shape. Altogether the mill is in fine condition to start as soon as the ice moves out. It is expected that a very large cut will be made here this season. There is a large supply of logs in the river and the mill will run night and day during the season. The demand for lumber has increased materially and an effort will be made to meet it.

Last year this mill manufactured about forty million feet of lumber and the present indications are that the cut this year will amount to considerably more.

Bargains—real bargains—at Peterson & Lang's 5 and 10 cent bargain counter.

Butter and Butter Fat.

The cold storage company advertises to pay for butter fat at the rate of three cents per pound less than the New York market price. Now this offer may look attractive to some of the farmers who do not realize just what it means. This price is to be paid for the butter fat in the cream and not for the butter it will make.

The butter fat will gain in manufacturing, from one-fifth to one-sixth its weight. Taking the latter as the fact every six pounds of the fat will make seven pounds of butter.

Now suppose the price of butter in New York to be 24 cents, the company will pay 21 cents per pound for the fat. This pound of fat will make one and one-sixth pounds of butter. So that the patron is getting 21 cents for one and one-sixth pounds or 28 cents worth of butter at New York prices. If the New York price is 30 cents, he will on the same basis of computation get 8 cents per pound less for his fat than it would bring in New York if manufactured into butter. So that instead of getting within three cents of the market the farmer is really selling at 7 or 8 cents less than the market.—Red River Valley Farm Journal.

Peace and a Powerful Navy.

We are building up a powerful navy for the express purpose of preserving peace, and every battleship and cruiser that hoists her flag in commission is a pledge that the peace will be kept. In the past few years we have made wonderful advancement in possessions, commerce and in wealth, and great as have been the increases in our navy they have been trivial in comparison to the enlargements of our national interests. A great incentive to industry and peaceful arts is found in "Golden Grain Belt" beer, for it makes men strong, healthy and contented. Oklahoma Lottery Plan.

The plan popularly known as the "Oklahoma lottery system" will probably be adopted in the disposal of the newly ceded lands of the Red Lake reservation and the following brief synopsis of the method used at the Oklahoma sale will be of interest.

At the time appointed and at numerous booths erected for the purpose each person desiring a claim appeared personally and upon the deposit of a fee of $1.00 his name, personal description and P. O. address was placed upon a card which card was inclosed in a plain envelope. The registration occupied fifteen days and the last man had the same chance as the first so that there was no disorder or fighting for precedence.

Some days later, when all arrangements had been made, the envelopes containing the cards were publicly mixed and shuffled and all placed in a revolving box, where they were further mixed beyond any possibility of recognition. Young men under age then drew from the box a number of envelopes equal to the number of available claims and each envelope was numbered progressively beginning with No. 1 and then publicly opened, the name and number being recorded by the clerks and the newspaper men present. These lists were at once published and the parties notified by mail.

On the day of entry each person holding a number entitling him to a claim presented himself at the land office and beginning with No. 1 each selected the claim he desired providing it did not conflict with previous selections. As each claim was chosen it was marked off on the plat and no further entries were allowed on that piece of land.

The claims selected were protected by the government and no contests were allowed except for fraudulent entry or subsequently, for abandonment. Several squatters contests were begun but all were turned down.

Useful Men.

A well known Philadelphia society woman said the other day:

"I have come to separate the men of my acquaintance into three classes. There are the dancing men, the dinner men and the corner men, and each has his own place on my list. For instance, I would never think of depending upon dancing men for a dinner. The dancing man is generally callow, and he doesn't know much else besides dancing. On the other hand, the dinner man seldom dances, but he is a good talker, is superficially informed upon the lighter topics of the day—the opera, drama, the latest novels—and can more than hold up his end. He doesn't allow conversation to lag, and consequently he is an important factor at a dinner. Men will accept dinner invitations quicker than invitations of other kinds, but don't think from this that they are all dinner men. Far from it.

"The corner man? Oh, he is the one who has the knack of making himself generally useful and is quite in a class by himself. He looks after the comfort of the chaperons, runs handy little errands and can even be depended upon at afternoon teas. The other men don't think much of him, but he has his own value from the feminine point of view."—Philadelphia Record.

Emperor Honors a Dragon Fly.

The oldest extant poem about a dragon fly is said to have been composed 1,440 years ago by the Emperor Yuriaku of Japan. One day, while this emperor was hunting, say the ancient records, a gadfly came and bit his arm. Therewith a dragon fly pounced upon the gadfly and devoured it. Then the emperor commanded his ministers to make an ode in praise of the dragon fly. But as they hesitated how to begin he himself composed a poem in praise of the insect, ending with the words:

> Even a creeping insect
> Waits upon the great Lord:
> Thy form it will bear,
> O Yamato, land of the dragon fly!

And in honor of the dragon fly the place of the incident was called Akitsuno, or the moor of the dragon fly.—"A Japanese Miscellany."

Mrs. Sophie Binns, President Young People's Christian Temperance Union, Fruitvale, Bal., Cured of Congestion and Inflammation of the Ovaries by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—Eighteen months ago I was a pretty sick woman. I had felt for some months that I gradually grew weaker, but finally I had such severe pains I could hardly stand it. I had taken cold during menstruation and this developed into congestion of the ovaries and inflammation, and I could not bear to walk or stand on my feet. The doctor recommended an operation which I would not hear of. One of my friends advised me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, so I gave it a trial. Can you imagine my feeling when within two months I felt considerably better, my general health was improved, and my pains had entirely disappeared. I kept taking it six weeks more and am now enjoying the best of health, thanks to you. Yours truly, MRS. SOPHIE BINNS."

It Was a Cocktail Cherry.

Adriana came simpering to her mistress. Could she have the evening out? Mister Johnson was in the kitchen, and giggles told the rest. Consent, with the necessary warning to be in before 11, was given, and the shining pair of black faces soon went down the street. But in less than half an hour Adriana burst in, gasping and trembling. She had never been so frightened in her life. That there black man had treated her scandalously.

"Why, he asked me if I wouldn't go into a restaurant to have somethin', an' I would. So we sat down to a table, an' the waiter brought some glasses; an' I had drunk half of mine, when I looked in, and what do you think I see? My, I was so scared I just jumped right up an' run all the way home, for there was a great, big red knockout drop in my glass!"

Such is the transforming power of a colored imagination at work upon a candied cherry.—New York Evening Post.

The London Times in '61.

The Times, after a little wavering, carried its vast power to the side of the South, whose cause it embraced with an intensity, not to say with a fury, surprising in comparison with the sure-footed discretion usually characteristic of its management. To the last it persisted with unabated confidence in assuring its readers of Southern victory. When from Grant's lines before Petersburg Richmond was almost in sight, and it was evident that the next move on the board would be checkmate, the Times continued to give ear to the asseverations of Mr. Spence that the triumph of the South was at hand. The Times really represented only the wealthier and more aristocratic class in England. In America it was taken as representing the whole nation.—Prof. Goldwin Smith, in Atlantic Monthly.

This Is the Way to Wareham.

Joseph Jefferson was driving from his summer residence in Buzzard's Bay to Onset—which is the next town west on Cape Cod—when he met two women from the camp meeting grounds at the latter place, who had dismounted from their bicycles and were acting as if in a quandary. The women, who wore bloomers, hailed the veteran comedian with the query:

"Please, Mister, is this the way to Wareham?"

Mr. Jefferson looked at the bloomers and then replied:

"The way to wear 'em? Certainly, madam. It is the way I wear mine."—New York Times.

HALLOWAY'S SECRET

By Elliott Walker.

(Copyright, 1901, by Daily Story Publishing Co.)

Jack was abstracted that evening. Even the clinging hand on his arm and the soft voice of Isabel, as she rippled out the events of her day, failed to rouse him. It was only a short distance to the theater and they walked. It would be over by eleven, then he would take her home, then to his own rooms, then—? Would he sleep? How would he pass the night? How would it seem in the morning? He shivered a little. The girl pressed his arm close to her side.

"Are you cold, dear?" she asked; "what is it?"

No, Jack Halloway was not cold, not tired exactly—just a little upset—it was nothing. He laughed and the sound seemed hard and jangled to his ears. He glanced at the happy face by his side and a wave of awful reproach swept him. She must never know. His brain whirled a bit—if she did learn what would it be to her? He had seen her when the dreadful news of her father's sudden death was broken to her. The memory of the stricken face, the agony in her eyes, had often risen before him. Then he had comforted her. Now—? He must not think—there must be some way out of the dreadful tangle. He made an effort and began to talk—business, gossip, anything.

The orchestra was playing a medley as they walked to their seats. The melody broke into "The Old Kentucky Home" as the usher slammed down the chairs. Halloway took unnecessary time in taking off his overcoat. Was it fate? That air of all others! Could he sit there and smile and talk? He must! Occasionally the melodrama dulled his sense of unrest and he forgot. Then the quick, sharp pang of remembrance to sting and horrify him. He kept looking at his watch—would it never be over?

Isabel chatted happily during the interludes and pressed close to him during the emotional scenes. It was so comforting to have Jack all her own. Her young heart throbbed in sympathy with the woes of the heroine and tears came to her eyes. She could feel Jack so near her and his presence stilled and helped her. He was so handsome and strong, and how intent he seemed on the play.

The walk home seemed so short to her—so long to him. He kissed her mechanically as he left her and apologized for being such poor company. Isabel did not mind; beyond the fact of his rather unusual silence she had noticed nothing. Only a few months now and she would be Mrs. Jack—that was happiness enough. And, of course, she must not expect him to talk when he was tired. Happy, blue-eyed, sunny-haired Isabel! How little she knew of the black despair crazing her lover's brain.

In his own rooms at last with the doors carefully locked the man turned on the lights and threw himself into a chair, tore a letter from his pocket and read it over and over again, while his face grew white and great beads of perspiration gathered upon his brow.

"My own Jack!" the letter ran. "I am not dead after all—it was all a mistake. I left the company the very day of the fire and have been abroad with Maxey's troupe. Just returned last Saturday. Jenkins told me where you were and that you thought I had been cremated with the other girls. How dreadful for you, love. Won't you be glad to see little Maudie? No wonder you have buried yourself in Milwaukee. Well, I shall reach there Friday and will tell you all about it. Good-bye until then. We will make up for good this time. Your devoted wife,

"MAUD."

Halloway sat looking at the letter.

"His devoted wife!" Back, back traveled his thoughts. How did it all begin? Where? Could it have been but a year ago—that short, mad episode? Oh, fool, fool! what had possessed him! He saw as in a dream the gay lights of a southern theater, a graceful dancing girl, an introduction behind the scenes; a private room at the Western, where dainty fingers played with dainty dishes and wine sparkled and foamed; bright eyes pledging him, red lips inviting him, daring him, a rich voice enthralling him—Maud!

Then days of infatuation, nights of sweet revelry, promises, pledges and the quiet ceremony. Then the awakening! Quarrels and kisses, bitter words and tender embraces; his demand that she leave the stage, as she had promised; her angry refusal; the morning he had waked to find her gone, with the note pinned to his dressing table; the two weeks of angry silence; the news of the awful holocaust in the city where her troupe was playing; the doleful journey, the grim certainty of her dreadful fate; the dismal search, then a thing dug from the charred ruins—Maud!

"Are you cold, dear?" she asked. "What is it?"

And she had been alive all this time and had never written? Had taken up her life and been silent. Now, like an avenging Nemesis she was appearing from the hated past to wreck all that he held dear.

Yet in a way he had loved her. He could almost hear her singing "The Old Kentucky Home" in her rich voice and the sweep of her banjo with the pink ribbons. A faint perfume clung to her letter. It brought back a torrent of old recollections. She was his wife after all, and they had passed many happy hours together. What in God's name should he do?

Who was the woman he had buried—had wept over? He remembered how he had turned from that grave with a vow for a better life—a prayer for a manly career where he might be of some use.

After that came Chicago and his wonderful winnings on the Board of Trade—a few feverish weeks—then he drew out, a rich man. Milwaukee, one more financial success, then everybody's hand, society, Isabel Canning! Isabel!

The man rose wearily from the chair and paced up and down the richly furnished rooms. He took a revolver from its case on the mantel, looked at it long, put it back. No, not that! He emptied a very little of a white powder from a small bottle into a glass, added a little water and placed it near his bed. Yes, he must have sleep. To-morrow would be Friday.

"My darling!" he said huskily; "please do not ask me about it!"

In the gray of the early morning Halloway arose. His head was heavy and ached dully from the morphine but he had slept. The day had come—how would it end? He was rich—perhaps he could buy Maud off—money would do much. He would tell her all—arrange for a divorce in Louisiana. She should have her price. If she would not agree the heavily loaded weapon in his pocket now might as well end it.

All day long the man sat in his office waiting. She would probably send a message from her hotel. She might come to him direct. No one ever knew what she would do. Oh, if he only knew her train.

At six o'clock that evening he was still waiting. His bookkeeper came into his private office. "Ill, Mr. Halloway?" he asked. "You didn't go to lunch."

"No, Joe, not ill exactly," answered the broker, "but not feeling quite right."

"Sorry," said the clerk politely. "Here's an evening paper—terrible railroad wreck, it says. Southern express went through the trestle at Cordinia. Seventeen killed. The Maxey troupe was on the train. Some of the girls dead. That's awful, isn't it? Here's a list."

"Let me take it!" cried Halloway, reaching out a trembling hand. "Where—where's the list?" The bookkeeper pointed it out.

Jack glanced at it and fell back in his chair. "Call a cab, quick!" he cried. "I've a friend among those poor people. I'm going down there."

The astonished clerk ran downstairs.

"Maud Hudson—killed!" murmured Halloway with dry lips. "That's her stage name. Poor—little—Maud. If she's really gone I'm——" he stopped, repelled at himself. "It's better so," he thought, "it might have been both of us before we got through."

Isabel looked anxiously for her betrothed for the next three days. It was cruel for Jack to go away and leave no word. When he returned he was very pale, very tender with her.

"I lost an old friend in that fearful wreck at Cordinia, my darling!" he said huskily; "please do not ask me about it—I shall never be able to speak of it."

And Isabel has never asked, and in her happy married life has forgotten.

Precious Metals in 1901.

The Engineering and Mining Journal estimates the world's gold product in the past year at $256,000,000, of which sum the United States produced $81,000,000; Canada, $28,000,000; Russia, $23,500,000; the Transvaal, $4,700,000. Australasia produced about the same amount as in 1900. The silver production of the world was somewhat less than in 1900. The United States produced 50,500,000 ounces of silver from ores mined in this country. In 1891 we exported $52,593,928 of gold, or $2,790,637 more than we imported, the outflow being mainly to France and Germany. England imported $98,500,000 of gold and exported $61,500,000. London continues the great silver market of the world. The imports in 1901 were $53,000,000 worth, the United States supplying $45,000,000 worth.

Substitute for Rubber.

The Rocky mountain grease-wood plant has a milky sap and the old wood has a resinous gum which is soluble in carbon bisulphide and in other known hydrocarbon solvents of rubber. From the sap it is possible to make artificial India rubber. The plant, bruised between rollers, is exposed to the action of carbon bisulphide, naphtha or other solvant of Indian rubber. The solution is evaporated and a gum remains of a brown color, highly flexible and elastic, combustible and possessing the characteristics of India rubber. The gum can be vulcanized by the addition of sulphur in the same manner as the India rubber.

After a girl is engaged to a man she makes up for all the time she couldn't tell him she loved him before he asked her.

Rather Discouraging.

She—"And you are not going to spend the evening with me?"

He—"I am very sorry, dearest, but I have a pressing engagement and—"

She—"Then take back your ring. I'm not going to be engaged to a man who isn't willing to do all his pressing here."

The Way to Keep Good.

Brooding over the evil that you have done will never correct that evil. Rather will it make possible a repetition of the thing dwelt upon. Set your mind the other way. Think honest, pure, kind, courageous thoughts all the time, and your mind will have no time for their opposites.—Success.

Masquerade as "the Crisis."

"What title shall I take" asked a young woman about to attend a "book party," where each one present is made up to represent some particular literary creation. Her friend, having just finished listening to the tale of her vaccination experience, suggested:

"Why don't you go as 'The Crisis?'"—New York Evening Post.

The Price of Admission.

The only son had reached the histrionic period in his career, and was indulging in a juvenile edition of "Uncle Tom's Cabin." His mother's drawing room was converted into a temporary theater, and with a view, perhaps, of playing only to exclusive audiences, this notice was posted over the door:

"Ladies and gentlemen under thirteen years may come in; those that are not cannot."—New York Evening Post.

Adam and Eve and the Fig Leaf.

The beauties of Japan were under discussion in the Authors' club one night, and John Boyle O'Reilly was one of the party.

"Why," said a gentleman who had toured the Orient thoroughly, "I believe it is the site of the lost paradise."

"No," said O'Reilly, "I must except to that theory. I cannot understand how any man who has read Genesis can question that the Garden of Eden was in Ireland."

"What Scriptural passage sustains that assumption?" asked the other man.

"I must admit," said O'Reilly, "that it is based upon the fig-leaf incident. Adam and Eve, you know, were evicted for the wearing of the green."—New York Times.

Letters That Are of Little Value.

It is my judgment that the first thing a young man starting in life should do is to master the groundwork of his chosen calling, as taught by actual practice. No matter how highly educated he may be, when he makes a beginning away from college, he ought to bear in mind that he has as much to learn that books do not contain and professors do not teach, as was imparted to him at his alma mater.

Letters of recommendation are of little value. It has grown to be the case that an individual is "sized up" for what he shows himself to be, and not according to some other person's written estimate. It really takes a year or two of hard knocks and rebuffs to bring a young fellow, who thinks his sheepskin is all he needs, to a point where he can properly estimate himself. When he reaches that stage, he will begin to get on in the world.—F. Augustus Heinz, in Success.

Bright's Disease Cured.

Sullivan, Ill., March 31st.—Mrs. Kitty F. Seaney was very ill for months, and notwithstanding the very best medical attendance, she got no better. The doctors said she had Bright's Disease, and gave her little hope of ever being well again.

She suffered great pain in her back, which nothing seemed able to relieve, till at last, encouraged by the reputation Dodd's Kidney Pills have attained in the community as a cure for Kidney Diseases, she began to use them.

The result was a surprise both to Mrs. Mrs. Seaney and the physicians, for soon after the treatment was commenced her kidneys threw off large quantities of dark, diseased matter, and she improved rapidly. She used in all ten boxes, and has completely recovered good health, without pain or symptoms of the Bright's Disease.

Illustrating the Difference.

"Is he a statesman or a politician?"

"Oh, a statesman, beyond question."

"Are you sure?"

"Positive. Why, they couldn't bribe him with money; you'd have to show that you could deliver political influence."—Brooklyn Eagle.

Col. T. P. Moody, of Chicago, Had Catarrh Twenty-Five Years and Was Cured by Peruna.

A Noted Knight Templar Owes His Health to Peruna.

Colonel T. P. Moody, a prominent Knight Templar, is well known in every city in the United States west of Buffalo, N. Y., as a Jeweler's Auctioneer. In the city of Chicago as a prominent lodge man, being a member of the K. T.'s and also of the Masons. The cut shows Colonel Moody in the costume of the Oriental Consistory Masons, 32nd degree.

In a recent letter from 5900 Michigan avenue, Chicago, Ill., Mr. Moody says the following:

"For over twenty-five years I suffered from catarrh, and for over ten years I suffered from catarrh of the stomach terribly.

"I have taken all kinds of medicines and have been treated by all kinds of doctors, as thousands of my acquaintances are aware in different parts of the United States, where I have traveled, but my relief was only temporary, until a little over a year ago I started to take Peruna, and at the present time I am better than I have been for twenty years.

"The soreness has left my stomach entirely and I am free from indigestion and dispepsia and will say to all who are troubled with catarrh or stomach trouble of any kind, don't put it off and suffer, but begin to take Peruna right away, and keep it up until you are cured, as you surely will be if you persevere.

"My wife, as many in the southwest run say, was troubled with a bad cough and bronchial trouble, and doctors all over the country gave her up to die, as they could do nothing more for her. She began taking Peruna with the result that she is better now than she has been in years, and her cough has almost left her entirely. The soreness has left her lungs and she is as well as she ever was in her life, with thanks, as she says, to Peruna. Yours very truly,

T. P. Moody.

Catarrh in its various forms is rapidly becoming a general curse. An undoubted remedy has been discovered by Dr. Hartman. This remedy has been thoroughly tested during the past forty years. Prominent men have come to know of its virtues, and are making public utterances on the subject. To save the country we must save the people. To save the people we must protect them from disease. The disease that is at once the most prevalent and stubborn of cure is catarrh.

If one were to make a list of the different names that have been applied to catarrh in different locations and organs, the result would be astonishing. We have often published a partial list of these names, and the surprise caused by the first publication of it to all people, both professionals and nonprofessional, was amusing. And yet we have never enumerated all of the diseases which are classed as catarrh. It must be confessed, however, to see even this partial list drawn up in battle array is rather appalling. If the reader desires to see this list, together with a short exposition of each one, send for our free catarrh book. Address The Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, Ohio.

St. Peter Was an Irishman.

There is a doorkeeper of the house of representatives who was born in the Green Isle, and is so proud of his native land that he never tires of telling of the famous men of the same extraction. Some of his assertions are in singular contradiction of history, and congressmen often cajole him to converse upon this favorite theme for their amusement. One day he said that St. Peter was an Irishman.

"Well," said Benton McMillin of Tennessee, who was then in congress, "you can bet he was not a negro. No colored man would have given that cock a chance to crow three times."—New York Times.

CANUCKS DID WELL

DETAILS OF THE BATTLE AT DOORNBALT FARM DO THEM CREDIT.

GALLANTLY REPULSED THE BOERS

ONE PARTY FIGHTS UNTIL ALL ARE EITHER KILLED OR WOUNDED.

BOTH SIDES LOST HEAVILY

FIGHTING WAS SEVERE AND GENERAL FOR OVER THREE HOURS.

Klerksdorp, Transvaal, April 7.—Details received of the battle at Doornbalt farm March 31, in which the British had 3 officers and 24 men killed and 16 officers and 131 men wounded, while the Boers had 137 men killed or wounded, show that quite 2,000 Boers opened a strong attack from different points with three guns and a pom-pom. This attack was made at a moment when the British had left their luggage in a laager in charge of the Canadian contingent and were galloping across the open plain with the intention of capturing a Boer convoy which had been discovered five miles ahead. The British raced steadily, and having dismounted opened a return fusillade on the Boers.

While the luggage in charge of the Canadians was sent for the British formed a camp and started digging trenches. The shelling of the Boers stampeded the mules and caused confusion, but otherwise it was not very effective, as many of the shells

Failed to Explode.

The Canadians were attacked by strong numbers, but they gallantly repulsed every attempt made by the Boers to break through. One party of the Canadians fought until all were killed or wounded and the last man of his party, although mortally wounded, emptied two bandoliers of cartridges at the enemy and then broke his rifle. The fighting was severe and general for fully three hours, but after the British had intrenched and the guns got into action the forces repelled numerous and determined attacks made under the personal exhortations of the Boer leaders. Toward night the fire gradually ceased and the Boers retired.

The British then telegraphed for aid and further intrenched their camp for the night to await the arrival of Gen. Kitchener, but the Boers made no attempt to renew the attack.

Peace Negotiations Go Slowly.

Kroonstad, Orange River, April 7.—Owing to the great distance separating the members of the Transvaal mission here from Mr. Steyn, the former president of the Orange Free State, and Gen. Delarey, the negotiations between the Boer leaders in South Africa looking toward the conclusion of the war make little progress. It is expected, however, that Mr. Schalkburger and his colleagues on the mission will shortly leave here for a more convenient center from which to conduct the negotiations.

Fund Raised in Illinois Is Sent to President Roosevelt.

Chicago, April 7.—A certified check for $5,000, drawn to the order of President Roosevelt, was forwarded to the president on March 23 by the committee of citizens which Gov. Yates appointed in December to raise funds for the relief of Boer women and children in the concentration camps of South Africa. Inasmuch as the committee was without satisfactory means of forwarding the money, President Roosevelt was requested to accept the fund and have it forwarded through such channels as he might deem best, to be disbursed for the relief of the sufferers for whom it was intended. A letter from Secretary Hay under date of April 3 has been received by Peter Van Vlissingen, secretary of the Illinois committee, acknowledging the receipt of the check by President Roosevelt, and stating that, as directed by the president, the money had been forwarded to the United States consul general at Cape Town, that being, in the president's opinion, the most expeditious way of transmitting it to its destination. The consular officer at Cape Town, Secretary Hay states, has been directed to distribute the fund in the manner intended by the donors. DEALS OUT DEATH

DESPERATE NEGRO IN ALABAMA SUCCESSFULLY RESISTS ARREST.

THREE DEAD; THREE ARE DYING

HOUSES BURNED TO DISLODGE NEGRO FROM HIS HIDING PLACE.

KILLED AND THROWN INTO FIRE

RELIC SEEKERS CUT OFF NEGRO'S FINGERS AND OTHER PARTS OF BODY.

Tuscumbia, Ala., April 7.—Three men are dead, three mortally wounded and four seriously wounded as the result of an attempt by Sheriff Gassaway yesterday to arrest Will Reynolds, a desperate negro. Reynolds was slain in the fight.

All the casualties, except the death of Reynolds himself, are the result of the deadly fire of Reynolds with a 43-caliber Winchester. The negro was in his turn riddled and thrown into a fire.

Sheriff Gassaway went to a negro settlement, "Knardtown," yesterday morning to arrest Will Reynolds for obtaining goods under false pretense. The officer was met by the negro, who opened fire with a Winchester, wounding the sheriff and immediately firing upon the deputy, Will Gassaway, who was some 300 yards away, mortally wounding him.

As soon as possible every man in town who could procure a gun was in the neighborhood, but owing to the location none dared to venture within the open space.

Dynamite Was Procured,

and the house in which the negro was barricaded was fired upon, but with no effect. At 1 o'clock Capt. Simpson, of the Wheeler rifles, arrived with twelve guns and one thousand cartridges, which were distributed among twelve picked men. This company was stationed around the house and riddled it but the negro had taken refuge in the cellar and returned the fire, killing Jones and wounding Finney. Coal oil was then procured and after four hours of hard work the houses adjoining that in which the negro was located were fired by the Wheeler Rifles who had arrived on the scene. The negro took refuge in a shed and opened fire, killing Wallace and wounding Davis, but the people and some militiamen riddled the negro, and the crowd, numbering 1,000, grabbed the body and threw it into the burning building. Wallace, who was killed, was closing in on the negro, who shot him through the body.

Dismembered by Relic Seekers.

His body fell into the burning debris, but was recovered. Davis, Wallace and Falkner were the men who fired the buildings. Relic seekers cut off the negro's fingers and such parts of the body as could be procured. Three houses were burned in the effort to reach the negro. Several horses were killed in the battle.

Last night it was reported that the sheriff and his brother had no chance to live. So deadly was the negroe's aim that it was possibly an hour before the body of Prout could be recovered. Not a shot was fired by Reynolds that did not tell when those whom he was firing upon were seen. The excitement was intense but there is no fear of an uprising among the negroes.

Fully 2,000 people from Florence and Sheffield were here and every surgeon in the two towns was pressed into service.

DEATH AT A GAME

TERRIBLE DISASTER AT A FOOTBALL GAME IN GLASGOW, SCOTLAND.

21 ARE KILLED AND 250 INJURED

CRUSH OF SPECTATORS CAUSES THE COLLAPSE OF A GRAND STAND.

SEVERAL MORE DEATHS EXPECTED

SCENE THAT WILL NEVER BE FORGOTTEN BY THOSE WHO WITNESSED IT.

Glasgow, April 7.—The casualty lists of the Ibrox Park disaster, when a number of persons were killed or injured by the collapsing of a spectators' stand during the international football match Saturday afternoon between England and Scotland have been completed. They eclipse all the reports and estimates of the casualties which were current Saturday night.

The disaster has resulted in the death of 21 persons and the injury of 250. Nearly 200 of the latter were so seriously hurt that they were taken to infirmaries for operations and treatment. One hundred and fifty of them still remain in the city infirmaries. A large proportion of the injured had limbs broken, bodies crushed and mangled and heads and faces gashed. Several more deaths will undoubtedly result from the most critical cases of fractured skulls. Yesterday the infirmaries were besieged by friends and relatives of and heartrending scenes were witnessed when the names of those who died were posted outside the buildings.

The action of the authorities at Ibrox Park in averting a more general panic by permitting the game to proceed while they encouraged the impression that prevailed among the crowd within the inclosure that the accident was not so serious is now commended. The incongruity of yell of applause mingled with the groans of the struggling sufferers will never be forgotten by those who witnessed the scene at the rear of the terrace.

When the game began 70,000 spectators were on the ground and an immense crowd had gathered outside. Being unable to obtain admittance this crowd broke down some of the barriers and swarmed upon the field, whereupon the police charged and drove the intruders back back upon the terrace and seats, with the result that the railings dividing the crowds were broken and the people were thrown over each other. In the frantic struggle toward the exits the pressure toward the upper portion of the westerly terrace was so great that a hundred feet of the highest part of the structure collapsed under the weight of the crowd driven upon it, throwing a great mass of people to the ground below.

The first seven cars of the train crossed the switch safely, but as the last coach was passing over the switch points the track caught in such a way as to throw it and the Pullman car following off the track and over onto the engine of the freight train. The two cars and the engine were thrown into the ditch. It is said that the switch had been tampered with.

DETAILS OF THE BATTLE AT DOORNBALT FARM DO THEM CREDIT.

GALLANTLY REPULSED THE BOERS

ONE PARTY FIGHTS UNTIL ALL ARE EITHER KILLED OR WOUNDED.

BOTH SIDES LOST HEAVILY

FIGHTING WAS SEVERE AND GENERAL FOR OVER THREE HOURS.

Klerksdorp, Transvaal, April 7.—Details received of the battle at Doornbalt farm March 31, in which the British had 3 officers and 24 men killed and 16 officers and 131 men wounded, while the Boers had 137 men killed or wounded, show that quite 2,000 Boers opened a strong attack from different points with three guns and a pom-pom. This attack was made at a moment when the British had left their luggage in a laager in charge of the Canadian contingent and were galloping across the open plain with the intention of capturing a Boer convoy which had been discovered five miles ahead. The British raced steadily, and having dismounted opened a return fusillade on the Boers.

While the luggage in charge of the Canadians was sent for the British formed a camp and started digging trenches. The shelling of the Boers stompeded the mules and caused confusion, but otherwise it was not very effective, as many of the shells

Failed to Explode.

The Canadians were attacked by strong numbers, but they gallantly repulsed every attempt made by the Boers to break through. One party of the Canadians fought until all were killed or wounded and the last man of his party, although mortally wounded, emptied two bandoliers of cartridges at the enemy and then broke his rifle. The fighting was severe and general for fully three hours, but after the British had intrenched and the guns got into action the forces repelled numerous and determined attacks made under the personal exhortations of the Boer leaders. Toward night the fire gradually ceased and the Boers retired.

The British then telegraphed for aid and further intrenched their camp for the night to await the arrival of Gen. Kitchener, but the Boers made no attempt to renew the attack.

Peace Negotiations Go Slowly.

Kroonstad, Orange River, April 7.—Owing to the great distance separating the members of the Transvaal mission here from Mr. Steyn, the former president of the Orange Free State, and Gen. Delarey, the negotiations between the Boer leaders in South Africa looking toward the conclusion of the war make little progress. It is expected, however, that Mr. Schalkburger and his colleagues on the mission will shortly leave here for a more convenient center from which to conduct the negotiations.

The Boers admit that they lost 137 men, killed or wounded. The action occurred at Doornbalt farm.

FOR BOER WOMEN AND CHILDREN

Fund Raised in Illinois Is Sent to President Roosevelt.

Chicago, April 7.—A certified check for $5,000, drawn to the order of President Roosevelt, was forwarded to the president on March 28 by the committee of citizens which Gov. Yates appointed in December to raise funds for the relief of Boer women and children in the concentration camps of South Africa. Inasmuch as the committee was without satisfactory means of forwarding the money, President Roosevelt was requested to accept the fund and have it forwarded through such channels as he might deem best, to be disbursed for the relief of the sufferers for whom it was intended. A letter from Secretary Hay under date of April 3 has been received by Peter Van Vlissingen, secretary of the Illinois committee, acknowledging the receipt of the check by President Roosevelt, and stating that, as directed by the president, the money had been forwarded to the United States consul general at Cape Town, that being, in the president's opinion, the most expeditious way of transmitting it to its destination. The consular officer at Cape Town, Secretary Hay states, has been directed to distribute the fund in the manner intended by the donors. President Roosevelt and the secretary of state having so readily complied with this first request, Mr. Van Vlissingen announced yesterday that it was now the purpose of the committee to undertake the collection of a much larger sum.

DEALS OUT DEATH

DESPERATE NEGRO IN ALABAMA SUCCESSFULLY RESISTS ARREST.

THREE DEAD; THREE ARE DYING

HOUSES BURNED TO DISLODGE NEGRO FROM HIS HIDING PLACE.

KILLED AND THROWN INTO FIRE

RELIC SEEKERS CUT OFF NEGRO'S FINGERS AND OTHER PARTS OF BODY.

Tuscumbia, Ala., April 7.—Three men are dead, three mortally wounded and four seriously wounded as the result of an attempt by Sheriff Gassaway yesterday to arrest Will Reynolds, a desperate negro. Reynolds was slain in the fight.

All the casualties, except the death of Reynolds himself, are the result of the deadly fire of Reynolds with a 45-caliber Winchester. The negro was in his turn riddled and thrown into a fire.

Sheriff Gassaway went to a negro settlement, "Knardtown," yesterday morning to arrest Will Reynolds for obtaining goods under false pretense. The officer was met by the negro, who opened fire with a Winchester, wounding the sheriff and immediately firing upon the deputy, Will Gassaway, who was some 200 yards away, mortally wounding him.

As soon as possible every man in town who could procure a gun was in the neighborhood, but owing to the location none dared to venture within the open space.

Dynamite Was Procured,

and the house in which the negro was barricaded was fired upon, but with no effect. At 1 o'clock Capt. Simpson, of the Wheeler rifles, arrived with twelve guns and one thousand cartridges, which were distributed among twelve picked men. This company was stationed around the house and riddled it but the negro had taken refuge in the cellar and returned the fire, killing Jones and wounding Finney. Coal oil was then procured and after four hours of hard work the houses adjoining that in which the negro was located were fired by the Wheeler Rifles who had arrived on the scene. The negro took refuge in a shed and opened fire, killing Wallace and wounding Davis, but the people and some militiamen riddled the negro, and the crowd, numbering 1,000, grabbed the body and threw it into the burning building. Wallace, who was killed, was closing in on the negro, who shot him through the body.

Dismembered by Relic Seekers.

His body fell into the burning debris, but was recovered. Davis, Wallace and Falkner were the men who fired the buildings. Relic seekers cut off the negro's fingers and such parts of the body as could be procured. Three houses were burned in the effort to reach the negro. Several horses were killed in the battle.

Last night it was reported that the sheriff and his brother had no chance to live. So deadly was the negroe's aim that it was possibly an hour before the body of Prout could be recovered. Not a shot was fired by Reynolds that did not tell when those whom he was firing upon were seen. The excitement was intense but there is no fear of an uprising among the negroes.

Fully 2,000 people from Florence and Sheffield were here and every surgeon in the two towns was pressed into service.

West Superior, Wis., April 7. — For the first time in years the city of Superior will be able to run without being behind in the payment of its employes and without borrowing money to tide over the last few months of the year, is probable this year. Last year the employes were behind seven and nine months in their salaries, and the indebtedness of the city to the employes has just been settled up by the payment of $120,000.

It is estimated that over 200,000 feet of green pine and other timber was cut and sold off of the reservation the past winter. DEATH AT A GAME

TERRIBLE DISASTER AT A FOOTBALL GAME IN GLASGOW, SCOTLAND.

21 ARE KILLED AND 250 INJURED

CRUSH OF SPECTATORS CAUSES THE COLLAPSE OF A GRAND STAND.

SEVERAL MORE DEATHS EXPECTED

SCENE THAT WILL NEVER BE FORGOTTEN BY THOSE WHO WITNESSED IT.

Glasgow, April 7.—The casualty lists of the Ibrox Park disaster, when a number of persons were killed or injured by the collapsing of a spectators' stand during the international football match Saturday afternoon between England and Scotland have been completed. They eclipse all the reports and estimates of the casualties which were current Saturday night.

The disaster has resulted in the death of 21 persons and the injury of 250. Nearly 200 of the latter were so seriously hurt that they were taken to infirmaries for operations and treatment. One hundred and fifty of them still remain in the city infirmaries. A large proportion of the injured had limbs broken, bodies crushed and mangled and heads and faces gashed. Several more deaths will undoubtedly result from the most critical cases of fractured skulls. Yesterday the infirmaries were besieged by friends and relatives of and heartrending scenes were witnessed when the names of those who died were posted outside the buildings.

The action of the authorities at Ibrox Park in averting a more general panic by permitting the game to proceed while they encouraged the impression that prevailed among the crowd within the inclosure that the accident was not so serious is now commended. The incongruity of yell of applause mingled with the groans of the struggling sufferers will never be forgotten by those who witnessed the scene at the rear of the terrace.

When the game began 70,000 spectators were on the ground and an immense crowd had gathered outside. Being unable to obtain admittance this crowd broke down some of the barriers and swarmed upon the field, whereupon the police charged and drove the intruders back back upon the terrace and seats, with the result that the railings dividing the crowds were broken and the people were thrown over each other. In the frantic struggle toward the exits the pressure toward the upper portion of the westerly terrace was so great that a hundred feet of the highest part of the structure collapsed under the weight of the crowd driven upon it, throwing a great mass of people to the ground below.

Lansing, Mich., April 7.—While an east-bound Grand Trunk passenger train was passing through Millettis, a tank station seven miles west of here early yesterday, the rear coach and the pullman sleeper were thrown off the track. The first seven cars of the train crossed the switch safely, but as the last coach was passing over the switch points the track caught in such a way as to throw it and the Pullman car following off the track and over onto the engine of the freight train. The two cars and the engine were thrown into the ditch. It is said that the switch had been tampered with.

All were masked or had their faces blackened. When Jailer John Jones left the jail for his home several members of the lynching party made him surrender the keys. How the Sections Say It.

The woman from New England buys a "table spread," while her sister from the south buys a "tablecloth." The woman from Nova Scotia orders the servant to "lay the table," while with most of us natives of the United States the command is to "set the table." In the country the hostess says to her guests, "Sit by," when it is time to eat; in town it is "Please sit down." In the city, among swells there is no further invitation than the announcement of the servant that "dinner is served."—Mobile (Ala.) Register.

You Taste With Your Throat.

The idea that the sense of taste has any connection with the throat appears peculiar at first thought. We have been possessed with the notion that the sense of taste lies in the tongue and the palate. We all speak of a fine palate, and many persons express astonishment that they can enjoy a delicacy as well after having had a plate fitted to their mouths by a dentist as they could before they paid a visit to that clever gentleman.

The sense of taste is not confined to the tongue and the palate, but is more widely distributed. You taste also with the epiglottis, that little valve at the base of the tongue, and the larynx, to which the epiglottis acts as an assistant, also takes part in the process. Concerning the palate, it is noteworthy that we taste with the soft part, which is at the back of the mouth, but not with the hard or front palate. That explains the mystery of the dental plate. The tonsils do nothing for the sense of taste, nor does the uvula.

What the Indian Eats.

The typical Indian home of today consists of a mud chinked log shack, a tepee or two, usually a hay barn and sometimes a corral. As a general rule, they live in squalor, yet many Indians possess nice homes and enjoy well cooked meals from neatly set tables. But the ordinary Indian eats meals largely of questionable character. He delights in dog stew and other savory dishes. He has excellent teeth and an envied digestion.

Indian children are shy and close mouthed to strangers, but the squaws are often loquacious. Their doors are always open to visitors. The red man has an aversion for soldiers and frankly tells them that he does not fear them. Although he possesses an excellent constitution, disease finds in the Indian an easy victim.—Detroit Free Press.

"Minne Giggle" Falls.

"Some years ago I visited an old friend of mine in Minneapolis," said a well known Milwaukee railroad man, "and he spent considerable time taking me about to show me the many interesting places in that interesting city. One day he took me out to see the famous Minnehaha falls, and after I had feasted my eyes on this beautiful work of nature he invited me to accompany him down the gulch through which the little stream flows—at least half a mile—and there called my attention to a little cascade that is an exact miniature of Minnehaha falls.

"'What do you call this cascade?' I asked of my friend.

"'We call this Minne Giggle.'"—Milwaukee Sentinel.

The Artist and the Critic.

Sidney Cooper, the English artist, happening one day to visit the Royal academy, where some of his works were on exhibition, while a couple of critics were examining the pictures, strolled up to where they were standing. At that moment the younger of the two critics exclaimed, "Any machine could turn out sheep like that!"

Mr. Cooper put his hand in his pocket, produced his card and, handing it to the newspaper man, said, with gravity, "If you will kindly send that machine to this address when completed, I'll send a check for $1,000 to the institute for decayed journalists!"

Soup by the Pound.

In China liquids are sold by weight and grain by measure. John buys soup by the pound and cloth by the foot. A Chinaman never puts his name outside his shop, but paints instead a motto or a list of his goods on his vertical sign board. Some reassuring remark is frequently added, such as "One word ball." "A child two feet high would not be cheated." Every single article has to be bargained for, and it is usual for the customer to take his own measure and scales with him.

The Heat of Australia.

Australia is the hottest country on record. I have ridden for miles astride the equator, but I have never found heat to compare with this. Out in the country in the dry times there appears to be little more than a sheet of brown paper between you and the lower regions, and the people facetiously say that they have to feed their hens on cracked ice to keep them from laying boiled eggs.—Sydney Telegraph.

Considerate.

Young Husband—Don't you think, darling, that it would spoil the curtains if I should smoke?

Young Wife—You are the best and most considerate husband that ever lived, dear. Of course it would.

Young Husband—Well, then, you'd better take them down.

Censure and Criticism.

Censure and criticism never hurt anybody. If false, they cannot hurt you unless you are wanting in manly character, and if true they show a man his weak points and forewarn him against failure and trouble.—Gladstone.

Consulting the Old Lady.

Old Aunt (despondently)—Well, I shall not be a nuisance to you much longer.

Nephew (reassuringly)—Don't talk like that, aunt. You know you will!—Punch.

How He Spoiled It.

He—I thought you looked charming last night.

She—Oh, now, did you really?

He—Yes. Why, I could hardly believe it was you.—Philadelphia Bulletin.

The Height of Politeness.

Cleverton—Since you have been calling on Miss Pinkerly how have her father and mother treated you?

Dashaway—Splendidly. I haven't even met them.—Judge.

Warning Against Forest and Prairie Fires

Office of State Forest Commissioner.
St. Paul, Minn., March 21, 1901.

Chapter 196 of the General Laws of the State of Minnesota for 1895 (Act of April 18th) constitutes Supervisors of towns, Mayors of cities and presidents of village councils Fire Wardens, and it is made their duty to take precaution to prevent forest and prairie fires, and if they occur, to go and extinguish or control them; and in emergencies to call upon any able-bodied male person, over eighteen years of age, to assist. Reports of such fires with particulars tending to fix responsibility therefor shall be made within reasonable time—usually within a week. The Forest Commissioner is required to provide and sign an abstract (as herein) of the penalties under said law, and it is made the duty of the County Commissioners of each county to cause said abstract to be published in at least three issues of the official paper in their respective counties each year between the 15th of April and 1st of November, and they are hereby instructed to publish this notice entire. Under said law.

The following are liable to a penalty not exceeding $500 or imprisonment in the state prison not over ten years or both:

Any person who maliciously sets or causes to be set on fire any woods, prairie or other combustible material whereby the property of another is destroyed and life is sacrificed.

The following are liable to a penalty not exceeding $100 or imprisonment not exceeding three months.

Any person refusing, without cause, to assist fire wardens in extinguishing forest or prairie fires.

Any fire warden who neglects to perform his duties.

Any person who wilfully, negligently or carelessly sets on fire, or causes to be set on fire, any woods, prairies or other combustible material thereby causing injury to another.

Any person who shall kindle a fire on or dangerously near to forest or prairie land and leave it unquenched, or who shall be a party thereto.

Any person who shall use other than incombustible fire wads for firearms or carry a naked torch, firebrand or other exposed light in or dangerously near to forest land.

Any person who shall wilfully or heedlessly deface, destroy or remove this or any other warning placard posted under the requirements of the above mentioned Act.

Any railroad company wilfully neglecting to provide efficient spark arresters on its engines; or to keep its right of way to the width of 100 feet cleared of combustible material; or which shall fail to comply with other provisions of Section 12 of the above mentioned Act.

The following are liable to a penalty of not less than $5 nor more than $50:

Any railroad employe who wilfully violates the provisions of Section 12 of the above mentioned Act.

Any owner of threshing or other portable steam engine who neglects to have efficient spark arresters, or who shall deposit live coals or hot ashes without extinguishing the same.

His Hope.

"I hope," said the serious man, "that you haven't been betting on the races."

"I hope so, too," said the young man with the red necktie and the restless eye. "I hope I will wake up tomorrow and find out that the whole thing was a wild dream. But there's no use hoping."—Exchange.

Be Sure You're Right.

While it is true that there comes a tide in the affairs of men which, etc., there are so many people every year left stranded high and dry that some caution would seem to be needed about picking out your particular tide.—Syracuse Herald.

Sir Andrew Clark was accustomed to define old age as the period of life at which a man no longer adjusted himself to his environment.

There is no beautifier of complexion or form or behavior like the wish to scatter joy and not pain around you.

When Frogs Are Best.

Frogs' legs are sold in Paris daintily threaded on little willow wands. People buy them for the home table instead of, as is the practice in this country, eating them exclusively in restaurants. They make a most palatable broth for invalids and convalescents, but ordinarily the legs are prepared by removing the skin, rolling them in flour, adding salt, pepper and butter, with a pinch of parsley, and cooking them gently in a frying pan or on the griddle. By Parisians it is considered that the frog is best in the fall of the year, when it is fattest and most delicate. However, large numbers of the batrachians are caught in the spring, when they are said to be more easily captured.—Saturday Evening Post.

Thought It Was Bargain Day.

Mr. Closelist had been out walking. He returned home tired and cross. "Just what I might have expected," he whined. "I gave the only 10 cents I had in my pocket to a beggar, and it started to rain, and I had to walk home. Don't ever talk to me about the rewards of Providence."

"And did you suppose Providence would postpone a shower of rain," his wife asked, "because you gave 10 cents to a beggar? You weren't expecting much for your money, were you?"—New York Commercial Advertiser.

An Aristocratic Grain.

Could plants lay claim to aristocratic position, as representing an old family, rice might safely claim to be of the most ancient pedigree. It is the earliest cereal known. Originally a native of India, it has crossed the ocean and made a home for itself where heat and moist soil could be found. It grows in all warm portions of the globe and furnishes the principal food of nearly one-third of the human race.

We gave away some to a few of our sweet-toothed friends and all wanted more—but didn't get it. R. H. Duntley is the exclusive agent for these candies in St. Hilaire.

Expensive Fire At Crookston.

A disastrous fire occured at Crookston on Saturday night which completely destroyed the immense new barn of John H. Boyd, one of Crookston's leading real estate men. The structure was valued at about $7,000. Some valuable horses were burned to death and a lot of buggies and other goods went up in smoke. There was a lot of emigrant's effects in the building at the time and most of these goods were also destroyed. The barn was built last fall and had accomodations for about 100 head of horses. The loss is absolute as there was no insurance.

Fire insurance is something everybody ought to invest in, whether they have much or little property. The cost is trifling compared to the protection it gives in case of loss.

Signs of spring convey a warning that certain ailments need attention. There isn't anything better for a blood purifier than Imperial Sarsaparilla.

School Gardens.

Scientific gardening is taught in the national schools of Sweden and in the seminaries for the education of national schoolteachers. There is a school garden in nearly every rural school district in the kingdom. The garden is placed near the schoolhouse, and the children receive practical instruction in the cultivation of plants, berries, flowers, herbs and fruits, the management of hotbeds, greenhouses, etc.

A Sidewalk Prescription.

The busy doctor was hurrying down the street when he was stopped by a man noted for his ability to get "sidewalk" advice.

"I am thoroughly worn out and sick and tired. What ought I to take?" asked the man.

"Take a cab," replied the unfeeling doctor.—New York Times.

Some Remarkable Beliefs.

There are naturalists in this day and age who believe that horsehairs will turn to living snakes, that toads will live for thousands of years in the cavity of a rock without food or water; that the barnacle goose was developed from the shellfish of that name and that the bird called sora is a species of winged frog.

A Killer.

Maude—Gaskell thinks he is a regular lady killer.

Esther—I shouldn't wonder. I had to talk with him last evening, and I really thought I should die, he wearied me so.—Boston Transcript.

When an old work horse is given a holiday, he spends it chiefly in looking lonesome.—Atchison Globe.

Contentment is always perched on the round of the ladder just above you. —Chicago News.

The Man Without Reserve.

"He had no reserve," might be written on the tombstone of many a man who has failed in business and in life. Without reserve a man goes to the wall when anything happens to him. Like a baby he is all right as long as nothing comes in collision with him to expose his weakness. With the reserve power of perfect health that comes from drinking "Golden Grain Belt" beer a man is strong enough to stand reverses. As a common phrase expresses it, "he can take his medecine without a murmur." Such men inspire respect and win success. This beer makes strong men because it is pure and refreshing and is brewed from the purest barley malt and hops. Order of your dealer or of Alex. Thompson, Crookston, Minn.

To Build A New School-House.

The local school board had a very busy session last Wednesday evening. One of the principal items of business was the deciding to have a special election to vote on the issuing of bonds to the amount of $5,500 for the purpose of building a new schoolhouse, the present building being too small.

The election of teachers was also held and all the old teachers re elected, except Miss Chesley who made no application. Prof. O'Brien was given an increase of salary of $5 per month.

We are informed that the special election to vote on the bonds will be held on Tuesday, the 22nd Inst.

Peruna Cures Catarrh.

A Beautiful Club Woman's Recovery.

The Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, Ohio

Gentlemen:—"I suffered with pain in my right side for over eight years. Doctors said my liver was affected. My complexion was dark and yellow, I had a bad taste in my mouth, and was tired all the time. I took a great deal of medicine, but nothing seemed to do me any good. I read in the paper of Peruna, and decided to give it a trial. I felt better before the first bottle was gone, and after taking three bottles I was cured, and I have enjoyed perfect health since." LENA HILTON.

Miss Lena Hilton, is President of the Wednesday Whist Club, of Los Angeles.

AS a spring medicine Peruna is a never failing remedy. It cleanses the blood through digestion, and gives tone to the whole system by increasing the nutritive value of the food. "Spring fever," as it is sometimes called, which produces a tired out, sleepy feeling, and inability to do much mental or physical work, is the result of a sluggish digestion.

The great popularity that Peruna has is due to the fact that in all such cases it at once corrects digestive derangements and enriches the blood by purifying this very important source of that vital fluid.

Mrs. J. E. Finn, 83 East High Street Buffalo, N. Y., writes:

"A few years ago I had to give up social life entirely, as my health was completely broken down. The doctor advised a complete change and rest for a year. As this was out of the question for a time, I began to look around for other means of restoring my health.

"I had often heard of Peruna as an excellent tonic, so I bought a bottle to see what it would do for me, and it certainly took hold of my system and rejuvenated it, and in less than two months I was in perfect health, and now when I feel worn out or tired a dose or two of Peruna is all that I need."

MRS. J. E. FINN.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case, and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

IT MUST GO OVER

ST. LOUIS FAIR WILL HAVE TO BE POSTPONED FOR ONE YEAR.

CANNOT GET READY FOR 1903

FOREIGN GOVERNMENTS UNOFFICIALLY ASK FOR FURTHER TIME.

SERIOUS CONDITIONS ARISE

WHICH HAMPER THE ENERGETIC EFFORTS OF THE FAIR MANAGERS.

Chicago, April 7.—John Barrett, commissioner general to Asia for the Louisiana Purchase expo., last night left Chicago for San Francisco en route to the Orient.

As Mr. Barrett had just returned from Washington, where he had access to the diplomatic correspondence with foreign governments on the world's fair matters, and as he has also been in recent conference with the fair officials at St. Louis, the following statement made by him tonight in reference to the reports of a possible postponement of the St. Louis exposition has a special significance:

Foreign Governments Backward.

"The world's fair management in St. Louis has been bending every energy to have the exposition open promptly in 1903, but a grave condition has arisen which it cannot control and for which it is not responsible. Nearly all of the foreign government have unofficially notified the United States government or the world's fair management that it is a physical impossibility for them to be creditably represented at St. Louis in 1903. On the other hand, while a majority of them have accepted for 1903 and will do the best they can, they have informally intimated that if the exposition is postponed they will endeavor to surpass even what they did

At Chicago and Paris.

"As the success of the world's fair as a great international exposition must depend largely on foreign participation, it can be seen that this is a most serious consideration which neither congress nor the exposition officials can overlook. In short, if the world's fair at St. Louis is postponed, it will be done largely in deference to the wishes of foreign nations. For instance, the Japanese government has informally notified me that Japan will welcome postponement and will participate accordingly, because in 1903 the great exposition is to be held at Osaka, which will interfere with a worthy representation at St. Louis, but in 1904 the best of the Osaka exhibits could be brought to St. Louis."

BOLD RATS INVADE A BED.

They Gnaw the Fingers of a Child, Which Is Not Awakened by the Pain.

Baltimore, April 7. — Samuel Schurank, the three-year-old child of [illegible] Schurank of 1506 Canton avenue, was attacked by rodents while asleep in bed beside its mother and the fingers of its right hand were badly gnawed.

The mother is unable to account for the fact that her little boy made no outcry. She was not awakened, however, until the usual hour, about 7 o'clock.

The condition at the house is distressing in the extreme. The place is so overrun by the rodents that the occupants said yesterday they were afraid to go to sleep at any hour. The dwelling is a two-story stone structure and looks as if it had been built in ante-Revolutionary days.

CHARGES AGAINST AN EDITOR.

Rosewater Alleged to Have Violated the Corrupt Practice Act.

Omaha, April 7.—A complaint was filed in the South Omaha police court yesterday by I. J. Dunn, deputy county attorney, against Edward Rosewater, editor of the Omaha Bee, charging him with violating the corrupt practice act during the election of members of the legislature in the fall of 1900.

Mr. Rosewater was an active worker in the senatorial campaign, and the complaint charges that he paid, through no agent, several sums of money to individuals for their support at the polls. There are ten counts in the complaint. Mr. Rosewater voluntarily appeared at police court in answer to the complaint and had May 6 set for the hearing.

DELAY IS PROFITABLE.

Redwood Falls Will Get a Cheap Water Tower in Time.

Redwood Falls, Minnesota, April 7.—Employes of the Chicago Bridge & Iron company have arrived here for the purpose of constructing a new steel water tower for this city, to cost $6,000, with a capacity of 100,000 gallons. The tower was to have been completed Feb. 1, but the company has been delayed in getting its material here. The city imposes a fine of nearly $100 a month on the company for each month after Feb. 1 that the company allows to elapse before the tower is completed.

RUNNING FIGHT WITH ROBBERS.

Men Who Robbed a Bank Escape From a Posse.

St. Joseph, Mo., April 7.—The Ruskin, Neb., bank robbers, four in number, who secured $15,000 Saturday morning, were chased yesterday by a posse of farmers for thirty miles until the robbers crossed into Kansas and separated near Belleville. A running fire was kept up for several miles. Bloodhounds were put on the trail of the bandits but lost it near Scandia.

FOUR BURNED TO DEATH.

House Destroyed While the Inmates Slept.

Boyne City, Mich., April 7. — Last evening the frame dwelling of Dr. Boyne, occupied by two families, was totally destroyed by fire and four persons burned to death. At the time the fire broke out all the persons in the house were upstairs asleep. The crackling of the fire awakened the sleepers and only one person escaped.

PULLED GUN ON LOUBET.

Weak-Minded Man Causes a Stir in Paris.

Paris, April 7.—While President Loubet was driving to the Elysee palace yesterday morning a man named Sejourne, carrying a revolver, approached his carriage and exclaimed: "I demand justice." Sejourne was immediately arrested. He appears to be weak-minded.

Advertisements of get-rich-quick schemes are doubly interested in those who have nothing to invest.

NEW YORK GOES DRY.

Police Make an Effort to Close Up Saloons.

New York, April 7.—The police and the liquor dealers gave Greater New York a "dry" Sunday. Though there were degrees of dryness, so to speak, in different sections of the metropolis, the day has had no equal in the suspension of the liquor traffic since five years ago when Supt. Thomas F. Byrnes tightly closed the saloons one memorable Sunday. On that occasion those seeking spirituous refreshments were compelled to resort to places outside of Chief Byrnes' sphere of influence. His task, however, is said to have been easier than that which confronted the police this time, for he had no Raines law hotels with their sandwiches to contend with. These hotels must be taken into consideration, therefore, when the word "dry" is used in connection with the events of Sunday, for the man who had cash to buy a sandwich and a drink had small difficulty in slacking his thirst. Few liquor dealers had the temerity to keep open and serve drinks alone, and of those who did the majority were invited to visit the nearest police station, there to remain until bondsmen appeared.

AN IMPULSE TO GOOD FEELING.

Emperor William Discusses Cecil Rhodes' Will.

Berlin, April 7.—"This bequest shows the wide reach of Cecil Rhodes' mind and his vision of the future," said Emperor William to Dr. von Lucanus, the chief of his majesty's civil cabinet, who alluded to the will of Mr. Rhodes during an audience with the emperor yesterday morning. It was then pointed out to his majesty that Mr. Rhodes, while leaving precise directions as to the selection of the beneficiaries of the Rhodes scholarships in other countries, the selection of the beneficiaries of the fifteen scholarships set aside for Germans had been left to the discretion of Emperor William. The bequests of Mr. Rhodes are regarded at court as constituting an enduring impulse to good feeling between Germany, Great Britain and the United States and the colonies of these countries and as giving more substance to the grouping of the Teutonic powers.

BRIBERS RULE GREAT CITY.

Grand Jury in St. Louis Unearths Facts of Widespread Corruption.

St. Louis, April 7.—Startling charges are made by the February grand jury, which has been investigating bribery and official corruption in the municipal assembly, in its final report to Judge O'Neil Ryan in the criminal court. The report declares that the people of St. Louis have but a vague conception of the extent to which corruption and venality have for the past ten years existed among the sworn officers and public servants. It finds the true condition of affairs "almost too appalling for belief." A tribute is paid to Joseph W. Folk, the circuit attorney under whose leadership the investigation is being made.

WHITELAW REID TO PAY.

Special Ambassador and Suite to Foot Own Bills.

Washington, April 7.—Whitelaw Reid and the members of his special embassy to the coronation of King Edward VII. have decided to pay their expenses out of their own pockets. When Mr. Reid went to London as the special ambassador of the United States to the diamond jubilee of Queen Victoria he was provided with an expense fund of $10,000, appropriated by congress. Four thousand dollars of this amount was turned back into the treasury by Mr. Reid, who, according to reliable information, spent $20,000 out of his private purse to keep up the dignity of the American representative.

SOME WONDERFUL CROPS IN WESTERN CANADA.

The Territorial Government Reports Show Results Beyond Belief.

Regina, Assiniboia, Canada, January 10th.—At the Agricultural Statistics Branch of the Department of Agriculture for the Territories, reports are now being received from grain threshers throughout the Territories, for statistical purposes. The reports are somewhat delayed this year, owing to the extensive crop and the delay in getting it threshed. The Department of Agriculture is leading the way in a new departure, with regard to the collection of crop statistics. In the older provinces, crop estimates are based entirely on the opinion of persons interested in the grain business who ought to be, and no doubt are, well posted upon the probable yields. Still the reports are simply a matter of opinion, in which a mistake may easily be made. The Territorial Department, however, has adopted the system of returns of crops actually threshed, upon which to base their reports. The accuracy of the reports cannot, therefore, be gainsaid, for they represent a compilation of actual threshing results. In this connection, it might be mentioned that the Department is organizing a system of growing crop returns, which will be in operation next summer. The information thus obtained, with estimated acreage, will be available for business men, banks, railway companies, and other interests which have to discount the future in making provision for the conduct of their business.

The crop reports already to hand show some remarkable cases of abnormal development. In the Regina district, many returns are given of crops of wheat running from 40 to 45 bushels to the acre.

J. A. Snell, of Yorkton, threshed 28,000 bushels of oats from 450 acres, an average of 63 bushels per acre for a large acreage.

W. R. Motherwell, of Abernethy, threshed 2,650 bushels of wheat from a 50-acre field, an average of 53 bushels per acre.

In the Edmonton district, T. T. Hutchings threshed 728 bushels of wheat from a ten-acre plot, an average of nearly 73 bushels per acre.

S. Norman threshed 6,950 bushels of oats from 60 acres of land, an average of 116 bushels per acre.

The publication of the actual yields or grain threshed will likely open the eyes of the people to the great capabilities of the Western Canadian prairies.

Stage Divinities on China Plates.

China is being brought up to date in an interesting fashion on modern Parisian dinner tables. The China service has twelve covers, which have a portrait of a different feminine celebrity of the Parisian stage on each plate or dish. Sarah is displayed in the gorgeous imperial vestments of Theodora, Rejane as a fairy, Cleo de Merode as dancing an eighteenth century step, and Bartet in the part of the patient Griselda.—New York Herald.

In the Wild West.

Everybody seemed to avoid the man.

"What's the matter?" asked the stranger from the East.

"He is lacking in public spirit," was the scornful reply.

"How is that?" asked the stranger.

"Oh, he doesn't care anything for the general welfare or the enjoyment of the community. Only a mean man would spoil a lynching after a dull season when the boys were just dying for a bit of sport.

"Did he do that?"

"Sure! Everything was all framed up right, and we had the rope on him, when the darned mean critter up and proved that he wasn't the man we wanted, and we had to let him go. The boys'll never forgive him for that."—Elliott Fowler, in the Brooklyn Eagle.

Threw His Canes Away.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., April 7th—Mr C. L. Smith of 309 Anne street, the secretary of the Trades Council, has written this startling statement for publication:

"I feel it my duty to make public the facts of my recent illness and recovery. I was very sick and sore, and had to walk with the aid of two canes. It was a very painful attack, but I don't know what it was. Some said it was Lumbago, and others that it was Sciatica or Rheumatism.

"I was told to take Dodd's Kidney Pills, and began a treatment. After I had used one box I could walk with one cane, and after two boxes were used I could walk without any help. I kept on, and three boxes cured me completely.

"I am now well and happy, without a pain or an ache, and I can very truly say that Dodd's Kidney Pills are worthy of my greatest praise."

'Twixt the Cup and the Lip.

Director W. M. R. French, of the Art Institute of Chicago, has been making a special effort lately to increase the endowment of that institution and to add to its equipments. There was a wealthy banker whom he relied upon to start his subscription list with from $1,000 to $5,000. The slip 'twixt the cup and the lip was unforeseen. In front of the art institute is a modest tablet of bronze, bearing the name of the institution, the letters being of that intensely artistic and peculiarly idiotic design which ignores the existence of a "u" in the English language. So the "Institute" is spelled in capitals with a pointed "V," "INSTITVTE." When Director French approached the banker, he received this answer:

"I've no money to waste on an concern that spells 'Institute' with a 'v.'"—New York Times.

The war department has decided to withhold from publication the name of the officer selected to inquire into the actual conditions at Port Chalmette, La., whence animals and supplies are being shipped to the British army in South Africa. It is felt that the officer's purpose might be thwarted by publicity at this stage.

Maj. Gen. W. R. Shafter, retired, has agreed to accept the Republican nomination for governor of California should it be tendered him. There is a strong feeling among many influential Republicans against the renomination of Gov. Gage, and if this opposition unites on Shafter there is good hope of his nomination.

BELGIANS SHOCKED

BLOODY REPRESSION OF DISORDERS CAUSES PAINFUL IMPRESSION.

BALL CARTRIDGES ARE USED

FOR THE FIRST TIME THE POLICE ARE IN DEADLY EARNEST.

CITY'S GAY ASPECT ON SUNDAY

AUTHORITIES ARE ANTICIPATING MORE TROUBLE WHEN STRIKE IS ORDERED.

Brussels, April 14. — The bloody repression of the disorders of Saturday evening has created a painful impression among all classes here, although it is appreciated that the majority of the victims of the encounters do not belong to the better class of workmen. Saturday for the first time the police really fired their rifles loaded with ball cartridges. Previous to that time they had used their swords and their revolvers, the latter being usually loaded with blank cartridges. Saturday's rioters were composed of the dregs of the population, with a sprinkling of what is called the young socialistic guard, composed of mere boys, with little regard for the orders of F. Van der Velde, a member of the chamber of deputies, and the leader of the Socialist movement in Belgium and the Socialist committee. The mob was mainly composed of the rough population of the quarter, who jeered and reviled the police when they were forced along the streets by the cordons of officers. Serious troubles began when a number of roughs from a safe distance, fired revolvers in the direction of the cordons. The gendarmes then Charged With Drawn Swords.

After firing at the crowd with revolvers loaded with blank cartridges they were greeted with a hail of missiles, such as stones, bottles and heavy iron rivets. This happened in several streets. It was worse in the Rue Haute, where the occupants of the houses rained missiles upon the heads of the gendarmes. An officer of the gendarmes then shouted to the crowd to disperse. No notice was taken of this order. Then for the first time in many years the gendarmes fired their Mauser carbines, loaded with what are called strike cartridges, which contain a ball, but a minor charge of powder. The gendarmes fired only one volley, but when the mob scattered several bodies were lying on the ground. Two were mortally wounded and died while being conveyed to the hospitals. It is impossible to ascertain the exact number of the victims of Saturday's rioting. Many who were slightly wounded had their wounds dressed in pharmacies or went home. The doctor of the hospital of St. Pierre, however, told a representative of the Associated Press that three rioters had died in the hospital and another one there was believed to be Mortally Injured.

Thirty others who are badly hurt were received at the hospital Saturday night. A doctor who was returning home after having visited a patient, was caught between two bodies of charging gendarmes and had his nose cut off with a sword. A woman was also among the wounded. Among those killed was the assistant secretary of the jewelers' union. Four policemen are missing.

From the gay aspect of the city yesterday no one would suspect the bloody scenes which were enacted Saturday. The inhabitants of Brussels took advantage of the beautiful weather to promenade along the spacious boulevards and terraces. The cafes were crowded with holidaymakers and a considerable crowd visited the quarter where the riots occurred. But except for a furled red flag tied with crape over the Maison du Peuple, nothing was visible to recall the events of Saturday evening. In the same square where the cavalry charged Saturday, yesterday a dozen workmen in their shirt sleeves were playing a Flemish game of ball.

No Revisionist demonstrations have occurred and in order to avoid collisions between the strikers and the police the Socialist committee has countermanded the orders for the monster meeting which it was intended to hold to-day in the industrial suburb of Molenbeek St. Jean. The authorities are anticipating to-day with anxiety as the Socialist committee has decided to order a general strike in Brussels and its environments.

MURDER AND ROBBERY.

Wealthy Farmer Killed and His House Ransacked.

Uniontown, Pa., April 14.—Alfred J. Jones, a wealthy farmer and uncle of District Attorney Jones, was murdered and his house robbed near Gans Saturday night by three burglars. A voice inquiring the way to the railroad about 9 o'clock attracted Jones to the door and as he opened it he saw three men who quietly slipped up. While Jones was trying to push the door shut one of the burglars reached around the door with his revolver and fired at Jones. He fell to the floor at the first shot and the burglars had everything their own way. Two sisters who lived with Jones were locked in the kitchen and guarded by one of the men while two went to the room where Jones kept his chest. The heavy chest was broken open and everything of value taken.

Snow Storm in Nebraska.

Omaha, April 14. — A snowstorm which set in early yesterday in Western Nebraska continued a greater part of the day and in a number of counties fell to a depth of several inches. At Kimball six inches fell.

Big Fire in Brooklyn.

New York, April 14.—Fire in Brooklyn destroyed the furniture factory of Masel & Huebner and the pipe foundry of David Binns. Several frame tenements near-by were also burned. The loss is estimated at $100,000.

MILES MUST GO.

Enforced Retirement of the General Is a Certainty.

Washington, April 14.—The issues are fairly joined between the lieutenant general and the secretary of war. The troubles which began long ago under the Cleveland administration have finally reached so critical a stage that the compulsory retirement of Gen. Miles at an early date is an open secret and is not denied at the White House. In explanation of President Roosevelt's position one of his close friends, who unquestionably speaks by authority, says: "The question is not a personal one between Gen. Miles and Secretary Root. At present Secretary Root has on his shoulders a heavier burden than any other member of the administration. No man less strong could carry it at all; and now, at the very time when he requires the most loyal support of every subordinate who wishes well to the army and the nation, he has to spend much of his strength in meeting the opposition of the commanding general. If Gen. Miles is retired it will be simply because after patient trial President Roosevelt feels that on the highest ethical grounds his retention would work grave and lasting injustice to the army as a whole.

DEATH COMES TO TALMAGE.

Eminent Presbyterian Divine Dies at His Home in Washington.

Washington, April 14.—The Rev. T. DeWitt Talmadge, the noted Presbyterian divine, died at 9 o'clock Saturday night at his residence in this city. It had been evident for some days that there was no hope of recovery and the attending physicians so informed the family. The patient gradually grew weaker until life passed away so quietly that even the members of the family, all of whom were watching at the bedside, hardly knew that it had gone. The immediate cause of death was inflammation of the brain. Dr. Talmage was in poor health when he left Washington six weeks ago for a vacation and rest in Mexico. He was then suffering from influenza and serious catarrhal conditions. Since his return to Washington some time ago he had been quite ill. Until Thursday, however, fears for his death were not entertained. The last rational words uttered by Dr. Talmage were on the day preceding the marriage of his daughter, when he said: "Of course I know you, Maud." Since then he had been unconscious.

MUST GET RID OF THE FRIARS.

But No Diplomatic Relations Will Be Made at Rome.

Washington, April 14.—In administration circles in Washington there has been some amusement over the talk raised over the so-called mission to Rome. The facts are that Gov. Taft has impressed very strongly upon the president and the secretary of war that the question of getting rid of the friars was of vital consequence to peace in the Philippines, and ~~that to accomplish~~ this it was necessary to deal directly with the head of the corporation involved, Rome. After much consideration it was decided that Gov. Taft should stop at Rome on his way from the Philippines to consult with the church authorities and see if it would not be possible to reach some agreement on behalf of the Philippine government. There would be nothing of any kind or shape in the matter which would suggest anything in the way of diplomatic Relations. It would be purely a business transaction.

POSTPONE EXPOSITION.

Official Announcement Expected in a Few Days.

Washington, April 14.—The Louisiana Purchase exposition is to be postponed until 1904. Announcement to this effect will be made within the next fifteen days. This is a statement made by John M. Allen, after a conference with Former Senator Thomas Carter, chairman of the National commission for the fair, who reached Washington Saturday, direct from St. Louis, where he conferred with the officials of the exposition company. It is believed here that formal announcement will be made shortly after the passage of the sundry civil appropriation bill, which is under consideration in the senate committee on appropriations. The bill carries an appropriation of more than $1,000,000 for the fair. It already has passed the house of representatives.

JEWELER SHOOTS HIMSELF.

Worried Over Finances and a Police Investigation.

Youngstown, Ohio, April 14.—Max M. Rollins, one of the most prominent jewelers in the city, committed suicide by shooting himself. He was despondent over money matters, and the fact that the Cleveland police were investigating the fact that he once had in his possession a $200 diamond brooch stolen from Ferris B. Newman of Cleveland. After the robbery there Rollins went into the wholesale jewelry store where he trades and asked to have the brooch cleaned. It was recognized as the one made by that firm and stolen from Newman. Rollins claimed that it had been given him to be cleaned and that he returned it. He has resided in this city for thirty years, and not a person believes but that his story is true.

SERIOUS SHOOTING AFFRAY.

One Man Fatally and Another Seriously Wounded.

Carbondale, Ill., April 14.—A shooting affray occurred yesterday at Murphysboro in which Zeke Morgan was fatally and Henry Grogan seriously wounded. Zeke and John Morgan had gone to the house of a woman whom Grogan was visiting and demanded admission. They were met at the door by Grogan, who refused to let them in. Arguments followed and the three men drew weapons and began firing. Both of the wounded men will probably die.

Steers Bring High Price.

Huron, S. D., April 14.—A day or two since Charles Miner of this county sold fifty-two corn-fed steers raised on his ranch north of this city for $5,000, an average of about $98 each. The products of Mr. Miner's farm the past year have brought $9,000.

Charged With Embezzlement.

Omaha, April 14.—Martin S. Rowley, head timekeeper for the Armour Packing company at South Omaha, was arrested early yesterday, charged with the embezzlement of $4,800.

BRITISH EXPECTATIONS AROUSED BY SEVERAL IMPORTANT EVENTS.

CABINET IN MIDNIGHT SESSION

IMPORTANT DISPATCHES PASS BETWEEN KITCHENER AND LONDON.

UNUSUAL SUNDAY ACTIVITY

CHAMBERLAIN CLOSETED WITH KING EDWARD FOR OVER TWO HOURS.

London, April 14. — The announcement of the presence at Pretoria of the Orange Free State and Transvaal leaders and generals who have been at Klerksdorp considering terms of peace, has caused a decided increase in the hopefulness of the public concerning the possibilities of peace. The expectations aroused by the conference at Pretoria have been further heightened by the movements of Mr. Chamberlain, the colonial secretary, and other members of the cabinet in London and evidences that important dispatches are passing between Lord Kitchener and the government. A conference of members of the cabinet was held Saturday night at midnight in Mr. Chamberlain's house. Mr. Chamberlain, Mr. Brodrick, the war secretary; Sir Michael Hicks-Beach, the chancellor of the exchequer, and the duke of Devonshire, president of the council, were present. The Conference Terminated

at 1 o'clock yesterday morning and yesterday Mr. Chamberlain and several of the colonial officials were at their offices. Messengers passed between them and Sir Michael Hicks-Beach at his residence. At 1:30 yesterday afternoon Mr. Chamberlain drove to the Buckingham palace and remained with King Edward for two hours. During the afternoon messengers carried dispatches from the foreign office to Lord Salisbury, who, with Mr. Balfour, the government leader in the house of commons, was at Hatfield house. These outward signs of Sunday activity have not been supplemented with any authentic official statement. The thus far has been whether the peace negotiations would affect the government's financial proposals which promise to be submitted to parliament today. The fact that Sir Michael Hicks-Beach was engaged in his office nearly all day yesterday is taken in some quarters to indicate a modification of the budget statement. There appears to be no doubt that the Boer leaders have communicated the results of their deliberations to Lord Kitchener. Attempts will be made in parliament today to draw out what information the government has on the South African situation and to learn its intentions, but it is not expected that the government can forecast the probable outcome of the negotiations. Whatever instructions have been sent to Lord Kitchener are believed to be only provisional in character.

Question Most Discussed

GREEKS FEAR BOERS.

Emigrants Refuse to Embark at Havre, Fearing They Would Be Taken to Africa.

Paris, April 14.—Eight hundred Greek emigrants, who had been booked to sail from Havre Saturday on the steamship La Gascogne, refused when at the docks to embark. They said they were convinced that the steamship had been chartered by the British government to convey them to South Africa, where they would be compelled to fight the Boers. The Greek consul intervened and persuaded most of the emigrants to go on board, but a number of them persisted in demanding the return of their passage money.

The troops surrounded the spot and demanded the surrender of the brigands, who replied with a fusillade, which was returned by the Turks until all the occupants of the tower were dead.

HINGES ON A BROKEN RIB.

Supreme Court Will Decide an Interesting Insurance Case.

Bismarck, N. D., April 14.—An interesting insurance case has been argued before the supreme court, that of Thompson vs. The Travelers Insurance Company, from Valley City. The suit is brought by Mrs. Thompson to collect on a policy of insurance held by her husband. When he applied for the insurance he stated in his application that he was suffering from a broken rib. Notwithstanding this the policy was issued and his premium accepted. Two weeks after this he died as a result of the broken rib. A clause in the policy of the company provided that if the insured was not in good health when the policy was delivered, it should be void. The plaintiffs claim this clause was waived by the issuance of the policy and the acceptance of the premium.

He had many times intimated to friends that he would end his life. His body was found in shallow water on the shore of Fountain lake. He had left his overcoat on the shore and deliberately walked out a few feet and laid down and drowned. Mr. Fobes had been county treasurer here three terms, was a prominent Mason and was prominent in business some years ago.

PATRIOTS IN A FIGHT.

Dispute as to Which Is the Better State to Be Born In, Ohio or Indiana, the Cause of Battle.

Duluth, Minn., April 14.—A stabbing affray occurred at Swan River last night, and as a result John McDonald is lying in a serious condition, with a cut over the heart, and his wrist gashed. The stabbing was done by Ed Wilkinson, a negro. Both men were employed as section hands on the Eastern Minnesota railway. They got into a dispute as to whether Ohio or Indiana was the better state in which to live. The negro hailed from the Hoosier commonwealth, and emphatically expressed the opinion that it was a better state than Ohio. McDonald, who is a Buckeye, averred that his own state was "it" when came to being a real place to be born in.

Both occupants were injured, but not fatally. They were thrown some distance, and with such force that Firehammer's body broke down a fence it came in contact with. He is severely cut and bruised. Miss Holliday escaped with a broken arm and slight bruises. The horse was killed and the buggy was completely demolished.

DULUTH'S NEWEST SENSATION.

Starvation, Filth, Vermine and Even Work Figure in Affidavits Made by Former Patients.

Duluth, Minn., April 14.—Quite a sensation has been produced here by affidavits made by persons who have been detained at the Duluth pest house. Starvation, filth, vermin and general neglect are charged. It is alleged that medicine has been wanting for days at a time. The patients claim they are obliged to do all their own work, except cooking, and often have to assist at kitchen work. All are required to pay for their expenses. One patient who refused to work says that he was threatened with detention until he did a day's work.

FIGHT BEEF TRUST

FEDERAL DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE IS QUIETLY INVESTIGATING.

THE LAW MUST BE EXECUTED

ATTORNEY GENERAL SATISFIED PACKERS VIOLATE ANTI-TRUST LAW.

HOWL ABOUT INCREASED PRICES

CHICAGO PACKERS WILL BE PROCEEDED AGAINST IN FEDERAL COURTS.

Washington, April 14. — The department of justice has been quietly conducting an investigation into the methods of the Chicago packers to determine whether they are in conflict with the Sherman anti-trust law, and to-day Attorney General Knox will send a communication to Congressman Ray, chairman of the judiciary committee of the house, giving the information called for in the Thayer resolution introduced last week and now before that committee.

The attorney general will inform congress that the department of justice has already instituted an investigation into the methods of the so-called beef trust. It cannot be stated what information that letter will contain regarding the result of the investigation, but the letter has been written and to-day will reach Chairman Ray. The revelations concerning the methods of the railroads in granting rebates to the Chicago packers, of the Interstate commerce commission in Chicago, suggested the further investigation as to the methods of the packers, and it is said that this investigation satisfied the attorney general that the packers had violated the anti-trust law. He has consulted with the president, and the administration takes the same attitude toward the beef trust that it does toward the railroad trust.

Brought Out by the Hearings

The law must be executed, and if the packers have an agreement by which they interfere with commerce to control prices, not only of dressed meat, but also of cattle, they will be proceeded against in the federal courts. The president insists that the law must be executed without favor.

There has been loud complaint from Eastern cities against the beef trust. New York and Philadelphia people have been particularly agitated over the increased price of Chicago beef.

What are believed to be bloodstains were found on his trousers. These, Vaughn says, came from a cut finger. Vaughn's father died a few days ago and it is believed he left the bulk of his estate to the two women.

DOUBLED THE COLLECTION

A Scotchman's Scheme For Increasing the Church Contribution.

In a small town in England there is a rich congregation which is not characterized by lavish liberality. Time after time the minister had vainly appealed to his people to contribute more generously to the funds of the church. The members would indeed give something, but it was nearly always the smallest silver coin of the realm that was placed on the plate. A shrewd Scotchman who had recently come to the place and joined the church was not long in noticing this state of affairs, and a remedy soon suggested itself to his practical mind.

"I'll tell you what," he said to one of the officials, "if you mak' me treasurer I'll engage to double the collection in three months."

His offer was promptly accepted, and sure enough, the collections began to increase until by the time he had stated they were nearly twice as much as formerly.

"How have you managed it, Mr Sandyman?" said the pastor to him one day.

"It's a great secret," returned the canny Scot, "but I'll tell you in confidence. The folk, I saw, mostly gave threepenny bits. Week when I got the money every Sabbath morning I carefully picked oot the sma' coins and put them by. Noo, as there's a limited number of threepenny pieces in a little place like this and as I have maist o' them at present under lock and key, the folk maun give saxpences at least instead. Sae that's the way the collections are doubled."—Pearson's.

Diamond Cutters.

Speaking of women in the jewelry business, a diamond merchant said:

"In other branches of the jewelry trade than diamond cutting women have made some unqualified successes. Not one of Eve's daughters, from royalty down, I should say, that isn't an artist in the wearing of diamonds. Many are well versed in the tricks of buying and selling them, while others give excellent satisfaction in polishing, setting them and preparing them for the market.

"But when it comes to the real cutting of the stones they lack the patience, judgment and steadiness of nerve which constitute the expert's stock in trade. It would seem that diamonds have the same effect upon the woman who wishes to shape them that they do on the girl who sees one of them sparkling in her new engagement ring—puts her in a tremor of excitement; hence diamond cutters are invariably men."

Kruger and the Queen's Ball.

The following letter was written by the private secretary of President Kruger of the Transvaal in reply to an invitation from Johannesburg to attend a ball given in 1891 in celebration of Queen Victoria's birthday:

"In reply to your favor of the 12th inst. requesting me to ask his honor, the state president, to consent to the making use of his name as patron on the occasion of a ball to be given at Johannesburg on the 20th inst., I have been instructed to inform you that whereas his honor considers a ball as Baal's service, for which reasons the Lord ordered Moses to kill all offenders, whereas such is consequently contrary to his honor's principles, his honor cannot consent to the misuse of his name in connection with such a ball."

A Strange Feasting Custom.

There was a strange custom in the Isle of Lewis when the people used to gather to the church of St. Mulvay at night, each family bringing provisions and each family furnishing a peck of malt, which was brewed into ale. One who was chosen for the purpose waded into the sea up to his middle and poured out a cup of ale, calling on a sea god called Shony to favor the people through the coming year. The people, after seeing the ceremony performed, returned to the church and then went to the fields to spend the rest of the night in revelry.—London Standard.

Books With Leaves Uncut.

A book the leaves of which are uncut possesses no value of an intrinsic character beyond one that is cut, but really less. For that matter, if it is to remain uncut, it is as valueless as it is useless. There are book collectors, however, who place a premium upon books with uncut leaves and so commend them in their advertisements and circulars. There are persons who load certain shelves in their libraries with uncut books. Of course they are not for use and are not used and are valueless except for keeping.

WHAT MOVED THE DOG?

A Remarkable Story of Canine Intelligence and Affection.

Among the tales told of the intelligence and affection of our canine friends by Mrs. Sarah K. Bolton in her book, "Our Devoted Friend, the Dog," is the story of Dan, a deerhound owned by Mr. L. C. Meachamp of Homer, La.

Mr. Meachamp was one day going on a squirrel hunt and, not wishing Dan to accompany him, tied the dog to a post by a rope. Dan whined and begged, but finding his master obdurate he at last lay down quietly before his kennel.

It was growing dusk and time for the hunter to return, when Mrs. Meachamp was suddenly disturbed by the whining and barking of the dog, who had been quiet all day up to that time. She spoke to the dog, but instead of being pacified at this attention he redoubled his exertions and broke the rope which held him. Then he bounded away, over the fence and into the woods.

He was gone perhaps half an hour when he came running back, panting and almost breathless, with his master's hat in his mouth.

Mrs. Meachamp became at once alarmed, and, calling her son, they set off to find the missing man, Dan all the time bounding ahead and leading the way. At length they came upon Mr. Meachamp lying helpless in the woods, where he had fallen into a little ditch and broken his leg.

The accident happened, as nearly as could be reckoned, at the moment when the dog began to show his uneasiness. That he should have had knowledge of the accident seems incredible, but his master firmly believes that he did know it and that it was because he knew it that he was so anxious to get away.

Swallowing Abilities of Snakes.

The jaws of the chicken snake, says a Texan, are hung on hinges that can be taken apart or displaced for the time being, as the case may be, and an entire Texas cottontail rabbit can be persuaded to enter, head and all, with little effort, and the body, being made of india rubberlike material and very stretchable, the kicking little animal soon finds a lodgment in the stomach. His snakeship then carefully resets his jaws so that his mouth assumes its normal size and blissfully reposes for the succeeding six hours. The powerful gastric juice does the balance, and no Texan can testify that he ever heard a chicken snake suffering from indigestion or chronic dyspepsia. The capture and digestion of chickens, song birds, turkey eggs and rats constitute simple pastime to the chicken snake and do not call for a six hour layoff in feeding time.

A Remarkable Sentence.

The Latin sentence, "Sator arepo tenet opera rotas," which is, it must be admitted, pretty bad Latin, is a curiosity nevertheless. It can be freely translated as "I cease from my work; the sower will wear away his wheels." Its fine oddities are these:

It spells the same backward as forward.

The first letter of each word spells the first word.

The same may be said of the second, third, fourth and fifth letters.

The last letters, read backward, spell the first word, the next to the last the second word, and so on throughout.

There are just as many letters in each word as there are words in the sentence.

Her Good Business Head.

"You say she is a good business woman?"

"Oh, splendid, incomparable. She lets absolutely nothing drive business out of her head. Why, just before Harold started for Europe he proposed to her by letter and asked her to telegraph her answer."

"Well?"

"Well, most people would have telegraphed 'Yes' or 'No,' but she had enough of a business head to wire, 'It affords me great pleasure to say yes to you,' thus preventing the telegraph company from getting any advantage of her in charging for a ten word message."—Brooklyn Eagle.

A Corn Cure

To cure corns get a little gutta percha tissue from a druggist, cut it into strips and then wind a piece round the corn, which must first be moistened with oil. See that the edges of the tissue are as even as possible, and when you have wound it round wet the inside of the end with spirits of turpentine. This will cause it to stick firmly if you press it down. With a feather dipped in turpentine touch the edges of the tissue, and they will unite. Leave for four days, then take off the dressing, and you will be able to remove the corn with the back of a penknife.

The Monocle Is Harmful.

No sensible person will ever wear a single eyeglass unless he is blind of one eye. Its use means that one eye is neither employed nor unemployed, but is engaged in ceaseless though no doubt unconscious efforts to see as much as its more favored fellow. This straining is as harmful as anything could well be and cannot fail to lead to the gravest results.

One or the Other.

"What do you think of that wheel?" asked Sprockets, whose bicycle had been in a collision.

"I think it ought to be re-tired or retired," replied Dinwiddie.—Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph.

THE WORD PARADISE.

Its Earliest Meaning Was an Inclosed Pleasure Ground.

The earliest meaning of the word paradise appears to have been a walled in pleasure ground. In the Hebrew it was "perdes," in the Persian "firdus," and from one or other of these the Greeks appear to have derived the word "paradeisos," from which we get our own word. We also know that the ancient monarchs of Chaldea and Assyria and also of Egypt constructed vast inclosures of forest land for the preservation of wild animals kept for hunting purposes, and these were also called paradises. Thus, the historical meaning of the word comes to this: A space protected from all incursion from the outer world, in which those who were privileged to enter were able to indulge in such pleasures as pleased their fancy.

It is easy to see the translation from the material to the spiritual meaning, paradise in the latter sense meaning the place of the elect or chosen. This is strikingly borne out by the fact that the favorite battlecry of the Moslems, whose firm belief it is that those who die fighting go straight to heaven, was always "Fight! Fight! Paradise! Paradise!" And the strong probability is that they got the word from the Persian campaigns of the eighth century. The use of the word in its present form in the New Testament is of Greek origin, and its description as applied to the garden of Eden is probably of Hebrew origin, dating from the period of the captivity.

A Forgotten Statesman.

Why is it that Oliver Ellsworth has received so little attention from biographers and historians? asks Frank Gaylord Cook in The Atlantic. He was not born in Massachusetts or Virginia, in Connecticut, like Pennsylvania, the historic field has been meagerly tilled. Moreover, the dramatic and important quality of his work has been perceived only through the perspective of subsequent years. To negotiate an unpopular convention for a party just retiring from office in defeat and ignominy is not conducive to immediate fame.

Nevertheless he has not been wholly overlooked by subsequent statesmen. Webster said of him: "For strength of reason, for sagacity, wisdom and sound good sense in the conduct of affairs, for moderation of temper and general ability, it may be doubted if New England has yet produced his superior."

What he said as chief justice of the United States to the grand jury at Savannah in 1796 was the aim of his life. "So let us rear an empire sacred to the rights of men and commend a government of reason to the nations of the earth."

The Now Engagement Ring.

According to the smart people the favorite engagement ring of the day is a pear-shaped stone, preferable a diamond, the setting almost invisible, the circlet very thin. If a colored ring is chosen instead of a diamond, the accomidating jeweler will surround it with the tiniest of diamonds, making a brilliant line of white fire. The favorite drink of the people is "Golden Grain Belt" beer. Brewed from the purest barley malt and hops, it is refreshing and delicious. Order of your nearest dealer or be supplied by Alex. "Whenever the cold weather sets in I have for years past been very sure to catch a severe cold which was hard to throw off, and which would leave aftereffects on my constitution the most of the winter.

"Last winter I was advised to try Peruna, and within five days the cold was broken up and in five days more I was a well man. I recommended it to several of my friends and all speak the highest praise for it. There is nothing like Peruna for catarrhal afflictions. It is well nigh infallible as a cure, and I gladly endorse it.---C. F. Given.

Gave New Life and Strength.

Mr. Edward Laws, Crown Point, Ind., writes the following:

"I must tell you what a good help Peruna has been to me. For over two years I suffered with catarrh of the lungs and throat, and although I doctored for it, nothing brought me relief until I tried Peruna. One bottle helped me greatly, and three more effected a complete cure, while at the same time it gave such new life and strength to my whole body that I feel like a new man and ten years younger.

"I hope that my testimonial may induce others who are similarly afflicted to try Peruna."—Edward Laws.

A Prominent Singer Saved From Loss of Voice.

Mr. Julius Weisslitz, 176 Seneca street, Buffalo, N. Y., is corresponding secretary of The Saengerlust, of New York; is the leading second bass of the Saengerlust, the largest German singing society of New York, and also the oldest.

In 1899 The Saengerlust celebrated its fiftieth anniversary with a large celebration in New York City. The following is his testimony:

"About two years ago I caught a severe cold while traveling and which settled into catarrh of the bronchial tubes, and so affected my voice that I was obliged to cancel my engagements. In distress, I was advised to try Peruna, and although I had never used a patent medicine before, I sent for a bottle.

"Words but illy describe my surprise to find that within a few days I was greatly relieved, and within three weeks I was entirely recovered. I am never without it now, and take an occasional dose when I feel run down."—Julius Weisslitz.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

"Yes," answered the languid philosopher, "there is always the charm of uncertainty about a crowd; you can never tell from a distance whether it is caused by a prince or a politician, a prize-fighter or a pianist."—Washington Star.

Indian With Eyeglasses.

"I noticed the other day what was to me in the nature of a novelty," remarked a prominent local court stenographer, who has spent considerable time in a business way among the descendants of the American aborigines. "What struck me as strange was meeting here in Washington with an Indian who wore eyeglasses. In the course of all my experience with the red men I never before observed Poor Lo making use of lenses to aid his sight. Perhaps the name of this particular Indian has something to do with his adopting what is unquestionably a very necessary custom of civilization. He bears the cognomen 'Foggy Cloud,' and is a member of the Chippewa tribe. All the other Indians of my acquaintance are blessed with keen sight of the most pronounced type, and I do not remember hearing that any of them ever had eye-trouble of any character."—Washington Star.

A Catch in His Back.

Palmer, Oregon, April 14th.—W. J. Uppendahl of this place has had a great of trouble recently with his back. Every time he went to do the least bit of lifting he used to have what he called "a catch" in his back. He says:

"It did not have to be very hard work to give me such a severe strain that I could not move.

"I suffered quite a long time before I heard of Dodd's Kidney Pills. I used four boxes, and now I can work as hard as any one and my back is as stout and strong as it ever was.

"My wife used some of the pills, too, and she thinks there is nothing that beats them.

"I can positively recommend Dodd's Kidney Pills to any one who has a pain in his back, for I know they will cure it."

Lost His Rheumatism

By the use of a bottle of St. Jacobs Oil.

SERGEANT JEREMIAH MAHER, of Ardcath, Royal Irish Constabulary, says: "My friend, Mr. Thomas Hand, has been a great sufferer from rheumatism in the back and joints for the last four years, during which time he has employed many different methods of treatment, but obtained no relief whatever, and for the last two years has been unable to walk without a stick, and sometimes two sticks, and was in great pain constantly. I induced him to procure a bottle of St. Jacobs Oil, which he applied with the most astonishing and marvellous effects. Before he had finished using the contents of the first bottle he could walk readily without the aid of a stick, and after a few applications from the second bottle he was free from pain, and has been ever since; and although fifty years of age and a farmer, he can walk and work without experiencing any pain or difficulty whatever."

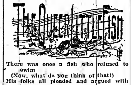
Fishing Dogs.

We know that cats are fond of fish, and travelers tell us that the arctic dogs like them well enough to do their own catching. Their owners never feed Eskimo dogs in the summer time, and one of the most interesting sights of that country is to watch them get their own breakfast, says a traveler in the American Boy. They will not go into the icy, cold water till they are very hungry, but in the morning they will wade out in the water and stand as still as a stone until a fish comes sailing by. They then jump for him, diving just as a seal would, frequently sinking under the water ten or fifteen feet. These dogs are used for drawing sledges, but they are tremendous hunters. When they see a deer or other game, no matter how many sledges are behind them, off they go like mad. Their owners know they are likely to get beyond control at this time, and each dog is fastened in the harness in such a way that one little pull of a particular string by the driver will set him loose, so when the dogs catch sight of game and start off wildly the driver just pulls the string and off they go.



There was once a fish who refused to swim
(Now, what do you think of that!)
His folks all pleaded and argued with him,
But he set his fins down flat.
For swimming, he said, was much too slow,
And this is a rapid age, you know.
He would hunt up some swifter way to go,
And there that little fish sat!

He thought all day, and he thought all night,
Till his brain began to swim;
He thought till he lost his appetite,
And his friends all laughed at him.
They said he had always been so queer,
They weren't surprised at this strange idea;
But one morning, when they came to jeer,
They saw a wonderful sight!

He had harnessed a flying-fish to a shell,
In the hollow of which he sat;
His reins of seaweed, twisted well

(Now, what do you think of that!)
Old fishes gasped as he thundered by,
With his elbows out and his head held high,
And the lady fishes would blush and sigh
When he nodded and tipped his hat
But the queerest part of this queer affair
(As I'm sure you'll agree with me),
Is the way folks changed their opinions there
In that fish world under the sea.
For they said he had always been so bright,
'Twas no wonder his scheme turned out all right,
And while they were cheering with all their might,
This little fish winked at me!
—Ida Goldsmith Morris in Chicago Record-Herald.

Mesmerizing a Rooster.

I knew a little boy who used to perform this trick very successfully. He had a bright young rooster, of which he was very fond, and which he often brought into the house.

He would hold this rooster on his lap, and with a piece of chalk draw lines from the tip of his bill to the back of its neck, pressing very lightly with the chalk.

At first the rooster would appear sleepy, and then would nod its head very drowsily, and finally to all appearances go fast asleep.

If put upon the floor the rooster would remain standing, but with its eyes fast closed. Then the little boy would bring a light near to the rooster's eyes, and it would stretch its neck and crow a great many times, as if the sun were just coming up, although its eyes were closed all the time.

Then this young mesmerist would lightly tap the rooster's bill and spurs with a lead pencil. The rooster would immediately ruffle his neck feathers, flap his wings, thrust his spurs and go through all the motions of a furious fight.

He would keep this up until stopped by being lifted from the floor and then set down again.

When the little boy would give the usual call which summoned the chickens to their meals the rooster would try his best to pick holes in the floor, thinking he was making a fine meal of corn. If a few pieces of grass were brushed against his face and some buttons dropped upon his toes he would scratch away at a great rate, as if doing his best to destroy a garden. Doesn't it seem surprising that a rooster should have such an imagination?

The rooster was awakened by stroking the feathers on the top of his head backward and then giving him a slight jolt and setting him upon his feet.

It is curious that the more he was mesmerized the easier it became and the more things he would do. And it did not hurt him in the least. He grew so large and handsome that he was finally sold for a fancy price.—Quincy Optic.

Ingenious Piece of Work.

The following ingenious piece of poetry is said to have been circulated in Philadelphia during the occupation of the British in the War of the Revolution. Its author is unknown. Its peculiarity consists in the manner in which it may be read in three different ways, viz.:

(1) Let the whole be read in the order in which it is written; (2) then read the lines downwards on the left of each comma in every line; (3) in the same manner on the right of each comma. By the first reading it will be observed that the Revolutionary cause is deprecated, and lauded by the others:

"Hark! hark! the trumpet sounds, the din of war's alarms,
O'er seas and solid grounds, doth call us to arms;
Who for King George doth stand, their honors soon will shine;
Their ruin is at hand, who with the Congress join.
The acts of Parliament, in them I much delight;
I hate their cursed intent, who for the Congress fight.
The Tories of the day, they are my daily toast;
They soon will sneak away, who independence boast—
Who non-resistance hold, they have my hand and heart;
May they for slaves be sold, who act a Whiggish part.
Old Mansfield, North, and Bute, may daily blessings pour;
Confusion and dispute, on Congress evermore;
To North, that British Lord, may honor still be done,
I wish a block or cord, to General Washington."

Lincoln's Education.

Lincoln was hungry for an education; he yearned for growth, for expansion, and, because many volumes were denied him, he appreciated all the more the precious books which he walked many miles to obtain, and which he read before the log fire when all the rest of the household were asleep. There was no large library of books staring him in the face, bidding for attention, and distracting his choice. All the energy of his nature was concentrated on that single "Life of Washington." He threw his whole being into it, and devoured it as only a soul thirsting for knowledge can.—Success.

The Feather Game.

A small feather with a very little stem must be produced to play the feather game; also a tablecloth or small sheet. The feather is placed upon this, and the company stands in a circle, holding the sheet.

Some one gives the feather a blow, and the object of the game is to prevent it from touching any one.

Each one gives the feather a puff whenever it comes near him, and over it goes to the other side again. The excitement produced is very great, and it is always a most amusing spectacle, the onlookers enjoying it almost as much as the players themselves.

The Busy Bee.

Great, indeed, is the amount of work which a busy bee will do in a day. Every head of clover consists of about 60 flower tubes, each of which contains a very small quantity of sugar. Bees will often visit a hundred different heads of clover before retiring to the hive and in order to obtain the sugar necessary for a load must, therefore, thrust their tongues into about 6,000 different flowers. A bee will make 20 trips a day when the clover patch is convenient to the hive, and thus will draw the sugar from 120,000 different flowers in the course of a single day's work.

Cat and Mouse.

The players stand hand in hand in a circle, the mouse being inside and the cat outside. They dance around, raising their arms and lowering them alternately, which gives the cat a chance to jump in at one side, while the mouse jumps out at the other. The cat is now a prisoner and goes round "miauling," but as the dance continues she soon gets out and chases the mouse, who darts in to save herself. If she gets in by herself, the cat pays a forfeit, but if puss gets in also it is the mouse who has to suffer for it.

Scissored Animals.

An amusing game is "scissored animals." Plain white paper, scissors and pencils are the implements and the guests are allowed a few minutes in which to cut out any animal they may choose from the paper, and add eyes, ears and other necessary decorations with the pencil. But one trial is allowed, and there must be no preliminary sketching. The animal must be scissored right out of the paper. Fortunately, however, each one is privileged to write the name of the animal represented.

Queer Names for Girls.

It is not uncommon for a Japanese girl to bear the name of a flower. On the other hand, however, many girls in Japan bear the names of some domestic utensil, as frying pan or dust brush. Doubtless this results from the custom common among some people of naming a child from the first object that strikes the eye after the little one has come into the world.

Anarchists in a Colony.

A communistic community is about to be established at Midlaren, in Drenthe, by a number of Dutch anarchists from Groningen. To this end property has been purchased consisting of land, with farmhouses, etc., and the experiment will be entered upon as soon as the necessary formalities for the transfer of the property have been completed.

A Business Killer.

"Business is frightfully dull to-day," said the junior partner of the tailoring firm.

"No wonder," said the senior partner, angrily. "Who wrote our ad for the papers to-day?"

A Sign of Genius.

"What a charming infant!" exclaimed Miss Frizz.

"Yes," answered the mother, proudly. "We are looking forward to a brilliant future for our boy."

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

SIXTY LIVES LOST

STEAMER CITY OF PITTSBURG IS BURNED TO THE WATER'S EDGE.

PASSENGERS IN A WILD PANIC

MOST OF THEM AWAKENED FROM SLEEP TO FACE AN AWFUL DEATH.

RESCUERS WORK HEROICALLY

TERROR-STRICKEN CROWDS INTERFERE WITH THE STEAMER'S CREW.

Cairo, Ill., April 21.—The side-wheel steamer City of Pittsburg, en route from Cincinnati to Memphis, was burned to the water's edge shortly after 4 o'clock yesterday morning at Ogden's Landing, twenty-four miles from this city. The early reports stated that sixty-five lives were lost and that many were badly burned and otherwise injured, but the list of casualties is not yet definitely determined. Two boats and every available craft from this city went to the scene to extend relief. Efforts were made to catch the New South, of the same line, at Paducah and have her steam back for relief, but the New South had passed Paducah, upward-bound before the telegram was received.

Most of the passengers were still in bed when Second Clerk Oliver Phillips gave the alarm. The engineers at once started all the pumping engines, while the crew brought all the hose into play. Amid the streams of water on all sides, the flames from the lower deck and the dense clouds of smoke, the passengers rushed from their state rooms and a frightful panic ensued. The appeals of the officers and crew could not appease the that interfered with those, throwing water on the flames, as well as with those working with the life boats. Few could adjust life preservers or do anything else for themselves. The smoke was stifling. Great clouds floated through the blazing steamer, choking the passengers and adding to the terror. Children cried pitifully, begging that they be saved. They knew, as well as their elders, that death confronted them, and clung to their mothers as though they alone could save them. Life boats were manned and every effort was made to save the passengers from the floating furnace of flames. Sturdy boatmen rowed as they never rowed before in their heroic work of rescue. From the river banks the burning craft and the dense clouds of smoke, tinged with tongues of flames from the vicious bed of fire, made a most impressive, yet weird spectacle. Boats were sent from the shore to help in the work of rescue, but the flames were only too surely consummating their

to save all from the flames. Boats laden to their limit with passengers in the scant attire they were able to gather were landed at the river banks. As fast as one boat could be emptied it returned to the ill-fated steamer, the heroic rescuers not waiting to catch a breath of rest. The burning steamer was quickly headed to the bank, but passengers had to jump off the stern, and trying to swim ashore through the swift current, many were drowned. Many also perished in the flames.

Capt. Phillips says twenty or twenty-five of the passengers are missing and the same number of the crew. Two women passengers were severely burned but will recover.

The fire started in the forward hatch, larboard, and burned fiercely when the steamer ran ashore. Very few of the passengers or crew were aware of the fire until it was too late.

The captain and clerk last night claimed that in all eighty persons have been accounted for, leaving sixty persons lost or unaccounted for.

MANY FAMILIES HOMELESS.

Fifty Dwelling Houses Destroyed at Kansas City.

Kansas City, April 21.—A destructive fire visited the southwestern part of this city yesterday, laying waste a section of dwelling houses almost a block wide and doing damage to the amount of $75,000. John Stinne of Quincy, Ill., a spectator, was seriously injured by a falling piece of iron and Edward Bennett, a fireman, was overcome by heat. About fifty dwelling houses were destroyed and sixty or more families were rendered homeless. A high wind was blowing and the flames spread with alarming rapidity. Because of a mistake in the alarm sent in, the arrival of the firemen was delayed and the fire had gained much headway before they commenced operations. Most of the residents who suffered loss are poor. Those who need assistance are being cared for temporarily by neighbors and charitable institutions.
